"MIGHTY A" SMASHES JAP POSTS ON GUADALCANAL

Clears the Way for 2 Mile Advance by Marines.

BY AN OFFICER OF U. S. S. ATLANTA.
As told to Charles Leavelle.

After helping put the Indian sign on the Jap air forces on Aug. 24, 1942, the Mighty A had two months' patroling and waiting before being sent on Oct. 30 to give the Jap ground forces of Guadalcanal something to remember her by.

That month's cruise was one of the most beautiful of the Mighty A's brief career. We saw millions of fish—I mean God's fish. Not tin ones. There were whales, porpoises, sharks, thousands of flying fish, and a hundred varieties I never had known before. Our lookouts were continuously reporting them—particularly the whales—as submarines.

When orders came we steamed for Guadalcanal, accompanied by four destroyers. We picked up a marine major just off Henderson field. In the half dawn we could see our planes landing and taking off with their lights on. Flashing shell bursts lighted the scene at intervals as the marines and the Japs traded early morning punches.

With the major, who was well acquainted with the Jap held coast, we started out to silence a Jap battery known as "Pistol Pete." Pete had been plowing up Henderson field periodically. We also were to wipe out Jap supply and ammunition dumps, troop concentrations, and anything else we could.

Paint Burns Off Guns.

When we reached the edge of enemy territory, the Mighty A and the destroyers opened up with everything they had, including machine guns. The raking we gave that coast made history in the Solomons. An army flyer in a Bell Airacobra hovered over the area, diving to indicate targets. Then he would radio the results to us.

We started firing at Point Cruz, just north of the Matanikau river mouth, and proceeded up past Kokumbona to Tassafaronga. Within 20 minutes the paint was burning off the guns, the fantail was covered with shell cases and empty powder cans, and we had to break out the hoses to cool down the guns.

Ammunition dumps went up with tremendous roars. Great fires blazed in the woods. Beach installations flew apart. Japs fled wildly from the woods into the devastating fire of our machine guns. The army flyer radioed monotonously: "Area cleared . . . area cleared." Then he would dive on a new one. The explosions were earth shaking and the towering flames within the woods reddened the dawn sky. We encountered almost no opposition.

Shoot Up Jap Barges.

At Tassafaronga we found the beach lined with landing barges that now were being used to take ashore supplies from "the Tokio Express" which steamed down each night from a base farther north. We started at the southern end of the line and followed it right up the beach.

When we left Tassafaronga behind, the beach and surf were covered with splinters. Clouds of smoke and dust hung in the air. There were no barges.

We began passing troop centers. At these points the Atlanta and the destroyers turned loose all their ma-

Ninth Instalment

The U. S. S. Atlanta wades in with all her mighty guns going in today's, the ninth instalment of "The Log of the Mighty A." Accompanied by four destroyers she blasts Jap positions on Guadalcanal until the paint burns off her guns and American marines advance two miles without opposition thru the smoking havoc created by her shells. A few days later she helps smash two heavy Jap air attacks, described vividly here by the author, a Chicagoan who at 23 is a full lieutenant in the navy.

ALLIES FIGHTING TWO WARS, ONE WITH JAPS, SAYS CLEMENT ATTLEE

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, March 28.—Clement R. Attlee, dominions secretary, said at Wembley tonight that there were two wars going on—one against Germany and Italy and one against Japan—but there would have to be only one peace.

"I do not want to see a peace for Europe or for Asia, Africa or America alone," he said, "you must have world peace if you are to have real peace."

The deputy prime minister warned against letting up after the conflict, declaring that to win peace "you will have to go in in the same spirit which characterized the war effort."

Run First Train Thru Subway But Regular Service Is Far Off

ARTHUR VEYSEY.

Chicago yesterday became a city with a subway.

At 3:18 p. m. a three car train headed by Car No. 4429 crept from its usual elevated tracks south of the Armitage avenue station and eased into the Clybourn-Division-State street tube.

The train, made up of two passenger cars with a work car sandwiched between in case of trouble, carried newspaper men and about 150 employés of the subway department and the Rapid Transit lines.

Before it came out of the ground one hour and 56 minutes later after a return trip to Jackson street, the train had proved that subway trains will be smooth riding and cool; the air will be only slightly damp, and passengers will be able to carry on conversations without shouting.

Speedy Service Indicated.

A second trip indicated the subway will be speedy. The train crept along on its first trip, paced by engineers on foot who checked clearances. On the second it reached a speed of 30 miles an hour, going from Fullerton to Jackson in 14 minutes. That time, however, could be cut about a third because the subway expects to operate trains at 45 miles an hour.

Bernard J. Fallon, operating manager and trustee for the elevated lines, said the subway trip was a "nice ride" and that he was "very pleased," but he declined to predict when subway trains would become a regular thing. The subway department said service would begin "shortly," but declined to say if that meant one month, two months or more.

The subway will be officially opened Friday and war bond buyers will get free rides Saturday between 1 and 11 p. m.

Electric current was turned into the Clybourn-Division-State street subway at 12:45 p. m. yesterday.

No Champagne for Christening.

At 3:05 a conductors corps, dressed in their best, shouted "all aboard, subway special," and the three car train pulled out of the Wilson avenue elevated station. At the controls was Charles Blade, 1127 Newport avenue, an elevated lines motorman 29 years. Because Blade had never seen the inside of the subway, C. J. Beck, 4506 North Ashland avenue, who has spent much of the last two and a half years underground as a subway department electrical engineer, stood at Blade's shoulder.

Women standing in their backyards waved as the train dipped into the ground. Kids lined the railings. A passenger shouted for a bottle of champagne to christen the subway but only a cask of drinking water had been brought along.

A few hundred feet inside the entrance, after reaching its normal depth of 40 feet, the subway tunnel splits into two round bores dotted with lights their entire length. An occasional water seepage streak marred the white concrete lining.

Stations in Blue and Cream.

The south bound bore is complete as far as Jackson, except for stations and circular emergency stairways to be installed in ventilation wells. Some track is still to be laid in the northbound bore.

The stations, with their light blue and cream tile walls, still lack some lighting fixtures and other equipment. In some stations escalators have been installed but are not yet in operation.

A catwalk two feet wide parallels the track most of the way for emergency use and tube walls are dotted with signs pointing to nearest exits. Five-foot blowers guarantee fresh air. Automatic louvres keep out cold air in winter time. Heat will be provided only by train operations. The temperature yesterday was near freezing.

Three-quarter inch reclaimed rubber pads under the rails reduce vibration and noise, but when yesterday's train hit 30 miles an hour it could be heard half a mile away.

Million 14 Year Olds Join Hitler Youth Organization

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The Berlin radio said yesterday that more than one million German boys and girls who had reached the age of 14 were sworn into the Hitler youth organization by Arthur Axman, chief of the national socialist party. The principal ceremony was held in the Berlin Opera house, with Axman broadcasting to other youth groups gathered throughout the country.

CHICAGO LEADS ALL CITIES OF COUNTRY IN TIN CAN SALVAGE

More tin cans were salvaged in Chicago in February than in any other city, William L. McFetridge, area salvage director, was advised yesterday by J. C. Dougall, chief of the war production board's tin unit for the Indiana-Iowa-Illinois-Wisconsin region.

Dougall reported that 1,212,930 pounds of cans were collected and shipped to detinning plants from Feb. 1 to Feb. 25, and 1,540,140 pounds from Feb. 26 to March 20. In January Chicago shipped 917,236 pounds.

Chicago's position as the No. 1 tin can salvage city is attributed by Dougall to the fact that "the program has been promoted more effectively in the Chicago area thru the medium of the press than anywhere else in the United States."

AT LEAST STEGER SAVES SIDEWALK

Firemen Have Hot Time at Rally.

BY MARTHA MURPHY.

The Steger fire department had a hot time yesterday.

At 10:20 yesterday morning as Steger folks were setting out for church the fog horn device atop the village water tower blatted out a fire warning. Twenty-two volunteer firemen grabbed their caps and galloped toward the fire station to hop on the trucks.

Herman Piacentini, a druggist, and Emil Boettger, a truck driver, got there first. Piacentini pushed open the door and fell back in a puff of smoke. The station was aflame.

Hook-Ladder Truck Gasless.

Boettger opened the doors and Piacentini backed the fire truck out. Then they tried to rescue the hook and ladder apparatus, but the truck was out of gas. Piacentini said the hook and ladder hadn't been used for five or six months.

By the time the men had the truck hitched to Piacentini's car, ready to tow it out of the blazing building, other volunteer fire fighters had gathered, some in their Sunday best. They pushed and shoved the hook and ladder into the street.

For the next hour and a half 20 of the volunteer force of 32, aided by two reserves, sprayed the station and chopped merrily away on the roof. The fire had started from an overheated stove and sneaked up a back corner of the station to the roof.

Hopes for New Station.

Nick J. Grutzius, fire chief, paused long enough to remark that he hoped the fire did enough damage to get the force a new station. The old one was built about 45 years ago, was of all wood construction, and was insulated with tar paper.

By the time church was over the station stood just a shell of its former self. The roof had dropped out in spots and was pitted with axe holes in others. The walls were blackened and wobbly.

The volunteers straggled back to the crowds jeering in the street.

Chiang Back in Chungking After 12 Day Absence

CHUNGKING, China, March 28 (AP).—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek returned to the capital today after a 12 day absence. The Chinese central news agency said the generalissimo visited Kweiyang and other districts in Kweichow province and was impressed with the general improvement of conditions, particularly reconstruction projects and suppression of opium traffic.

OPA SEES AMPLE MEAT TODAY FOR RATION DEBUT

Urge Normal Buying to Aid Restocking.

The office of price administration estimated yesterday that there will be sufficient meat in Chicago retail markets today to satisfy demands of the first day of meat rationing, despite a week-end shortage of famine proportions. One OPA official added that there would be plenty—"if the public doesn't try to buy a week's supply on the first day."

"There will be an adequate supply on hand for all consumers who want to use their point coupons," said Michael F. Mulcahy, metropolitan area OPA administrator.

Forecasts Adequate Stocks.

Raymond S. McKeough, OPA regional administrator, said that it may take butchers one or two days to stock up after being cleaned out last week.

"But Monday and Tuesday ordinarily are slack days so far as meat purchasing is concerned, and if people who need no meat today don't rush out to buy it they will find the supply very adequate in another day or two," he added.

On the basis that Chicago consumes 1,265,000 pounds of meat per day under present OPA regulations, Mayor Edward J. Kelly Saturday asked OPA to make 3,000,000 pounds of meat available to Chicago retailers today.

Say It Meets Mayor's Plea.

In answer to the request, McKeough ordered one packer to deliver 700,000 pounds of meat to retailers today in excess of the quota he had already filled. The OPA estimated that this 700,000 pounds, plus that already available, would just about meet the mayor's request.

Other packing companies which have not filled their March quotas will supply the difference, it was explained.

The 3,000,000 pounds the mayor requested probably won't be in retail showcases today, but should reach butchers' counters by tomorrow or the day after. This will complete the March quotas, the OPA said, and the situation should be eased when the April quotas open up.

Retail Outlets Order More.

One large packer said his company is shipping 30 to 40 per cent more meat than normal to its retail outlets in Chicago today.

Meanwhile 250 butchers from the southwest section of Chicago and nearby suburbs met yesterday at Olympic hall, 2136 61st court, Cicero. John A. Kotal, executive secretary of the National Retail Association of Retail Meat Dealers, asked them how many had enough meat to open for business today. Six raised their hands. Sixteen others said they had meat promised for today, but that the promises might not be fulfilled. [Details on page 11.]

One west side butcher shop, advertising Sunday trade "due to rationing," did a brisk business in hams, meats, and cheese, with some 150 patrons in queues outside the building being admitted 10 to 15 at a time. Police guarded the crowd to prevent disorders.

Most delicatessen shops usually open on Sunday reported little demand for meats—and little supply.

New York Awaits Chicago Meat.

It was disclosed in New York that 1,250,000 pounds of beef shipped to that city by a Chicago packing firm at the request of Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia probably would not reach New York before tomorrow.

The American Federation of Kosher Butchers in New York disclosed that 40 per cent of the kosher shops were about to be forced out of business there and announced that they were ready, if federal officials approve, to launch a coöperative packing plant to serve their own needs.

The plight of New York's kosher butchers was aired at a tumultuous meeting of some 2,500 members in Brooklyn. The situation was said to be acute because Mosaic law prohibits Jews from eating meat more than 72 hours old.

Tell How 900 Tons of Bombs Blast Berlin

BULLETIN.

LONDON, March 29 (Monday)—(AP)—R. A. F. bombers attacked targets in enemy-occupied territory last night in a swift follow-up to Saturday night's smashing raid on Berlin, the British announced today. German and French radio stations went off the air.

LONDON, March 28 (AP).—Berlin shuddered and exploded under the R. A. F.'s heaviest raid last night, an attack officially described as twice as heavy as anything the Luftwaffe ever inflicted on London.

A force of British bombers numbered in three figures cascaded 900 tons of explosives on the German capital at the rate of 30 tons a minute in a half hour assault which was reported to have left the city spouting a volcano-like mass of flame.

Lancasters, Halifaxes, and Stirlings delivered the paralyzing blow in a repeat performance of the March 1 raid, which up to then was the most destructive attack of the war on Berlin.

Fires Visible 120 Miles.

The bombs turned Berlin into a vast picture of flame and destruction, with fires in the city building up into "one hell's brew of solid flame," said Maj. Sidney Bartlett, United States air force officer who rode in one plane and dropped a two ton bomb. The fires were visible 120 miles from the German capital, he said.

Other flyers reported that nearly 200 searchlights tried to pick up the bombers.

Few Nazi fighters were in the air because of bad weather, and continuous cloud belts were encountered on the trip to Berlin. The crews said they could make out the River Spree and other prominent landmarks. Large fires were reported left burning on both sides of the Spree.

Two Big Explosions.

Two terrific explosions were reported and a "great number of 4,000-pounders were dropped," the air ministry announced. One Lancaster was thrown upward 500 feet when its 8,000-pounder went off.

One pilot reported that the Berlin defenses "seem to have died down just for the few minutes we were making our bombing run."

The Berlin raid was the sixth this year and the 59th of the war. Nine R. A. F. bombers were lost.

A Reuters [British news agency] dispatch from Stockholm quoted the Berlin correspondent of the Swedish newspaper Aftonbladet as saying last night's raid was "at least as large in scale as the previous one and lasted twice as long."

Ex-Chicagoan on Raid.

Maj. Bartlett, a former Chicagoan, who was a Hollywood movie writer before entering the army, and who is the husband of Ellen Drew, Chicago movie star, was the first American army officer to participate in a raid on Berlin. Miss Drew is the daughter of Mrs. Noreen Ray of Chicago.

Bartlett was at one time a Chicago newspaper man and later a broker. He has a sister in Chicago, Mrs. Harry Dunn; a brother, William, and another brother, Ed, who has an office at 30 North La Salle street.

"We got there with the first hundred bombers and were the last to leave," he said. "When we were 120 miles on the return trip you could still see the red hot glow of Berlin burning."

Bartlett, who released his plane's 4,000-pound "cookie" squarely on the target, gave his account at United States army headquarters. At his side was his wife, who is here on an entertainment tour of army bases.

"When we first got there, a series of fires was burning and soon our blockbusters were cascading right down the lane," he said. "The flak anti-aircraft fire came in spurts.

City Spouts Steel and Smoke.

"We saw three bursts that formed a swastika. Somebody commented over the intercom: 'This is a hell of a time to try to convert us.'

"Meanwhile the fires below built up and built up; usually they are spotty, but not in this raid—it was one hell's brew of solid flame. We got over at 11:10, bombed at 11:19, and stooged around until 11:30.

"The whole of Berlin vomited smoke and mortar and steel, and there was a great mass of fire."

Said his wife: "I'm all for it, for we all have a job to do. I didn't know this time where he was going, but I had a kind of premonition."

A Canadian air force pilot from Chicago, who declined the use of his name "for fear of worrying my family," guided his bomber over the target and back to its home base, altho it had been badly shot up.

YANKS OCCUPY FONDOUK; PUSH TOWARD COAST

British Reach Edge of El Hamma.

5 Columns Poised

ALLIED HDQ. IN NORTH AFRICA, March 28 (AP).—Marshal Rommel's coastal lifeline in eastern Tunisia is threatened by five allied columns—three American—poised to strike toward the sea. From north to south these groups are:

1. French troops striking across the Ousseltia plains northwest of Kairouan. Believed to be less than 50 miles from Sousse and also threatening Kairouan.

2. Gen. Patton's American force which seized Fondouk, 20 miles from Kairouan and 52 miles from Sousse.

3. Patton's middle column in Maknassy pass. Already overlooking the coastal plain it is only 28 miles from Graiba, coastal road junction between Gabes and Sfax.

4. The southernmost American column entrenched in El Guetaria pass, 55 miles northwest of a coastal road junction a few miles above Gabes.

5. British desert troops fighting in the eastern outskirts of El Hamma, only 15 miles short of closing a bottleneck between there and Gabes on the coast.

ALLIED HDQ. IN NORTH AFRICA, March 28 (AP).—United States troops captured Fondouk yesterday and British columns knifed into axis positions on both the northern and southern Tunisian fronts, it was announced today. The big allied offensive at last was in full motion.

The new thrust by Lt. Gen. George S. Patton Jr.'s American forces, which apparently caught the enemy by surprise, sprang early yesterday from the little village of Hadjeb el Aioun, 40 miles southwest of Kairouan.

The striking force of infantry marched almost 20 miles thru a haze of dust and mist, meeting only light opposition from enemy mortars, machine guns, and artillery. Before midday the Americans had overrun their first objective and by night had cleared the enemy from Fondouk, on the coastal plain side of Tunisia's Grand Dorsal mountains.

Toward Third Largest Port.

Kairouan, toward which Patton's infantrymen were fighting their way, is a Moslem holy city where the Germans have built one of their most important Tunisian air bases. From Kairouan the road continues 32 miles northeast to Sousse, the enemy's third largest supply port in Tunisia.

To the north of the American drive, French patrols have advanced to the slopes of the heights east of the Ousseltia plain northwest of Kairouan without important enemy opposition, a French communique announced.

In addition to being threatened with severance from axis forces in northern Tunisia, both by the new American drive toward Sousse and a British thrust at Gabes, Rommel was menaced by American forces in El Guetaria pass and in the Maknassy area, 30 to 40 miles from the sea in the south central sector.

Coastal Corridor Narrowed.

Outflanking the Mareth line and narrowing the escape corridor of Marshal Erwin Rommel to 15 miles, Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery's desert column has battled its way into the eastern outskirts of El Hamma and is threatening the port of Gabes in fighting which a communique said was continuing.

The British 8th army desert column fought its way 10 miles yesterday to reach the outskirts of El Hamma, site of an important axis air base, and inflict a shock on the enemy.

Southwest of the El Hamma and the Mareth area, the French announced that their desert camel troops "occupied Sabria and Douz which command Kebili on the southern shore of the Djerid salt lake," 72 miles west of Mareth village. Douz is 18 miles south of Kebili and Sabria is 28 miles southwest of Kebili.

Aided by Heavy Bombings.

Ground troops had been aided by nearly a week of intensive allied air raids on big Nazi armored concentrations near El Hamma, which Rom-

M'KIBBIN VOWS TO GUARD UNIONS FROM GANGSTERS

Would Oust Gunmen, He Tells Labor Leaders.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

George B. McKibbin, Republican candidate for mayor, pledged himself yesterday that if elected he will protect honest labor leaders against racketeers and gunmen and safeguard the integrity of union elections. He addressed more than 200 representatives of Chicago unions meeting in the La Salle hotel. John Callahan, business agent of Structural Iron Workers' union, local No. 1, was chairman of the meeting.

Candidate McKibbin charged that an alliance has existed between the city hall and the Nitti gang. "You are standing with me in this fight to end the partnership between the city hall and the mob," McKibbin told the union representatives. "This unholy alliance has cast a blight upon our city and has put many splendid men and women of labor unions under the tyranny of gunmen and hoodlums.

Opposed to Alliance.

"I am unalterably against the Kelly machine's alliance with the underworld syndicate. Not only has this syndicate engaged in commercialized gambling and vice and preyed upon the liquor business and other legitimate businesses. It has seized control of various labor unions by force with the aid of its political partners in the city hall.

"I am going to be elected mayor and when I am mayor I will drive the gunmen and musclemen out of every union and out of Chicago. The police force will provide adequate protection whenever requested by any group of union men who ask for its help against gangster coercion and gangster rule of union elections.

Revealed by Press.

"The suicide of Frank Nitti has been followed by revelations in THE TRIBUNE showing how his gangsters of the old Capone mob seized one after another of Chicago's splendid labor organizations. This could not have happened without the protection of the city hall.

"The syndicate's invasion of Chicago unions began with Mike Carrozzo and Bill Maloney who seized the unions concerned with street paving and street cleaning. The city administration not only condoned this violence but actually dealt with those gangsters.

"When I am mayor I will not deal with gunmen who pretend to speak for unions. To the limit of my power I will see that firms dealing with such gunmen get none of the city's business.

Promise for Honest Leaders.

"To the honest leaders of labor who have risen from the ranks, and to their members I promise full recognition and every coöperation in their efforts to advance the interest of labor and to give their families the highest possible standard of living.

"I shall recognize the principle of collective bargaining—I was for it before it was written into our laws. I shall uphold the right of union men in the city's employ to receive the prevailing wage for similar work in private industry.

"The police will never be used to oppress workers. I shall do all in my power to foster friendly relations between industry and labor. I will make this city an attractive place for new industries with increased opportunities for employment."

Calls for Sufficient Food.

McKibbin then spoke on the help Chicagoans can give soldiers and sailors and touched on the food situation. He said lame duck rationing agencies should see that workers have sufficient food on their family tables, and that politics should be kept out of rationing. The full dinner pail for the war worker is as essential as for the soldier, he said.

"One by one you have seen the mob take over the treasury and control of Chicago unions," he said in conclusion. "The recent indictment of Chicago labor racketeers in New York called attention to the huge sums extorted from labor and from the public.

"The shadow of hoodlum control will threaten Chicago unions until the Kelly machine is driven from the city hall. Union labor cannot be safe or its members secure so long as the present alliance exists between the syndicate and the city hall. When I am mayor we shall end racketeering in labor.

"We will destroy the partnership of the underworld and the city hall. Together we will make Chicago a finer city for our children and for our fighting men when they come home victorious."

Praises Moves for Tolerance.

Mrs. Burnett D. Warner, former president of the Chicago Women's club, declared yesterday in a radio address over W-G-N that "one of McKibbin's greatest accomplishments is constructive leadership in racial and religious tolerance."

Mrs. Harry M. Mulberry, chairman of the handicapped children commission, speaking on the same program, declared: "I have come out openly for McKibbin because his intense interest in the well being of the school children is a positive guarantee that he will take direct and immediate action to give Chicago the splendid school system it deserves."

Radio time originally assigned to Atty. Gen. George Barrett at 8:30 tonight over W-G-N has been turned over to Gov. Dwight H. Green at Green's request. It was understood that Green will speak in answer to Rep. William Vicars, who attacked Green's administration last night. Atty. Gen. Barrett will speak Wednesday night.

McKibbin Promises to Protect Labor from Racketeers

AGED MAN DIES OF INJURIES.

Abraham Lirtzman, 80 years old, of 3700 Fremont street, a retired picture frame worker, died in the American hospital last night of injuries suffered earlier when he was struck by a northbound street car at Halsted street and Waveland avenue.

RESIDENTS OF TWO TOWNS TO GET TYPHOID 'SHOTS'

Preparations were being made yesterday to administer free immunization "shots" against typhoid fever to the 2,000 residents of Robbins and Cloverdale, following the discovery of two distinct cases in the last two weeks. Shallow wells of the two communities, which is in a lowland area, have been found to be polluted with sewage and high water produced by the spring thaw, according to Dr. Edward Piszczek, county health officer. More than a third of the area is inundated, he explained. The two cases came from remote parts of the communities and all persons who have come in contact with them are now taking treatment, Dr. Piszczek said.

END JOB FREEZE THREAT AT ONCE, LABOR HEAD ASKS

Terms WMC Order Hazard in Chicago War Work.

Immediate revocation of the war man power commission order designating Chicago a labor shortage area was urged yesterday by Francis B. Murphy, director of the Illinois department of labor.

"I think they should revoke this order, and give a definite, public assurance to the working man that he will not be frozen in his job. This would remove a mental hazard that is keeping many skilled tradesmen out of war jobs," Murphy declared.

Murphy reasserted his conviction that there is no shortage of labor in Chicago, and said his department is expecting 25,000 men and women to register in Chicago for unemployment compensation after April 1, the start of the new fiscal year.

More Look for Work.

This does not mean, he emphasized, that only 25,000 persons are looking for work. Many unemployed, he said, do not register for compensation.

"Many skilled men such as painters and other tradesmen, temporarily unemployed, refuse to take jobs at lower pay than their trade rates because they fear they will be frozen in the lower-wage jobs for the rest of the war," he said.

"I asked Paul V. McNutt, the man power commissioner, to act to remove this mental hazard, several weeks ago, and he gave assurance that men would not be held to jobs below their highest skills. But now they have declared this a labor shortage area, with a threatened labor freeze for Chicago. The order should be revoked."

Urges Speed on Increases.

The war labor board should work faster in handling wage increase applications, Murphy said, and he added that many employers still are reluctant to hire older men and women. "Half of the men claiming unemployment compensation are more than 50 years old, and half of the women are older than 34," he said. "There is an important labor reservoir in these groups."

Manufacturers in the Chicago area should continue to solicit war contracts as vigorously as ever, despite the group II. restrictions placed in effect here by the WMC, Leverett S. Lyon, chief executive officer of the Chicago Association of Commerce, said. Such solicitation, he said, will keep the procurement agencies of the army and navy informed of facilities available.

He declared that the WMC order is "far from an absolute prohibition on the placing of war contracts in either the Chicago or the Calumet areas."

U. S. SYNTHETIC RUBBER PLANT READY FOR USE

Baton Rouge, La., March 28 (AP).—Completion a month ahead of schedule of the building for a new government synthetic rubber plant here was announced today by the H. K. Ferguson company, industrial engineers and builders.

The plant, one of the first started after the Baruch rubber report was made, is a 30,000 ton unit, the company statement said, and soon will begin manufacturing rubber from butadiene supplied by the Standard Oil company here. The plant was built in 3½ months.

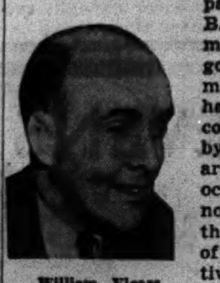
GREEN'S REGIME PUMMELED BY MINORITY CHIEF

Pontiac Democrat Speaks in Chicago Race.

As a result of Gov. Dwight H. Green's acceptance of leadership in the campaign of George B. McKibbin for mayor of Chicago, his state administration was hauled over the coals last night by William Vicars, Pontiac Democrat who is minority leader of the state house of representatives.



William Vicars.

In a radio talk, Vicars began:

"The truth about the Keebler-Green statehouse political machine is:

"It is corrupt, wasteful, irresponsible, inefficient, uneconomical, and faithless to the public trust. And these charges I can prove.

Provides a Title.

"In downstate Illinois we think of the Keebler-Green statehouse machine as 'Hypocrisy, Unlimited.'"

From that point, Vicars made one charge after another. He charged that Gilbert E. Keebler, former administrative auditor, was the secret go-between for the administration with contractors and firms of all kinds doing business with the state. He asserted that salaries in the department of finance, headed by McKibbin until he became a candidate for mayor, have increased $260,000 a year over those paid under the previous administration.

"Paradise of Rayrollers."

He accused McKibbin of making that department "a paradise for political payrollers," and listed a number of ward committeemen and other ward leaders drawing salaries there. Among the Chicago ward committeemen he named were Joseph A. Porcaro [28th], Edward F. Moore [30th], Charles L. Gerds [7th], Jens Jensen [50th], and Raymond J. Peacock [39th].

Listed as former leaders in the Len Small machine who, he said, are now identified with the Green administration were Werner W. Schroeder, Republican national committeemen; Leslie P. [Ike] Volz, former secretary to Fred Lundin and now in Gov. Green's office; William H. Colvin, Small's chairman of the board of pardons, and Chauncey Jenkins, Small's head of the department of public welfare.

Cites Inaugural Address.

As a general outline for his speech, Vicars used extracts from Gov. Green's inaugural address and contrasted with them the conditions today as he sees them. His first quotation from Green was a pledge to prevent further scandals in state institutions and the contrast Vicars offered was the Touhy and Banghart escape over the wall at Stateville penitentiary.

In this connection, Vicars charged that since March 1 Edward M. Stubblefield, the warden who was removed after the escape, has been on the pay roll of the state division of paroles. He asserted further that, while he was warden, Stubblefield was a mere figurehead and that the real orders were given by Allen Veeder of Elgin, personnel director, a job created under the present administration.

Vicars charged that on the day of the escape Stubblefield was doing political campaigning in southern Illinois and that there was not even a deputy warden in charge at the penitentiary.

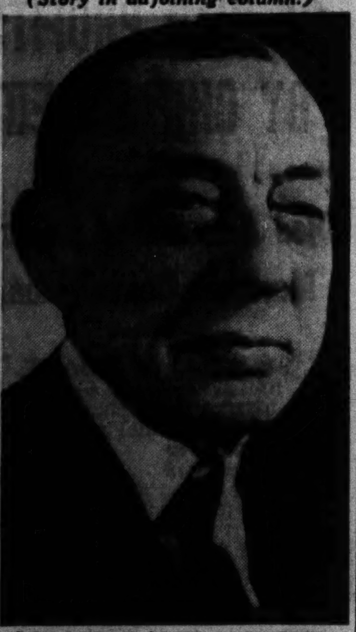
Tells of Shelton Gang.

Vicars devoted considerable time to moral conditions in southern Illinois, where he asserted the notorious Shelton gang is operating a gambling ring and "taking millions of dollars of illicit revenue from the citizens of Illinois every year." Slot machines, he said are operated openly, altho, he argued, it would be easy for the governor's liquor control commission to put an end to them as has been done in Chicago.

Vicars also alleged that $250,000 is being raised as a campaign fund for McKibbin thru extortion of contributions from state employés.

Pianist Dies

(Story in adjoining column.)



SERGEI RACHMANINOFF.

RACHMANINOFF, PIANIST, DIES IN CALIFORNIA

Virtuoso Is Stricken While on Concert Tour.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 28 [Special].—Sergei Rachmaninoff, master of the piano, died today in his home at Beverly Hills, succumbing to an attack of pneumonia and pleurisy with which he was stricken while on tour a few days after his appearance in Chicago Feb. 11 with the Chicago Symphony orchestra. He was 69 years old.

The tall Russian virtuoso, with his close cropped gray hair and dour visage, has been a familiar figure on the American concert stage for 35 years and as a pianist was second in the public mind only to Paderewski in his prime. A member of the land-owning class in Czarist Russia, he had made his home in America since 1917. He and his wife, Natalie, became American citizens Feb. 1 in a New York federal court.

Wife at Bedside.

The musician's wife and Mrs. Irena Wolkonsky, one of his two daughters, were with him at his death. The other daughter, Mrs. Tatiana Conus, is in France. Friends of the family said two requiem masses will be celebrated in the Los Angeles Russian Orthodox church, one tonight and one tomorrow night. The funeral mass will be Tuesday in the same church.

Rachmaninoff's musical reputation was founded not only on his accomplishments as a pianist but also on his abilities as a composer and conductor. Among his works were the operas "Aleko," "The Miser Knight," and "Francesca da Rimini," as well as a number of symphonies, concertos, and cantatas.

Won Interest of Tschaikowski.

He was born April 2, 1873, on an estate in the Novgorod district of Russia, and his first piano teacher was his mother. At the age of 12 he was entered in the Conservatory of Moscow and almost at once attracted the interest of the composer Tschaikowski. He won the conservatory's gold medal for the opera "Aleko" at 18.

As a young man he conducted the Moscow Private opera and the Imperial theater. His popularity outside Russia dates from an appearance in London in 1899 with the London Philharmonic. His American début was in 1909 with the Boston Symphony orchestra and in that year he made his first Chicago appearance as guest conductor and pianist with the Theodore Thomas orchestra.

Rachmaninoff made a tour of Europe just before the start of the first World War I. in 1914, and during the early years of this struggle he played a great many benefit concerts in Russia for the wounded.

After the bolshevik revolution in Russia his large estates were confiscated and he came to the United States in 1917 to make his home here permanently. Altho he conducted on a few occasions, his career in America was mainly that of a composer and a touring virtuoso. He achieved immediate popularity which increased with the years.

Disliked Public's Choice.

Much to his displeasure, his audieneces seized on a prelude in C sharp minor, which he composed when 20 years old, as a perennial favorite and insisted that he play it at his every appearance. He customarily used the piece for his final encore, and audiences seldom let him leave a performanec without obliging.

His appearance on the stage was austere and forbidding, and he seldom smiled. In his private life he was aloof from the public and his personal circle was small.

Japs Resume Seal Hunting, German Press Reports

BERNE, Switzerland, March 28.—After an intermission of 30 years seal hunting has been resumed on the eastern coasts of the Japanese islands, said a dispatch to the German press from Tokio today. The Japanese, it was stated, are taking advantage of their renunciation in 1941 of the sealing convention and the yield is proving profitable as seals quit the war zones in the north and seek more southerly points where they are now appearing in great numbers.

BULLET TROUBLE DELAYS SPIKE'S DATE WITH JURY

Bullet trouble is going to keep Edward [Spike] O'Donnell from appearing before the grand jury today, his son said last night. O'Donnell's story of his financial relationship with a $1,323,000 city paving deal which, he said, was responsible for [1], his slugging of Joe Butler, city superintendent of streets; [2], his slugging of Robert G. McKay, asphalt magnate; [3], somebody shooting him in the back March 15, will have to wait, Spike announced thru his son.

Police and prosecutors said they had been unable to get any information about [1] who shot Spike; [2] why; and [3] why Butler and McKay had not asked Spike's arrest because of the sluggings. Police of the detective bureau said it was too mysterious a case for them, and anyway, the answer always was "nobody home" when they called at the homes of anyone who might know the answers.

FEW DODGE GAS RATIONING, OPA SURVEYS SHOW

Michael F. Mulcahy, metropolitan area director for the office of price administration, said last night that reports of the 50 OPA field investigators indicated that gasoline rationing was "reasonably successful" in the Chicago area.

"Of course there is some chiseling," Mulcahy said, "but not on any considerable scale." Most illegal purchases of gasoline are made with coupons that have been stolen or were given away, he said.

"Any gasoline station operator who sells gas without demanding coupons is merely putting himself out of business," the OPA director said, "as all reports of shortages are investigated and if there are no legitimate explanations forthcoming the dealers are not permitted to buy any more gasoline."

U. S. NAVY FIGHTS 8 JAP WARSHIPS IN ALASKA SEAS

Foe Retires to West After Long Range Battle.

Washington, D. C., March 28 (AP).—A Japanese force heading for the Aleutian Islands was intercepted by a light force of American warships, engaged at long range and when last seen was headed westward, the navy reported today.

The communique said:

"On March 26, a detachment of our light forces patrolling to the westward of Attu Island, the westernmost in the Aleutians, made contact with a Japanese force composed of two heavy cruisers, two light cruisers, four destroyers and two cargo ships. The enemy force was headed eastward toward the Aleutians.

Exchange Long Range Fire.

"Gunfire at long range was exchanged. When the engagement was broken off, the Japanese forces were observed heading westward. Announcement of further details will be made when such information will not be of value to the enemy."

The Japanese force apparently was escorting the cargo vessels into Kiska, where the enemy has established a base bombed frequently by American planes. The murky weather found in the North Pacific evidently made it impossible to say definitely that the Japanese had been driven off.

Saves Cargo Ships.

It was probable that the Japanese commander, giving first thought to protection of the cargo vessels, which might contain needed supplies for the hard hit Kiska base, merely swung about to escape an engagement in which the supply ships could be lost.

The reference to gunfire at long range meant that our vessels fired upon the Japanese fleet from a distance of from five to seven miles.

An earlier communique told of a new raid by United States planes on Kiska, in which hits were scored on a hangar. The attack was the 29th in the last month.

CHINESE REPULSE JAP ATTACK TO DEFEND RAILWAY

Enemy Seeks to Guard Line to Canton.

CHUNGKING, China, March 28 (AP).—The Chinese high command said today that a fresh Japanese drive in the southern province of Kwantung, apparently intended to remove the potential threat of China's army to the railway between Canton and Kowloon, was repulsed Thursday.

A second unsuccessful attack by the Japanese was reported in the communique, which said enemy forces March 19 attacked Chinese defense lines in southern Yunnan, apparently aiming at the town of Talo, whose capture would threaten Chinese strongholds near the Indo-China border. This threat was reported thwarted when a Japanese column that had forced a river crossing near Talo was "surrounded and subsequently annihilated."

Shoot 200 Jap Troops.

The communique said the Japanese suffered heavy casualties and the loss of arms and ammunition.

Chinese forces made sorties against the enemy base of Sinyang, in south Honan province, and killed or wounded 200 Japanese in street fighting here and in the town of Yuho to the northwest. Another Chinese hit and run raiding column was reported to have demolished enemy communications leading to Sinyang.

Destroy 12 Jap Planes.

NEW DELHI, India, March 28 (AP).—British fighter planes, guarding allied advance positions toward the port of Akyab, broke up a Japanese assault by air on Cox's Bazaar yesterday with the destruction of 12 attacking planes, a British communique said today.

The Japanese sent waves of planes against allied installations in the Burmese port on the Bengal coast. Fighters shot down 10 of the bombers and damaged many more of them, while anti-aircraft fire from gunners on the ground and on a steamer in the Naf river brought down the other two.

Four-motored United States Liberators attacked Japanese installations near the Central station in Rangoon "with telling effect" Friday night, an American communique said, and dropped bombs on the Mingaladon air field and wharf area near by. The American planes returned undamaged.

In the raid on Cox's Bazaar, which the communique indicated was a major assault, only slight damage and few casualties were reported, and the British said their fighters escaped without loss or damage.

The R. A. F. raided the Japanese airdrome at Toungoo.

ASSEMBLY ASKS WHY BERMUDA CENSORS CABLES

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

HAMILTON, Bermuda, March 28.—The suppression of two press cables concerning Bermuda's legislators' criticism of the treatment of Canadian and local forces has been followed by notice of a motion in the assembly for a message to the governor asking whether local censorship was responsible.

The criticism in the assembly arose when the officer in command of British troops here, Brig. Gen. H. D. Maconochie, requested that Bermuda allowances for imperial troops be raised 200 per cent and for Bermuda troops 100 per cent. The cables suppressed were for the Canadian press and the Associated Press.

The proposed message to the governor, according to the notice given yesterday, would ask in the name of the assembly why they were not allowed to go forward.

KNUDSEN FINDS 'TOO MANY GOOD TIME CHARLEYS'

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 28 (AP).—There still are "too many good time Charleys" among the rank and file of Americans, Lt. Gen. William S. Kundsen asserted today in calling for "more and more production" of war goods.

The army production chief, here on an inspection tour of midwest industrial plants, declared in an interview that absenteeism in war plants, while a major problem, is only a phase of a broader difficulty.

"A good part of the public—men and women all around us—has not awakened yet to the seriousness of this war," Knudsen said. "There are too many good time Charleys not only at the work benches but among all of us.

"The war is a long way off and we have not begun to feel the hardship. The casualties will bring it home to us, but why do we have to wait until our friends get killed to realize the seriousness of this business?"

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 28.—Rep. Leo E. Allen [R., Ill.] demanded tonight that the Dies committee on un-American activities investigate charges of graft in maritime commission contracts and inquire into the naval construction fees paid Lawrence W. [Chip] Robert, former secretary of the Democratic national committee.

Rep. Leo E. Allen.

Allen made his demand in reply to a speech made by Chairman Martin Dies [D., Tex.] of the committee in the house yesterday. In this speech Dies pointed toward the Republican side of the house and warned:

"You are going to be charged with making blood millionaires if you pass the Ruml plan or the Carlson bill."

Assails War Profiteering.

The Ruml plan is embodied in the Carlson bill.

Allen, chairman of the Illinois Republican congressional delegation, said:

"Neither the Ruml plan nor the Carlson bill fixes the amount of income taxes the taxpayers will have to pay. That amount was fixed by the Democratic controled house ways and means committee.

"Our country today is engaged in a great world war. Millions of our citizens in a truly American way stand tonight on the eve of battle, even on the eve of death.

"If there is an un-American activity rampant today it is grafting on war contracts.

Raps $900,000 Robert Profit.

"Mr. Dies knows all the Democratic party leaders. He knows all about the charges of graft involving the payment of millions of dollars leveled against the maritime commission as reported by the controler general of the United States to the house.

"These millions were paid out illegally, the controler general said, for the building and transfer of merchant ships.

"Mr. Dies knows all about the enormous fees and commissions paid to Lawrence W. [Chip] Robert, former secretary of the Democratic national committee and former assistant secretary of the treasury.

"Chip is in the know in Washington. He has friends in every one of the multitudinous departments and bureaus in this administration. The chairman of the naval affairs committee of the house had stated that Chip Robert made $900,000 on these contracts."

Rep. Allen likened the profits made from war contracts to "the sewer district scandals and the operations of the Kelly-Nash machine Chicago."

Plane Overtakes Train to Aid Stricken Woman

Denver, Colo., March 28 (AP).—An army bomber overtook a train at Kansas City today and sped on to the Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn., with a critically ill Colorado woman. Mrs. Roscoe T. Schafer was placed on the train at Pueblo, her home, after surgeons decided on an operation. After the train left, State Sen. Curtis P. Ritchie learned of her illness and obtained the plane thru aid of army officers at Lowry field.

U. S. BOMBERS HIT SIX TIMES AT JAP BASES IN PACIFIC

Foe Bombs Canton Island and Guadalcanal.

Washington, D. C., March 28 (AP).—Raiding thru the southwest Pacific, American planes hit six times at Japanese air and sea bases, while enemy planes retaliated with two attacks on United States positions in the Solomons and on Canton Island, the navy announced today.

The communique said:

"On March 25 a force of Wildcat fighters strafed a Japanese barge in Roviana lagoon, Munda, on New Georgia Island.

"On the night of March 25 Canton Island in the Phoenix Island group was bombed by two Japanese planes. Light damage was inflicted.

Two Raids on Nauru.

"Additional reports revealed that on the night of March 25 United States planes carried out two bombing attacks against Japanese positions on Nauru Island, instead of one attack as previously reported. In the first of these attacks, navy Catalina patrol bombers started fires. In the second attack [previously reported] Liberator heavy bombers scored hits on enemy installations.

"On the early morning of March 27 seven Japanese planes made five attempts to bomb Guadalcanal Island. In two of these attacks bombs were dropped, killing 1, injuring 13 others, and causing slight material damage.

Start Fires at Vila.

"Avenger bombers, escorted by Airacobra and Wildcat fighters, attacked Japanese positions at Vila, in the central Solomons. Six fires were started. Avenger bombers, escorted by Wildcat fighters, attacked Munda. A supply dump was blown up and a fire started.

"On the same afternoon, Dauntless dive bombers, escorted by Wildcat fighters, bombed and strafed Japanese positions in Ugali, on the northeast coast of Rendova Island in the New Georgia group. One building was destroyed and another was set on fire."

JAPS SINK ALLIED SHIP IN GUINEA; LOSE 25 PLANES

40 Bombers Intercepted at Oro Bay.

ALLIED HDQ. IN AUSTRALIA, March 29 [Monday]—(AP).—Japanese bombers raided Oro bay on the east coast of New Guinea Sunday and sank one merchant ship, the allied command said today.

"Forty enemy bombers, escorted by a strong formation of fighters at midday attacked the [Oro bay] area, sinking one small vessel and damaging another," the communique related. Casualties were light.

"In a series of brilliant interceptions our fighters broke the enemy formations, shooting 25 enemy aircraft out of action. Our own air losses were extremely light."

Hit Gasmata Runway.

Allied heavy bombers raided the Japanase airdrome at Gasmata, New Britain, scoring direct hits on the runway, while medium units carried out a night harassing raid on Cape Gloucester, bombing and strafing enemy installations near the airdrome.

In the Aroe Islands medium bombers executed low level bombing and strafing attacks on the wharf area of Dobo, "causing numerous fires in the buildings and warehouses near the jetty," the communique said.

Bombers Strike Madang.

Allied bombers struck also at Madang on the northeast coast of New Guinea, 350 miles northwest of Port Moresby, causing fires and explosions. At Finschhafen medium bombers bombed and strafed the airdrome and the wharf area in a night attack, starting numerous fires.

"During the day one of our heavy bombers strafed two heavily laden motor barges up the coast, destroying both barges and their contents," the communique said.

TWO WISCONSIN SOLDIERS ROUT JAPS; WIN STARS

ALLIED HDQ. IN AUSTRALIA, March 28 (AP).—Two Wisconsin infantrymen who routed out a Japanese ambush on the Buna trail were awarded silver stars today by Lt. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger. They are Technician Homer D. McGettigan of Darlington, Wis., and Corp. Frank H. Reese of Milwaukee.

McGettigan and Reese won the award for "gallantry in action" near Sinemi plantation on Nov. 18. They, together with another man, "with disregard for their personal safety volunteered to accomplish a mission which consisted of locating an enemy ambush reported to be 1,500 yards from their unit area on the proposed route of advance of the unit the following day," the citation said.

"The three noncommissioned officers, skillfully avoiding enemy outposts by utilizing a narrow path thru the swamp, located the ambush containing machine guns on both sides of the plantation. They approached within 25 yards of the position, and placed a volley of hand weapon fire on it so successfully that there was no return fire. They then returned to their own unit, which, when it approached the position the following day, found that the ambush had been completely evacuated of enemy troops."

ROBBED WHILE HE SLEEPS.

While he slept in his home Saturday night, a thief entered, took $80 cash and clothing valued at $50, Harold McKenna, 70 East Elm street, reported to the Chicago avenue police yesterday.

ASK LAW TO GIVE HINDU WOMEN INHERITANCES

NEW DELHI, India, March 28 (AP).—British officials and modernized Hindus are fighting shoulder to shoulder in the Indian legislature in an effort to advance the emancipation of Hindu women. They are confident of winning a fight to place before the final drafting committee a measure which, in effect, gives to women the right to inherit property on a status almost equal to that of men.

Orthodox Hindus have opposed the measure vigorously, saying that women cannot manage property and asserting that such a right would uproot customs of 3,000 years and destroy the integrity of the Hindu social system.

WALLACE TELLS CHILE ALL MUST SHARE WAR LOAD

Believes Brotherhood of Peoples Near.

SANTIAGO, Chile, March 28 (AP).—United States Vice President Henry A. Wallace expressed conviction in a speech today that a dream of "brotherhood among nations" was about to come true for the Americas, but each nation must bear its just share of the heavy responsibility now hanging over the hemisphere.

He addressed a mass meeting of 100,000 persons in the national stadium.

At the outset he called for a moment of silence as homage to the world's great leaders, naming President Roosevelt, Chiang Kai-shek, "the leaders of free France, and the soviet union," and "also, with my whole heart the magnificent leader of England."

The Vice President told the meeting, organized by the "Union for Victory," that responsibility should be shared by the various nations in proportion to the "grade of evolution" they have reached.

Believes Dream Near Reality.

"Great responsibility is hanging in these moments over all our peoples of the new world as holders of the virtues of occidental culture," the Vice President stated, adding nevertheless that his conviction was growing that the democratic dream "of the brotherhood of nations" was about to come into being.

A feeling of "historic responsibility" has been driven home to all people in the United States, Wallace told the audience. Thus only, he said, can the fact be explained that so soon after it suffered aggression, "a country devoted exclusively to the tasks of peace is today united and ready to eliminate the plague of Naziism and Fascism from the world."

Continental unity now has been added to "internal unification of my country," he said.

Calls Chile "Thought Laboratory."

Calling Chile "a laboratory of American thought," he declared the Chilean people have an unusual "collective capacity to judge and face the tragic reality of our time—the gravest the Christian world has known."

Gestapo Orders Church Meetings Held at Night

BERNE, Switzerland, March 28.—Meetings of German home missionary societies may be held in the future only before 8 o'clock in the morning and after 7 o'clock at night by order of the Gestapo. The order, says the International Catholic Press agency, instructs Catholic authorities in Germany to confine church meetings to hours which will not conflict with civilian labor draft.

Two U. S. Officers Killed as Aussie Transport Crashes

LONDON, March 29 [Monday]—(AP).—The British news agency Reuters reported today from Melbourne that 23 members of the allied forces, including two United States army officers, had been killed Saturday in the crash of an Australian army transport plane near Brisbane. The dispatch did not identify any of those aboard the plane.

War the Only Purpose of Russians, Says Kalinin

MOSCOW, March 28 (AP).—Announcing in Red Star that public donations to the Red army totaled several billion rubles, President Michael Kalinin said today that "the patriotic war has become the chief and probably at present the only purpose of the soviet people, and we will be victorious."

ATLANTA'S GUNS BLAST JAPS TILL PAINT BURNS OFF

Shell Guadalcanal, Then Fight Bombers.

chine guns. Palm fronds flew. And so did Japs.

We had intended knocking off at 7:30 a. m. to stand farther out during the regular morning air raid. But the marine major was in such a state of ecstasy, beaming and rubbing his hands, that we continued until almost 9 o'clock. Capt. S. P. Jenkins of the Atlanta was beaming also and Rear Adm. Norman Scott was giving every one a pat on the back.

Thrilled by Nature's Fire.

Smoke still was boiling up over many square miles of Jap held territory when marine boats came out to escort the major ashore. That big, tough marine had tears in his eyes. He couldn't thank us enough.

Our fantail and decks now were feet deep in shell cases and empty powder cans. They were running with water that had been kept streaming on our hot guns. Our gun crews were dog tired and drenched with sweat—and grinning from ear to ear.

We shared candy, cigarets, and ice cream with the Guadalcanal marines manning the boats. The next day marine forces advanced more than two miles without opposition into the territory we had shelled.

Our mission accomplished, we streaked off to a base to fill our depleted magazines. The Atlanta in two hours had shot up more ammunition than many ships are able to carry.

The next night we had a Halloween experience so startling that some of the fellows thought at first we were having a brush with the supernatural. We were cruising along, engaged in sight setting and fuse setting practice, when the ship suddenly was lighted up by a blue glare. A pillar of blue fire seemed to extend from the surface of the water to the top of the mast on the port side. A ball of glaring blue hovered at the end of the yardarm.

Back to Guadalcanal.

It was St. Elmo's fire, an electrical phenomenon, the senior officers explained. It sometimes occurs on land during storms, but I never had seen it before.

During the Solomons campaign four new officers caught up with the Atlanta after a long chase. They were Lt. [j. g.] Hereford and Ensigns Gratten, Colleran, and Underwood. The latter two had been in two major surface and air engagements on the way. They were fresh from their graduation at the naval academy, class of '43, the academy's first three year group.

Leaving our base fully reloaded, we steamed north in company with a number of heavy cruisers and transports, the latter carrying machinery, heavy guns, food, and other supplies and equipment for Guadalcanal. Our next assignment was to stand by while it was unloaded.

We were so engaged on Armistice morning. The Japs, however, apparently didn't know what day it was. A little after 10:30 a. m. a force of 22 planes appeared on the horizon. There were a dozen Zeros escorting 10 dive bombers. Squadrons of our fighters intercepted. The Zeros pulled away to meet them and the bombers came on alone.

Jap Armada Sighted.

I had a glimpse of Zeros falling all over the seascape when the dive bombers began peeling off and hurtling down toward us. The Mighty A and the other ships turned loose everything we had. Our bursts met them quite high up and most of them completed their dives in fragments. A lone Jap zigzagged his way to safety. The Zero escort suffered heavy losses.

We felt mighty good. This had been the most appropriate celebration of Armistice day that any of us ever had been a part of. We continued in high spirits until early afternoon. Then we saw something that had a profoundly sobering effect upon us.

Twenty-five miles to the west, a great air armada was heading toward us. We could see the planes perfectly in the clear air, streaming in thru a gap in the mountains. There were 27 heavy, two-engined navy type 1 bombers, with an escort of 25 Zeros. The Japs really were throwing their weight around this time. All batteries were swung to the ready and our fighters streaked off to meet the armada.

As had happened in the morning, the Zeros tangled with our fighters and in a few seconds an all out dogfight was whirling and swinging across the sea. The bombers came steadily on, deviating not one point from their course. It was almost as tho they were passing in review. They were five miles up and coming fast. While they still appeared to be out of range the Mighty A turned loose.

They were four miles off as well as five miles up. But in a few seconds our bursts were right up there among them. One big bomber heeled over and fell out of formation, plunging into Savo sound. I'd never known of anti-aircraft fire bringing down a plane at that height and distance.

The others came right on and passed over Henderson air field. Such a hell of smoke and dirt shot up that it obscured the field and I feared that no one had lived thru it over there. As it turned out, however, there were practically no casualties.

A few seconds more our fighters, having disposed of the Zeros, were taking the bombers. The Japs' progress from then on was marked by spiraling smoke plumes and heavy splashes in the blue water. There were three or four splashes while we could still see them. Only 17 of the 27 were able to fight again after this working over by guns and planes.

We were to see those 17 again the next day, however. We had wanted action and we were getting it. And the Mighty A was entering her last hours.

CHARGE BRITISH DROP FAKE FOOD CARDS ON BERLIN

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The Berlin radio said last night that British airmen who handed the German capital its heaviest bombing Saturday night also dropped faked food rationing tickets. The broadcast said the newspaper Berliner Morgenpost pointed out to its readers that the enemy "obviously is employing such tricks in an effort to muddle up the German food planning system."

The broadcast said persons attempting to use the counterfeit cards could be charged as war saboteurs, punishable by death, and reminded persons finding them to surrender them immediately to the authorities.

German newspapers previously had told of the discovery of faked ration cards at Essen following British raids on that city.

BAR TO PROVIDE FREE LAW ADVICE FOR ALL TROOPS

Civilian Lawyer for Every Camp.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 28.—Free legal assistance for all military personnel, whether at home or overseas, will be provided under a program announced today sponsored jointly by the war department and the American Bar association.

Legal advice and assistance will be given on all personal legal affairs, including such matters as wills, powers of attorney, family relationships, benefits under the soldiers' and sailors' civil relief act, installment purchases, taxes, real and personal property, litigation and other legal problems.

Office at Every Post.

Legal assistance offices will be established at each post, camp, and station in the United States. If the commanding officer of a unit overseas deems it advisable to establish a legal assistance office for his unit he may do so.

The offices will be under the general supervision of the judge advocate general. A qualified commissioned officer who is also licensed attorney will be appointed by the commanding officers of various posts to serve as legal assistance officer. He will be assisted by volunteer civilian lawyers from nearby communities who have been designated by the state bar associations.

Expected to Aid Morale.

The civilian volunteers will visit the post's legal assistance office at regular intervals to give any assistance required by military personnel at that post.

The plan was adopted to help relieve the soldiers of worries about their personal and family problems, a step toward higher morale.

U. S. PLANES RAID ROUEN; FIGHT OFF NAZI AVIATORS

Railway Yards Bombed; Five Aircraft Lost.

AT A U. S. BOMBER BASE IN ENGLAND, March 28 (AP).—American Flying Fortresses and Liberators made their sixth daylight attack on the big railway yards of Rouen, France, today, battling their way back against strong fighter opposition with the loss of one bomber and four fighters.

A number of enemy fighters were downed, and enemy fighter opposition was "fierce and prolonged," returning pilots said, altho one group completed its mission without firing a gun.

Another group had to fight its way from the target thru a swarm of 30 German craft which followed until the bombers were within sight of the English coast.

Bombing results against the railway yards serving the main lines of northern France, Germany, and Holland were described officially as "good."

"Softest Touch Yet."

Lt. Col. Charles Marion of Detroit described the raid as "the softest touch yet," because no enemy fighter approached within range of his ship.

Second Lt. Roger F. Moran of Horn[illegible], N. Y., navigator of the Fortress "[illegible] Butterfly," described it as "[illegible]—mighty cold but the [illegible] was mighty hot."

First [illegible] of Young[illegible] of the Fortress "Butc[illegible]" had seven encounte[illegible] aircraft, "but we d[illegible]. It was the first t[illegible] had ever seen the Jerries turn away and quit. They simply couldn't stand the fire power or marksmanship we were giving them."

Navigator Lt. Wilbert Smith of Ashland, Wis., had his 50 caliber machine gun almost shot out of his hands by a 20 millimeter shell from a Focke-Wulf—it clipped eight inches off the muzzle, but he didn't get a scratch.

Engine Sheds Hit.

"A rough but very satisfactory trip," commented 1st Lt. James E. Hopkins of Cayuga, Tex., a Fortress pilot.

First Lt. Eugene J. Pollack of New Orleans, navigator flying his 21st mission, said he saw bombs burst in the target area.

"ME-109s and FW-190s were thick about us," added Maj. Thomas K. McGehee of Greenville, Ala.

"One big cluster of bombs hit on a group of engine sheds," said Lt. John W. Beaucham of Coolidge, Ariz.

Sergt. Roy E. Smith of Indianapolis, Ind., a ball turret gunner, told of seeing flames from an explosion in the railroad yards.

"Smoke swirled up nearly two miles above the target," said Sergt. John P. Quinlan of Yonkers, N. Y., tail gunner on his 19th raid. "Two Focke-Wulfs peeled down toward the rear of our ship. I fired 200 rounds at the first one that came in. It went into a dive and burst into flames beneath us. The second one knocked both my guns out of commission."

Rotterdam Is Bombed.

"Hunk-O-Junk," piloted by 1st Lt. Harold P. O'Neill of Syracuse, N. Y., claimed two enemy aircraft destroyed. 2d Lt. Peter Branch of Washington, D. C., the navigator, said, "One that I got was a fluke. He came in and flew formation with us about 20 feet away. I poured 80 rounds into him. The tail gunner said he went down spinning."

The tail gunner, Sergt. Charles S. Kindle of Bronx, N. Y., claimed the second enemy aircraft destroyed by "Hunk-O-Junk."

The R. A. F. returned to the round the clock offensive tonight with attacks on targets in Holland and Belgium and German radio stations went off the air, indicating that additional allied aerial blows were being struck.

American built Ventura bombers of the R. A. F. attacked shipping and shipbuilding yards at Rotterdam this afternoon and the results were described as "excellent."

At dusk, Mosquito bombers struck at industrial objectives at Liege, Belgium. The air ministry said two bombers were missing from these operations, as well as a fighter plane.

A few enemy planes crossed the East Anglian coast of Britain tonight, but were turned back by a heavy barrage in the vicinity of one inland town. Incendiaries were dropped.

Army Postal Chief in Egypt Seeks Way to Speed Mail

CAIRO, Egypt, March 28 (AP).—Brig. Gen. Clayton S. Adams, director of the United States army postal service, arrived today to confer with Maj. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, commander of United States forces in the middle east, and Brig. Gen. R. W. Crawford, chief of the services of supply here, on means of improving the postal service. Gen. Adams said mail was flown to the middle east faster than to any other war theater, but he urged more liberal use of V-mail as a space conservation measure.

48 KRUPP SHOPS AT ESSEN RAZED IN BIG RAF RAID

British Reveal 196,000 Sq. Yards Damaged.

LONDON, March 28 (AP).—Buildings in Germany's giant Krupp works covering 196,000 square yards—including 12 main shops and 36 others—were destroyed or damaged in the 1,000 ton R. A. F. raid on Essen March 12, it was disclosed officially today.

The devastation was considerably more than that in the raid there a week earlier when 136,000 square yards were damaged, the air ministry news service said.

In a detailed interpretation of reconnaissance photographs taken on the day after the March 12 attack, showing widespread wreckage in other industrial areas of the city, the news service said the buildings and installations of ten collieries were hit and many locomotives, freight car shops and sulphuric acid works put out of action.

Roof Burned Off Offices.

The pictures showed many fires still burning on the day after the raid, the news service reported, adding that the roofs of two large new shops were hit and a railway signal shop destroyed over an area of 5,400 square yards. Half of the roof of the administrative building was burned out. A machine and wire rolling mill also was destroyed by fire.

Several complete trains, as well as odd coaches, were gutted or destroyed by fire. About 120 huts in camps were destroyed, causing the Nazis to lose accommodations for an estimated 6,000 men.

Big Drydock Useless.

The great St. Nazaire drydock, largest on Europe's Atlantic seaboard, still lies in disuse a year after its gates were blown up by British Commandos who used a dynamite laden destroyer, the Campbelltown, formerly the U. S. S. Buchanan, a United States air force officer said tonight in a BBC broadcast.

The officer described the daring operation by Britain's three services as "one of the shrewdest blows the enemy has suffered in the battle of the Atlantic."

COUNTY POLICE ARREST SEVEN IN TAVERN RAIDS

Seven tavern operators in the northwestern section of the county were seized on charges of gambling and selling liquor to minors Saturday night and early yesterday by county highway police.

John Olson, 50 years old, owner of a tavern at Gifford avenue and Lake street, Bartlett township; Albert Wagner, 49, who was arrested with Olson, and Orville Campbell, 39, owner of a tavern at 7446 Grand avenue, were charged with operating dice games. Campbell also was charged with liquor sales to minors.

Others arrested as liquor law violators are Frank Hayes, 52, of 7200 North Harlem avenue; Carl Olson, 39, of 7330 North avenue; Harry E. Birtman, 37, of 1621 Thatcher road, Elwood Park, and Joseph Miniscolo, 40, of 7410 Grand avenue. The seven will be arraigned Wednesday in the Morton Grove Police court.

Recognizes Ex-Chicagoan in Tribune War Photograph

Mrs. Herman Wresch, 5819 Manton avenue, recognized her brother-in-law, a British army officer and former Chicagoan, in a SUNDAY TRIBUNE photograph showing him giving first aid to the driver of a British truck blown up by a land mine on a North African battlefield. The officer is Capt. Harold Lambert, 43 years old, an Englishman, who formerly was a credit manager for an oil company here. His wife, Bonnie, and their three sons, Hartley, 13, John, 9, and Wesley, 3, live at Osgood, Ind.

REDS SMASH NAZI BLOWS AT DONETZ RIVER DEFENSES

Germans Claim Town in Bryansk Sector.

LONDON, March 29 [Monday]—(AP).—Russian troops smashed diminishing German efforts to force their Donetz river line east of Kharkov in the Ukraine and scored local gains on the central front, Moscow announced today, while the German high command said its troops had recaptured Sevsk in a Red army salient 80 miles south of Bryansk.

The regular Moscow midnight communique recorded by the soviet radio monitor here said there were no substantial changes on the long front, but that one German infantry company was wiped out in the Chuguev sector 22 miles southeast of Kharkov in an attempt to cross to the eastern bank of the northern Donetz.

Pinch Off Nazi Wedge.

In another sector where the Germans had driven a wedge into Russian positions to occupy the outskirts of a village, a Red army counterattack killed 300 Nazis and pinched off the wedge, the communique said.

Two hundred Germans on reconnaissance in the Belgorod sector 50 miles north of Nazi-held Kharkov also were killed by one soviet unit, it said.

The Russians did not confirm the fall of Sevsk which is 170 miles northwest of Kharkov and at the end of a Russian salient driven west of Kursk. For weeks the Russians in this area had threatened to sever the Bryansk-Kiev railway which lies only 20 miles west of Sevsk.

The Germans said the town fell after a bitter house-to-house fight lasting several days.

Hampered by Spring Thaws.

In the central front drive toward Smolensk soviet troops for some time have been hampered by spring thaws which bogged down armored equipment and even wagons.

The midnight bulletin said several hundred Germans were killed in yesterday's fighting on this front but termed these battles of minor importance. The noon communique yesterday said seven more villages had been seized, however, and the Russians last were reported only about 32 miles northeast of Smolensk.

For two days now the soviet communiques have said no essential changes were made on the front, and there were many indications that muddy roads would curtail military operations for some time.

New Hard Fights Expected.

The German radio however said that "the decrease of large scale operations in the east cannot veil the fact that new heavy struggles are to be expected in the immediate future," and suggested the Germans were preparing new blows.

A Red Star [army newspaper] dispatch from the Kuban front in the Caucasus said German resistance was increasing as the Russians penetrated westward toward the Black sea naval base of Novorossisk and the Kerch straits. Altho the Russians had broken thru heavy fortifications 16 and 38 miles northeast of Novorossisk, the Russian armies still were forced to fight thru swamp lands, rice fields, and a network of flooded streams.

Aside from the weather, the Germans' heavy losses in recent weeks on the southern front may have had something to do with slackening of their operations.

Tass, official soviet news agency, said the Germans in four days of fighting from March 19 to 23 lost 140 tanks, 72 guns, and 8,000 killed in the area north of Zhizdra, 32 miles north of Bryansk.

GESTAPO HANGS 3 STUDENTS AS HITLER ENEMIES

Young Socialites Seized; Munich Depressed.

BY GEORGE AXELSSON.

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, March 28.—Three young students of Munich university were sentenced to death and hanged last week after the gestapo had discovered an anti-Nazi group within the school which authored and distributed seditious tracts among the students.

This information which your correspondent has received from private channels comes from a reliable source in the Bavarian capital. A number of prominent students were arrested, among them a Count Metternich who was later released, however. But it is clear that the gestapo may designate still more victims for the hangman from among those now held on suspicion of being implicated in the affair.

The university was closed for the day and when classes reopened many students were missing, prompting the belief that they had been arrested.

Students Socially Prominent.

Anti-Nazi tracts violently attacking the régime and calling Hitler and his lieutenants murderers and thieves have been regularly distributed at the university during the last few months, your correspondent is told. The anti-Nazi faction of the school included many of the most socially prominent students.

By having the ring leaders hanged, the gestapo deliberately chose the most ignominious method of putting a condemned person to death. Hanging is usally reserved for the lowest of civilian criminals.

The university affair has caused much uneasy comment in Munich where the people's morale was already sufficiently depressed by the recent destructive royal air force raid on that city.

Student Slackers Hunted.

As a result of the Munich incident, universities all over Germany are now being combed for slackers. The Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung says that students taking "nonessential subjects" and whose attitude and low marks stamp them as undesirable students, must now be weeded out and transferred to war industries.

Propaganda Minister Goebbels' flirtation with the working classes at the expense of the "idle rich" in the process of which he has repeatedly scored what he calls wealthy loafers, principally society women, has now had the result that other classes of women cannot show themselves on the streets of Berlin without being insulted or even maltreated by mobs.

HIGH SOCIALISTS IN LONDON ASSAIL RED EXECUTIONS

Say Labor Leaders Not Nazi Agents.

LONDON, March 28.—A message to the New York massmeeting scheduled this week to protest against the execution of the Jewish Polish Socialist leaders, Henrick Erlich and Victor Alter, was read tonight by the labor party leader, George Dallas, as chairman at a gathering of international Socialists commemorating victory of the soviet. Sharing the horror and indignation over the execution of the two Polish leaders, the message assured that the Socialist fight will continue against Hitlerite Germany until complete victory is won.

Weighing every word lest their protest be taken as anti-Russian propaganda, men of the highest repute in the international socialist world spoke gravely in defense of the memory of the two men who were accused of Quisling activities and executed.

"Have we the right to express our indignation and protest?" said Camile Huysmans, president of the Socialist international and former president of the Belgian diet [parliament].

"We Do Not Hesitate."

"We are placed in a difficult position. If we protest we will be accused in certain quarters of trying to disrupt the allied front and of not recognizing the big part played by the Russian army in the common liberation fight. If we do not protest we must consider ourselves cowards and traitors to our friends' sacred memory. We do not hesitate. We are not cowards, we refused to remain mute when our allies commit such errors, nay crimes.

"The difference between Social-Democrats and Communists is not only in political conception and methods but in humanitarian approach. Once Litvinov, while disgraced, said to a friend: 'Social Democrats are inferior to Communists in handling affairs in so far as the Social Democrats do not have the courage to execute a Communist while the Communist would not hesitate a moment in shooting a Socialist.'

Execution Not Political Error.

"In the eyes of Communists, Democrats are traitors to the working class and dangerous people to be removed, yet Lenin before the previous war claimed to be a real democrat and a champion of Poland's independence. Stalin would not sing the same tune today. In 1907 the same Lenin was the author of a resolution condemning the death penalty.

"Nobody even in Russia believes Ehrlich and Alter to have been Hitler agents. The execution was not a political error in a disturbing time—it was part of their system."

YANKS ADVANCE 20 MI. IN TUNISIA; SEIZE FONDOUK

British Fight Way to Edge of El Hamma.

mel had planned to employ to stave off just such an outflanking movement as that which now threatened almost hourly to trap him fore and aft in the Mareth fortifications and knock out his supply port of Gabes.

Gen. Montgomery, mixing his tactics like a smart quarterback when near the goal line, attacked the Mareth line itself from a new direction—south of the Mareth road — and his battle hardened veterans gained ground and rounded up prisoners. There were no further reports from the Wadi Zigzaou sector, between the coastal road and the sea, where Montgomery's initial advance a week ago was largely wiped out by enemy counter-attacks.

In northern Tunisia the British 1st army smashed back the Germans of Col. Gen. Jurgen von Arnim in the Djebel Abiod sector some 50 miles southwest of Bizerte and gained their objectives despite strong enemy resistance, the allied communique said.

Competent observers said the breaks at last were going in favor of the British and American forces, which gained valuable strategic advantages after a week of some of the fiercest fighting Africa has seen.

Air Force Defies Winds.

The desert khamseen, an enervating wind from the south which raises thick sandstorms, has been going full blast in southern Tunisia for eight days, but has not prevented the allies' western desert air force from dealing steady punishment to the enemy.

P-40 fighter-bombers attacked objectives at Gabes yesterday, destroying two Junkers 88s and one Messerschmitt 210 in aerial combats for the loss of two allied ships. Hurricane-bombers escorted by Spitfires attacked enemy machine gun positions northeast of Maknassy, where the American advance toward the coast has been temporarily blocked, and also damaged railway rolling stock at Mezzouna.

In a successful defense of allied shipping off the Algerian coast, R. A. F. Spitfires and Hurricanes yesterday shot down six enemy bombers and torpedo bombers without themselves suffering a loss.

Strike Repeated Blows.

Medium and heavy bombers struck at enemy installations and concentrations thruout the Gabes-El Hamma area.

The attacks by the western desert air force which assisted the 8th army's desert column to bypass the Mareth line and break thru to El Hamma were praised by Gen. Montgomery as "support that has never to my knowledge been achieved before."

A congratulatory message from Montgomery to the air force commander, Air Vice Marshal Harry Broadhurst, was released along with an official report of the aerial onslaught wich smashed the Nazi tank and motor concentrations.

Montgomery's message specifically referred to the air action of Friday when, for two and a half hours in the late afternoon, three big attacks by fighter-escorted light bombers and seven bombing and strafing attacks by large formations of fighter-bombers and fighters were launched at enemy positions south of El Hamma.

The official report said it was conservatively estimated that between 80 and 100 enemy vehicles were destroyed in the onslaught and another 200 damaged. By nightfall the enemy forces were in retreat and British troops had broken thru the formerly strong positions. Jammed with fleeing enemy transport, the road north to El Hamma, was then strafed intensively.

NAZI AND ITALIAN CLAIMS.

A DNB [German] news agency dispatch broadcast by the Berlin radio said German troops had evacuated advance positions in northern Tunisia after coming under flanking fire from British artillery. The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, also reported that American troops on Saturday occupied an important height in the Maknassy sector "threatening to open a flank of the German defensive system," but asserted that German forces recaptured the height Saturday night. A gap made by the British 8th army on Saturday south of El Hamma was reported to have been closed by counter-attacking axis troops.

Allied commanders have thrown new and powerful forces into the battle of Tunisia, but they are "strongly held by axis troops," the Italian high command said in a communique broadcast from Rome. It offered no details.

Italian torpedo planes were claimed to have sunk three ships totaling 22,000 tons and set another afire in an attack upon a large allied convoy off the Algerian coast.

German planes sank a medium sized ship and damaged three others in an attack on another convoy in the western Mediterranean, the Rome bulletin said.

SKIPPER OF LOST CARRIER HORNET WINS NAVY CROSS

Washington, D. C., March 28 (AP).—Rear Adm. Charles P. Mason has been awarded the navy cross "for extraordinary heroism and outstanding courage" while commanding the aircraft carrier Hornet during the battle of Santa Cruz Islands, the navy announced today.

Rear Adm. C. P. Mason.

Mason, 52 years old, lives at Pensacola, Fla. The Hornet was sunk by enemy bombers after her planes and guns had battled a number of Japanese surface and aircraft in the engagement last Oct. 26.

The citation said Mason "directed the fighting of his ship with cool and aggressive determination. The air forces under his command succeeded in severely damaging and possibly sinking a large number of enemy warships, including an aircraft carrier, three heavy cruisers and one light cruiser."

Police Hunt for Rapist in Northwest Side Area

Warren avenue police last night were searching for a man, described as short and of dark complexion, who earlier raped and robbed a woman in a vacant lot near Western and Warren avenues, according to her report. She told police the man followed her out of a tavern. When she refused to talk to him he struck her and dragged her to the vacant lot where he attacked her, she said. He took her purse containing $15, she told police.

ALGIERS, Algeria, March 27—[Delayed].—This is the story of a Chicagoan in the Casbah, this city's native quarter which has been glamorized in the movies.

But the Chicagoan—Sergt. Sten Stromblad of 603 Roscoe street—doesn't think the Casbah is glamorous. The fact is that Stromblad was a plumber in civilian life and would like to build a plumbing system in this old community of a thousand smells and noises.

I met Stromblad at an American Red Cross club and accompanied him on a tour of the Casbah. Neither here nor elsewhere in Algiers did we encounter Hedy Lamarr from the picture of the same name. The Arab women of the Casbah are heavily veiled with only their dark eyes showing.

Arab Street Merchants.

The cobbled streets of the Casbah are filled with refuse. Food is offered for sale near these piles. The streets are crowded with Arab men wearing ragged robes and dirty tarbooshes who cry their wares and pluck at your sleeve.

"This part of the dark continent seems to be wired for sound and odor," Stromblad remarked.

A skinny Arab boy who couldn't have been more than 7 years old clutched at Stromblad yelling: "Taback! Taback!" My companion gave him a cigaret. The youngster lit it and puffed heavily, the smoke swirling about his already weak eyes.

"Right from our salvage dump," Stromblad said a moment later, pointing at the empty American tin cans in front of a two story building which leaned precariously over the street. The Arabs fashion tin cans into coffee pots and display them for sale. Nearby an old auto wheel had been worked into a grindstone.

"Alms for Love of Allah."

An Arab seated cross-legged in the street was crying: "Alms, for the love of Allah!" We each gave him a few francs and Stromblad commented: "That fellow could probably buy and sell us. Most likely he owns a villa by the sea."

On another street a nattily dressed Frenchman rubbed his hair with some perfume he had just purchased from an Arab. A few feet away stood the most underfed horse I have ever seen. Stromblad took off his hat to see if he could hang it on the horse's haunch. He could.

As we were leaving the Casbah, we encountered an alert looking Arab and Stromblad decided to try what he fondly believed were a few words of Arabic on this fellow. The native looked at us in bewilderment, then smiled and in the best pawn brokers' row English asked: "Hey, buddy! Wanna buy a watch?"

Seeks Annulment

PAT GARFIELD.

New York, March 28 [Special].—Blonde Pat Garfield, a model, will move again next Friday to liquidate her marriage with a man who, she claims, refused to become a father. Her attorney will ask in Supreme court, Manhattan, that the findings of Referee Richard P. Lyden be confirmed and his client be awarded an interlocutory decree of annulment. Pat wants no money from Fred C. Jacoby Jr., the husband. She charges he was very much in debt, refused to maintain a home for his wife, refused to have children, and he was addicted to liquor.

MOSCOW SCOFFS AT CLAIMS OF 'POLISH NOBLES'

MOSCOW, March 28 (AP).—The writer of an article in Pravda, Communist party newspaper, sarcastically referred to "Polish nobles" in London celebrating the anniversary of the capture of Lwow 600 years ago, and said it should be recalled that Lwow was founded by the Russian prince, Daniel Galiczky, 700 years ago.

The article, the sharpest yet of numerous recent statements on the Ukrainian border situation in which the future boundary between Russia and a liberated Poland evidently is in dispute, referred to the London group as "only a gang of dead Polish aristocrats," and said Poland "may find its salvation only in victory of freedom loving people and victory of the Red army."

The writer, S. Ivanenko, said the people of Lwow, situated in that part of Poland occupied by Russia in 1939, had dreamed for 600 years of regaining their independence and greatly rejoiced when they finally were able to become a part of the Russian nation.

TELLS OF YANKS' MARCH ON HOLY CITY OF TUNISIA

Bothered More by Heat than Axis Guns.

BY HAROLD V. BOYLE.

WITH U. S. FORCES IN CENTRAL TUNISIA, March 27 [Delayed]—(AP).—By truck and afoot United States infantrymen marched 20 miles from Hadjeb el Aioun today along the ancient route to the holy city of Kairouan, seven visits to which the Moslems reckon as the equivalent of one pilgrimage to Mecca.

Rather than the religious benefits accruing from the trek to the second most holy Mohammedan city, the soldiers were interested in the military rewards in occupying the area used for months by the Nazis as a key rail and road center and springboard for some of the heaviest air attacks against the allies.

[Allied headquarters announced Sunday that American forces had captured Fondouk, southwest of Kairouan.]

The attack was the third launched in 10 days by the American forces, who previously tightened a noose on German and Italian units to the south by a successful drive east of Maknassy and a spectacular smash thru axis hill positions east of El Guetar.

Limited by Their Packs.

A hot spring sun gave the sweating riflemen more trouble than the relatively meager enemy mortar, machine gun, and artillery fire along the historic Kairouan road and their progress was more limited by the weight of the packs on their backs than by shot and shell.

Driving up front we met a half-track, named "Hoboken Hobo," outside of Hadjeb el Aioun and the radio operator told us that "everything is okay ahead, but we ran into 15 or 20 enemy vehicles in a cactus patch on our right flank and we are rooting them out."

Farther up we came across a sight which remains the most moving of the war — long parallel columns marching silently forward thru swirling, yellow dust clouds to battle. As an ambulance came back carrying wounded soldiers the long line of men moved aside to give it room without even a glance.

Iowans Tell of Action.

As our jeep neared the front, Sergt. Folmer Weddum, of Elk Horn, Ia., told us that mortar fire "is beginning to give us some trouble. I thought once they were going to get me and Sergt. Richard Ballard of Clinton, Ia."

"An ambulance driver just told us an interesting story," Weddum continued. "A German up ahead shot two American soldiers. One told the driver he wasn't so mad at being wounded himself but he wasn't going to let any German shoot up his buddy, so he emptied his rifle into the German, practically blowing his chest out."

The two sergeants drove forward with a companion, Pvt. Melvin Downey, of Clarion, Ia.

Dismounting from the jeep, another correspondent and I plodded more than a mile to reach a ridge from which we could see the farthest advanced elements in the plains below, only two miles from the French village of Fondouk.

U. S. Artillery Opens Up.

Across the road reënforcements being brought up dived to the ground when an axis machine gun opened up, but its chattering soon was silenced.

A cluster of five axis shells burst in a white cloud behind them, but none was hit. American artillery began laying down a systematic barrage on the hills to the right, from which had come some bothersome small arms fire, and shells searching for foxholes of axis infantrymen climbed the slopes as if on an escalator.

Turning back from the ridge one could still see the scattered forms of American doughboys advancing thru the dusk and murk of mist and wind-blown sand.

The way back led past 12 crude wooden crosses on which had been lettered in pencil the names of French soldiers who died earlier in the campaign, trying to keep these hills from the axis.

On a stone marker, which read Kairouan 43 kilometers [26 miles], sat Medical Pvt. Gordon July of Spring Valley, Minn., looking across the fields patched with the gold of tiny yellow flowers and the foamy white of sweet smelling alfa grass.

"Just waiting for an ambulance which went forward to pick up six casualties," he said. "With the exception of a fellow who was hit in the hand with a shell splinter they are the only casualties our particular unit had all day. That's the way we want it. This is one business in which we don't like to have many customers."

ALLIED PATRIOTS ABROAD PROTEST OWI PROPAGANDA

Broadcasts Extolling Reds Disillusion Nazi Foes.

Big Radio 'Offensive'

LONDON, March 28 (AP).—A big radio "offensive" in which OWI programs originating in New York will be rebroadcast each week to the continent by the British Broadcasting corporation was announced tonight. There will be morning and evening broadcasts in virtually every European tongue, transmitted on long wave, medium wave, and short wave, and on many frequencies of each. Included will be ten broadcasts weekly in Finnish and daily programs in Portuguese. Broadcasts to Spain, Bulgaria, and Hungary will begin later.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 28.—Word has been received here from the underground of patriots operating in various occupied countries in Europe that injudicious American radio propaganda, extolling the soviets, is doing more harm than good to the allied cause.

The New Deal propagandizers, in their enthusiastic acclaim of the soviet war effort, are reported to be playing directly into the hands of Nazi propagandists with the result that the inhabitants of the conquered nations, who dread communism, are becoming disillusioned.

German broadcasts to occupied countries are harping on the theme that Britain has betrayed the small nations into the hands of the bolsheviks and that the deal has been made with the consent of the United States.

Praise All Things Russian.

Citizens of occupied countries, who are compelled to listen to German broadcasts, would ordinarily dismiss such information as propaganda calculated to deceive them, but they find American broadcasts, to which they listen secretly, apparently confirming the Nazis by praising all things Russian.

For years the citizens of such occupied countries as Poland, Lithuania, Czecho-Slovakia, Holland, Belgium, Norway, and Denmark have been bred to a horror of communism. When they get the notion thru Nazis and American broadcasts they are being sold out to the Reds, they choose to throw their lots with the Nazis, according to information received here.

It is reported that the OWI broadcasts are increasing the efficiency of the slave labor in German industry. In deciding to throw their lot with the Nazis as against the Reds, many captive workers no longer attempt to delay production thru various subterfuges, such as sneezing.

7 Million in Industry.

According to official German announcements some 7 million men from occupied countries are at work in German industry. The bulk of these are from eastern Europe, the Poles alone numbering 2 million. There are about 1½ million Frenchmen, the largest block of enforced laborers.

A sneeze multiplied 7 million times, according to the underground can put a sizable crimp in German production. There are similar forms of delay employed by captive workers to the exasperation of Nazi production bosses.

According to information received here from the underground these practices have fallen off considerably with the result that Nazi production has become more efficient as a result of the Nazi propaganda line being unwittingly supported by the OWI broadcasts.

This is not the first time that OWI propaganda has been questioned. The OWI propaganda set up was recently reorganized as a result of complaints from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander in chief of the allied forces in North Africa.

Eisenhower Protests.

Eisenhower protested that he could take care of the Nazis in front of his army, but could not protect his back from OWI broadcasts. He complained the broadcasts were doing more injury to the American expeditionary force than to enemy morale.

At the time when Eisenhower was dealing with Adm. Jean Darlan and his successor, Gen. Henri Giraud, OWI was blasting Vichyites over the air waves directed at Africa. Eisenhower charged that the OWI propaganda was inept and silly.

The general executed a skilful coup which saved many American lives and much time by having Darlan call off French resistance to the invasion of the French African colonies. Thruout the delicate negotiations and in the critical days of the French-American rapprochement, OWI flooded the airwaves with propaganda calculated to destroy French confidence in Eisenhower, the general complained.

SERGT. FRANK KRULIC IS REPORTED MISSING IN ACTION IN AFRICA

Sergt. Frank E. Krulic, 28 years old, was reported missing in action after a battle in North Africa Feb. 15, his wife, Frances, of 1234 South Central Park avenue, said yesterday. He was employed by a Chicago packing firm before he was inducted Dec. 3, 1941. Sergt. Krulic, a native of Johnson City, Ill., is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Gelo, 6247 South Kilpatrick avenue, and has two sisters and a brother. In his last letter he said he hoped they never would be exposed to raids by Stukas and Messerschmitts. "They are about as tame as hornets," he wrote.

TWO DESTROYERS AND TWO ESCORT SHIPS LAUNCHED

Newark, N. J., March 28 (AP).—Four warships — two destroyers and twin destroyer escorts—were launched today at yards of the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company to set a company record of 11 launchings in 29 days.

The destroyers Levy and McConnell were the first ships built in the company's new Port Newark yard. The destroyers are the Black and Chauncey. The Black honors a New Jersey naval hero of the present war, Lt. Comm. Hugh David Black, who died in the torpedoing of the destroyer Jacob Jones. The Chauncey was named for the late Capt. Isaac Chauncey.

Naming of the convoy guard Levy was recommended by the Jewish War Veterans of the United States. It honors the late Commodore Uriah P. Levy, who was credited with having the navy abolish floggings in 1850. The McConnell was christened by Mrs. Riley Franklin McConnell of San Francisco, widow of Capt. McConnell.

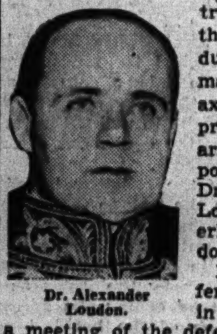
Ex-Artist from Chicago Is Held by Japs, Parents Told

Pvt. Frank J. Katauskas, 24 years old, a magazine illustrator before he joined the marine corps three years ago, was taken prisoner by the Japanese after the fall of the Philippines, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Katauskas Sr., of 4622 South Wood street, were informed yesterday.

CONTROL OF NAZI INDUSTRY URGED BY DUTCH ENVOY

London Offers After War Plan to Allies.

Washington, D. C., March 28 (AP).—Establishment of an international trusteeship over the post-war industries of Germany and other axis nations, to prevent their rearming, was proposed tonight by Dr. Alexander Loudon, the Netherlands' ambassador.



Dr. Alexander Loudon.

Dr. Loudon offered the proposal in an address at a meeting of the defense committee of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Discussing the problem of what to do with Germany when the allies have crushed the axis, the ambassador said that "I do not advocate extermination or deportation; both would lower the united nations to the Germans' level." Reëducation of the German must be envisaged, he said, but that "is a very long process" and insufficient protection for the near future. Rendering the German war potential impotent "cannot be left to the German nation nor to the German government," Dr. Loudon said, and "the heart of the problem is therefore Germany's industry."

Would Control Stock.

This brought him to the suggested international trusteeship for industries in nonenemy nations.

He proposed that:

The trusteeship control a majority of the capital stock of corporations and that no new capital issues, shares or bonds be offered the public of those countries unless the trusteeship obtains at least 51 per cent of them.

The trustees "might be composed of statesmen and business men of the united nations, the latter without actual ties with similar business in their own country."

"The shares to be placed in trust might be computed to each nation on the basis of its claims against Germany, Italy, Japan, and their allies. The United States would have, besides its direct claim, a great indirect claim as a consequence of the lend-lease help given to the allied warfare; Britain would have a substantial claim with regard to the damage done by German bombings and the very high costs of so many years of active warfare; Poland, France, Holland, all the other occupied nations would have their own important claims based on occupation costs and other actual damage done. The total of these claims will possibly be so enormous as to exceed even the total capital value of the axis incorporated industry, mining, and shipping."

Suggests Sales Abroad.

"The body of the trustees should be empowered to market the industrial products abroad, thereby creating stable employment conditions with consequent flourishing home markets."

In this connection, Dr. Loudon said operation of the trusteeships would not interfere with the everyday life and would be beneficial to the average worker.

Applying this to Germany in particular, he said:

"It is likely that, with the business control in international hands, the appreciation abroad of justified German foreign trade needs will be greater, particularly so since German trade relations will then no longer be followed by German aggressions, nor could trade be used again as a means of political pressure."

When the Germans see defeat come, Dr. Loudon said, "they will, as a high-placed German expressed himself, organize sympathy—and they are already at it right now. Very significant in this respect is what they are doing in Holland.

"Individual Germans are going to Dutch people asking for certificates that they have behaved correctly—and those testimonials had better be given, or else! It is clear what purpose those 'certificates of decency' are going to serve."

COL. WEIR COOK, AIR HERO, KILLED IN CRASH IN S. PACIFIC AREA

Indianapolis, Ind., March 28 (AP).—Col. H. Weir Cook, 50 years old, who served in the army air forces in both World wars and was one of Indiana's leading pioneers in aviation, died in the South Pacific war area Thursday from injuries suffered in a plane accident. His widow, Mrs. Katherine V. Cook, was notified today of his death in a telegram from the war department.

Col. H. Weir Cook.

As a member of Capt. Edward V. Rickenbacker's squadron in World war I., Cook—then a captain—was credited with destroying seven enemy planes. A recent letter to Mrs. Cook from her husband told of a reunion with Capt. Rickenbacker at the South Pacific island where Col. Cook was in command of several air fields.

Col. Cook was born at Wilkinson, Ind., and was educated at DePauw university and Washington and Jefferson university. After the World war he became one of the nation's first air mail pilots.

APRIL AUTO SALE QUOTA FOR STATE ADVANCED TO 2,071

An April quota of 2,071 new automobiles released for sale in Illinois, 51 more than in March, was announced yesterday by Raymond S. McKeough, regional price administrator. To meet needs that may arise in excess of the regular quota, the OPA allows a reserve pool of 353 cars.

Quotas for the other states in this region are: Wisconsin, 887; Iowa, 768; Nebraska, 574; Minnesota, 869; North Dakota, 189, and South Dakota, 222.

The tire inspection deadline for motorists holding A gasoline ration books is midnight Wednesday, Earl S. Dunne, Chicago metropolitan area tire rationing officer, warned. The A drivers must report for succeeding inspections every six months to maintain the validity of their gas coupons.

DIXON CITIZENS MAN TRACTORS AS FARM LABORERS

Phone Call for Hands May Bring Minister.

BY GAIL COMPTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Dixon, Ill., March 28.—The farmer stepped to his phone and called the chamber of commerce.

"I'm going to need some help out here tomorrow," he said, "as I have more work than I can handle alone."

Early the next morning a young high school boy arrived at the farm and put in a nine hour day helping the farmer. That is the way the citizens of Dixon, Ill., have organized to relieve the shortage of farm labor in their community.

Help Trained at Meeting.

Early in February the townspeople decided that it was up to them to find some way to help the farmer over his labor hurdle so that civilians and soldiers alike would not lack food, at least from that area.

A committee was established, including ministers, bankers, the mayor, the president of the chamber of commerce and others interested in finding some solution to the lack of hired hands. A half dozen farmers were invited in to talk over the problem.

After several conferences the following program was adopted. Blanks were distributed among the town's 10,000 citizens. Each person was asked to volunteer his services for farm work. On the card the volunteers told what hours and days they might be available for work. They indicated whether they had had farm experience, and in what particular line they felt best suited to help.

Pay 50 Cents an Hour.

A wage scale of 50 cents an hour was agreed upon between the townspeople and farmers. Special schools were arranged by implement dealers to teach novices the intricacies of the tractor and plow. The volunteers were given a chance to actually operate a tractor on a small patch of land set aside as a practice field.

Cards signed by the volunteers were carefully filed and indexed at the chamber of commerce. When a farmer needs help now he calls the secretary, indicates what the work will entail, and the secretary goes thru the files until a suitable helper is found.

Many Are Experienced.

Mrs. Wilbur Fulfs, publicity director of the program, said yesterday that 70 per cent of the first 100 people to sign up had previous farm experience. "Out of 114 people who signed," she said, "we found we could expect 102 days of work. The town's ministers have agreed to sign up and work on the farms, and we are getting more applications every day," she added.

"The farmers served by this plan will be principally in the Dixon area to facilitate transportation," she said. "The plan was organized at an early date so that the farmers could feel sure there would be a backlog of labor available and would be free to increase their crop production."

Hitler Orders Napoleon's Guns Restored to France

BERNE, Switzerland, March 28.—Two cannon lost by Napoleon in Russia in 1812 and found by German troops near Smolensk have been returned to France on Hitler's orders, says the Frankfurter Zeitung. The French legion's uniforms and standards in the future will be embellished with the Napoleonic eagle, it adds.

The most spectacular furniture rebuilding service ever offered! It is an entirely new departure and so different from the ordinary reupholstering job that there isn't any comparison. First of all, your old suite is picked up and delivered to one of Chicago's finest factories where a corps of experts give it a thorough going over inside and out. Then, after your furniture has been completely rebuilt and reupholstered, Fish's give you something (at no extra cost) that no other furniture store or reupholstering shop in Chicago can offer you, and that is "SANITIZING." This is a licensed process exclusive at Fish's among the furniture stores in Chicago.

Don't think $57.50 is the only price! You can pay $69.50, $89.50, and more, depending on the cover you select. But no matter what price you pay, we guarantee this revolutionary new service will give you finer quality and better workmanship than you ever thought possible for the money.

POINT CHANGES BRING PROTESTS; FEAR POOR DIET

Harmful, Warns Famed U. of C. Expert.

Nutritionists, housewives, and grocers expressed apprehension yesterday that the revised rationing point values to go into effect today on canned and other processed foods may result in serious diet deficiencies.

Anton J. Carlson.

The table, as revised by the office of price administration, increases the point costs of many foods, including canned fruits and some vegetables, and reduces the points required for a few.

"Increasing the point values on these items is harmful," said the University of Chicago's famed nutritionist, Anton J. Carlson, professor emeritus in the department of physiology.

Must Learn to Eat Whole Grains.

"It may not be serious at present for the public as a whole, but people must learn to eat a variety of foods which they may not have been accustomed to eating, and they must eat whole grains, as well as all the fresh vegetables and fruits they can get.

"The government has promulgated a very foolish nutrition program in the last two years by telling the people that 75 per cent of them have been on bad diets. How can the government turn around now and say they can work harder in war on less food than they had in peace? If we are going to feed the world, and make it 'free from want,' we will have rationing the next 50 years."

Should Plan Meals Carefully.

Other dietitians agreed that homemakers must take great pains in planning meals to avoid the danger of giving their families a subnormal subsistence.

"We can see ourselves eating scraps," said Mrs. Wilbur E. Fribley, chairman of the foods and merchandise committee of the Woman's City club, and president of the Housewives' league, an organization of delegates from women's groups to study homemaking problems. "Any revision was a help, but the new table definitely is not all right. I don't know what we can substitute for tomato juice, which has too high a point value. Two person families are especially hard hit because as a family they do not have enough points."

Point values were raised on "fundamental items in the daily diet of a city dweller," said Sidney M. Libit, attorney for the Wholesale Grocers Association of Chicago. He said wholesalers have found a "terrific drop" in business, and added he did not know any Chicago wholesaler who was consulted by the OPA in the preparation of the new table.

Fear Cheese Will Be Neglected.

Dealers fear, Libit said, that cheese will perish in the stores because its value of 8 points is too high, when the same points can be spent on meat.

J. Frank Grimes, president of the Independent Grocers alliance, said, "I don't think conditions called for any raises. Raising the points on canned fruits will stop the sale dead, and we are likely to have a seriously small pack in California as a result."

"Dry beans should have been reduced to 2 points instead of left at 4," Grimes said. "Beans are plentiful, and they form the main food for Mexican labor which has been imported. The Mexican government may yet enter a protest about this. Larger size tomato juice cans should be lower. On the whole, I think rationing should be placed on a more practical basis, and we should know by now that we cannot imitate the program in England, where conditions are entirely different."

Some Stamps Already "Spent."

The revised table will present new problems to housewives, who have spent a month becoming accustomed to the old point values. Women who took advantage of the option of using D, E, and F coupons beginning last Thursday have spent their first stamps for the second period at old point values, involving some gains and some losses. The A, B, and C stamps will be valid until midnight, Wednesday. The D, E, and F stamps are good thru April.

Sugar stamp No. 12 in book No. 1, for five pounds, remains valid thru May 31, and coffee stamp No. 26, for one pound, is good thru April 25.

MAN, 73, IS FATALLY BURNED.

James Bogie, 73 years old, a currency exchange clerk, was burned fatally yesterday when fire broke out in the basement of his home at 3648 North Tripp avenue, where he was bundling up old newspapers for salvage.

WMAQ 10:30

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY FREIDA ZYLSTRA.

[THE TRIBUNE will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by THE TRIBUNE. Today's question was submitted by Annette Wright, 5311 Agatite avenue.]

THE QUESTION.

If the war were over tomorrow what would be one of the first things you'd plan to do?

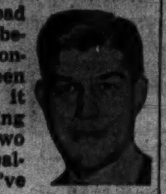
WHERE ASKED.

63d street and Dorchester avenue.

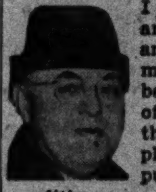
THE ANSWERS.

William J. Connelly, students, 5518 South Carpenter street—This will be the last war. I'm convinced of that, so I would cancel my enrollment at a naval college and enlist in the one I had planned on before. I had intended to major in mathematics and to qualify myself as an instructor. I'd carry out those plans.

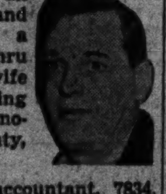
Virginia Lipinski, clerk, 8113 South Shore drive—The first thing I'd do would be to dust out the hope chest and go shopping for my trousseau. I'm engaged to an officer stationed in a distant camp. He probably will be sent over. We decided to wait.



Irwin Fink, railroad clerk, Matteson—Since the war we have been getting our railroad passes as usual, but because of the traffic congestion we haven't been able to use them. If it was over the first thing I'd plan would be a two weeks trip west. I realize now how much I've been missing.



George T. Howard, real estate manager, 1236 East 57th street—Even if I could obtain materials and labor to improve and repair my apartment buildings it would be impossible because of rent ceilings. When this is all changed I'll plan to redecorate and put the buildings in A-1 condition.



Albert J. Kraetsch, railroad agent, 6526 Kimbark avenue—I would fill up the gas tank and get an extra spare tire and start mapping out a long auto trip all thru the west. If my wife could do her packing like I could, a day's notice would be plenty, too.

Robert A. Scott, accountant, 7834, Ellis avenue—To change occupations from one essential industry to another is rather difficult now or I would have done it. I'd like to move to a farm near Mattoon and get down to the business of farming. It would be one of my first moves.

BUTCHERS SEEK ANSWER TO DIRE PLIGHT; GET NONE

Vow to Keep on the Job—for Soldier Sons!

The meeting of the Southwest Retail Meat Dealers association in Olympic hall, 2136 61st court, Cicero, yesterday was a calm discussion of rationing procedures until the open forum period.

Then excited voices whipped thru the smoke filled hall asking questions that the leaders could answer only with, "We'll have to wait—we'll have to see how this works out."

The members, mostly of Czecho-Slovakian extraction, crowded months of discouragement and despair into brief recitals of their problems.

Woman Tells Problems.

There was one woman at the session, Mrs. Frank Zalesky of 5200 South Whipple street. She's been running the meat department of the family store since her husband became ill a year ago. She said she had been able to buy only a small amount of meat for two weeks, because the wholesaler with whom she deals is a small operator who "isn't a big enough customer to get much now."

Fully 20 members asked, "How about the butcher who has to sign a lease and hasn't any hope to staying in business long enough to fulfill it?"

Other butchers wanted to know how to persuade housewives to buy bones as well as red meat with stamps; what to do with pork loin ends; how to make up for the 10 pounds they have to trim away to make salable some of the pork they receive now. The questions shot back and fourth, but there were no answers.

Calls Ration Insufficient.

Otto Gorski, 5417 Higgins avenue, predicted: "Gentlemen, we're doomed but don't give up. Let's fight . . . all together . . . to give our side of the story." He added that meat rations were insufficient for consumers, particularly laboring men.

Fred Kucera, 1703 West 79th street, 30 years in the meat business in Chicago, said he hoped the new regulations would restore to the retailer his former privilege of selection.

"We've had to take what we were sent—or nothing," he said.

"But I can go on doing that," Kucera said in a dramatic conclusion. "I can keep on getting to the wholesale store at 6 o'clock in the morning and standing in line and getting turned away sometimes. I just want to stay in business until my boy comes home. He's in the South Pacific doing his job. What would he say if I quit here at home?"

10 Million Pound Smelt Output Urged for 2 States

Madison, Wis., March 28 [Special].—The United States fish and wild life service has expressed hope Wisconsin and Michigan will produce 10 million pounds of smelts this spring as an addition to the food supply.

REPORT WICKARD SLATED AS HEAD OF ALLIED FOOD

Would Leave Cabinet for New Post.

Washington, D. C., March 28 (AP).—Secretary of Agriculture Claude L. Wickard may be asked by President Roosevelt to take a commission to help coördinate the food production programs of the United States, Great Britain, and Russia and to develop a production program for North Africa, it was reported tonight.

The commission would take Wickard to Russia, England, North Africa and possibly to other countries where greater food production potentialities exist for a first hand study of the possibilities and of ways of increasing output.

Part of Reorganization.

Such an assignment, said authoritative sources which requested that they not be quoted, would be part of a reorganization of this country's food setup started last week with Mr. Roosevelt's appointment of Chester C. Davis, St. Louis banker and agricultural leader, to head a new food production and distribution program in the agriculture department.

Acceptance of the commission would involve Wickard's resignation as secretary of agriculture, and possibly the designation of Davis to take the cabinet post, combining food production and distribution and other agriculture department activities under one hand, as was the case before Mr. Roosevelt named Davis as food administrator.

No Official Comment.

No official comment was available tonight on the report that Wickard would be asked to take a new assignment. However, close friends of both Wickard and Davis said they expected the President to offer the secretary another post. Some speculated on the possibility of a diplomatic assignment, while others said Wickard was being discussed in government quarters as a "food chief" for this country's fighting forces.

The assignment as a coördinator of allied production would have as its principal objective the lessening of the dependency of the Russians and the British on the United States for food supplies.

Davis was expected to arrive tonight to take over his new task either tomorrow or Tuesday.

The report that Wickard would be offered a new assignment was accompanied by another that Davis would not accept the post of secretary of agriculture, but would recommend instead that it be filled by Dr. E. C. Auchter, director of the agriculture department research administration.

Reluctant on Cabinet Post.

This report, which was being passed along by leaders of national farm organizations very friendly to the new administrator, said Davis preferred to hold only the food administrator's job and that on an emergency war time assignment basis. Inasmuch as department functions left to the secretary under the latest reorganization were chiefly research in nature, Davis was said to feel that it should be under the direction of a scientist. Dr. Auchter, who is a graduate of Cornell university, was said to be Davis' choice because of his knowledge of the department's research activities.

Speculation turned on possible Davis appointees. J. B. Hutson, president of the Commodity Credit corporation, was mentioned in connection with the directorship of the food production phase of the food program, a post now held by M. Clifford Townsend, former Indiana governor.

Jesse W. Tapp, a vice president of the Bank of America and former president of the agriculture department's federal Surplus Commodities corporation, was mentioned as a possible director of the food distribution part of the program. Roy F. Hendrickson, former Washington newspaperman, now holds that post.

LARGER MEAT RATION URGED FOR WORKERS DOING HEAVY LABOR

Washington, D. C., March 28 (AP).—Sen. Joseph H. Ball [R., Minn.] suggested in a statement today that war workers doing heavy physical labor receive larger meat rations than other civilians.

He said he was not sure that the ration system will prove sufficient for American workmen doing heavy work and used to a substantial meat diet.

At the same time, Sen. Clyde M. Reed [R., Kas.] said he could not understand why there is a meat shortage when there are more steers and hogs on the farms than last year. Reed had figures from the agriculture department that beef animals on farms totalled 36,350,000 Jan. 1, 1942, and 38,412,000 on the corresponding date this year—an increase of 2,062,000. The department said the 1942 pig crop was 104,734,000, compared with 85,035,000 in 1941, and estimated that 75 million pigs would be farrowed this spring as compared with 61 million last spring.

Terrorists Kill 3 French Policemen, Swiss Report

BERNE, Switzerland, March 28 (AP).—A dispatch from Bethune, France, to the Lausanne Tribune said today that the village of Beuvry was the scene of a daring attack by "terrorists" which cost the lives of three police officers, including the police commissioner.

WOMAN'S PURSE SNATCHED.

'GESTAPO' BILL'S SPONSORS URGING SUPPORT OF BAR

Administration attorneys are attempting to line up the house of delegates of the American Bar association in support of the "war security act," offered to congress by Atty. Gen. Francis Biddle and termed "the gestapo bill" by its congressional critics, it was disclosed last night. The association's house of delegates begins a two day session today at the Edgewater Beach hotel to discuss war reports from committees.

More than 200 state and city bar association memberships are represented in the meeting of the body, which is the governing authority of the association.

Three Support Measure.

Alexander Holtzoff, assistant to Biddle, Owen J. Cleary, and Earl Warren, nonpartisan candidate for governor of California, are among those seeking to get the delegates to indorse the bill.

The measure before congress, and known as H. R. 1205, would provide punishment as a criminal for any citizen who fails to report any "hostile act" to the government.

It defines as a "hostile act" the "transmitting of information relating to the war" with "intent" to aid a country with which the United States is at war.

Opponents of the measure declare that the bill, if enacted, would expose citizens to spying, revenge from personal enemies under the guise of patriotism and would lead to a plague of persecutions.

Stiff Fight Predicted.

The opponents declared that rejection of the proposal by the house of delegates would reflect national resentment and forecast defeat of the measure in congress. They predicted a stiff fight against the measure before it reaches a vote late today.

Illinois members of the house of delegates, led by Benjamin Wham, chairman of the federal legislation committee of the Chicago Bar association and Floyd Thompson, former president of the Illinois Bar association, are leading opposition to the bill.

BLIND MAN ASKS EXTRA MEAT FOR 'SEEING EYE' DOG

Ferdinand D. Casanave's seeing-eye dog, "Slim," must have 1 to 1½ pounds of "fresh ground beef" a day to survive, and Casanave has asked his veterinarian, Dr. A. G. Misener, 6448 North Clark street, to certify that fact to his rationing board so that he may obtain coupons to purchase the meat for "Slim."

Casanave, a merchant tailor who lives at 6437 North Oakley avenue, has been blind six years. He obtained "Slim," a German shepherd dog, in 1940 from the Seeing-Eye institute, Morristown, N. J.

The dog developed malnutrition some time ago and was put on the fresh beef diet by Dr. Misener. The veterinarian said that "Slim" would revert to his previous condition without the beef. Casanave said "Slim" means to him "the difference between independence and dependence."

BURGLARS STEAL $2,340; EAT PIE.

Burglars who broke into the home of Gustav E. Swanson, 1620 Warren boulevard, a plumber, stole $2,340 and consumed a large coffee cake and a portion of cream pie in the kitchen, he told police yesterday.

HISTORY AND MR. EDEN.

The speech of Anthony Eden, the British foreign secretary, before the Maryland legislature at Annapolis, seems to have been intended, among other things, to correct unfortunate impressions left by Mr. Churchill in his radio address a week ago Sunday. Mr. Churchill had neglected to list China among the great powers that will maintain order in the post-war world and had said that if Hitler falls while Japan remains unconquered, some of the British forces can be demobilized. The inference had been drawn that he regarded the defeat of Japan as of secondary importance, a view of the war which found no favor in America, China, or in Britain's Pacific dominions. To the extent that Mr. Eden made it clear that the British government is as determined as is America, New Zealand, Australia, Canada, or China to exert every effort to crush Japan, the speech served a most useful purpose in maintaining a united front against our enemies.

Mr. Eden's talk would have been still more welcome to American ears if he had shown a more thoro knowledge of history. "The British empire," he said, "is the first in history to evolve the idea of self-governing dominions. That is an entirely new conception in the world. We believe that it can help us to reach our common aims, man's freedom and self-government under law."

We believe that, too, but we began to believe it long before the second quarter of the twentieth century, when the British commonwealth as we now know it was established. Our acceptance of the principle came almost a century and a half earlier, as the Ordinance of 1787 attests.

The ordinance for the government of the Northwest Territory was adopted even before our Constitution went into effect. Its earliest fruits were the states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, and Michigan. The policy laid down in the great ordinance of setting up territories and letting them grow into self-governing states has been followed continuously to this day.

In political evolution we were five generations ahead of the British commonwealth. Indeed, many scholars, led by Prof. McLaughlin, have said that the success of our revolution [and, he might have added, the success of our territorial plan] persuaded the British government that it must modify its colonial policy to permit self-government in the dominions overseas. The alternative was a succession of wars of independence.

Thus there was a gradual amelioration of the colonial status. The final emancipation of Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa can be regarded more accurately as the fruit of a bloodless revolution than as a gift from the imperial government in London. It can be said in general that after the last war, the dominions insisted upon their independence and were in no mood to accept anything less. Ireland actually won her freedom by force of arms.

There is a later chapter in American history that Britain has yet to copy: The chapter which tells of the grant of independence to the Filipinos. Britain has still to extend the dominion principle to any of the darker peoples under her rule, yellow, or brown, or black. It is to be hoped for the sake of all of us that in this matter there will be no such lag as occurred between the Ordinance of 1787 and the statute of Westminster.

POSTAL CENSORSHIP.

Since this country became involved in war the postoffice department has been conducting a witch hunt which has largely gone unnoticed because of the more spectacular character of the similar project undertaken by Atty. Gen. Biddle and the justice department. Postmaster General Frank Walker, who is also chairman of the Democratic national committee, has been revoking the second class mailing privileges of a number of obscure publications, ranging from so-called "art" magazines thru the "confession" type publication to small and uninfluential newspapers. Typical of the latter was a rural weekly in Idaho with a circulation of 500, which was squelched on the charge of making seditious statements. Several Trotskyite publications have suffered a like fate.

Little attention might be paid to these activities if it were not for the fact that the jungle of postal rules and regulations can be employed as a means of suppressing or censoring the free press, and that this power, in the hands of a department head who is also the leader of the entrenched political party, is dangerous to a degree that can hardly be exaggerated. The postal laws have been abused in the past, and there is no assurance now that the administration, having experimented with punitive proceedings against a number of publications, may not seek to invoke its postal policing powers against others in political opposition.

Justice Brandeis, in the case of the Milwaukee Social Democratic Publishing company against Burleson, during the last war, stated, "The postal power . . . is subject to the limitations of the Bill of Rights. Congress may not thru its postal police power put limitations upon the freedom of the press which, if directly attempted, would be unconstitutional. It is argued that, altho a newspaper is barred from the second class mail, liberty of circulation is not denied, because the first and third class mail and also other means of transportation are left open to a publisher. Constitutional rights should not be frittered away by arguments so technical and unsubstantial.

"The government might, of course, decline altogether to distribute newspapers, or it might decline to carry any at less than the cost of the service, and it would not thereby abridge the freedom of the press, since to all papers other means of transportation would be left open. But to carry newspapers generally at a sixth of the cost of the service, and to deny that service to one paper of the same general character, because to the postmaster general views therein expressed in the past seem illegal, would prove an effective censorship and abridge seriously freedom of expression."

As to the danger that prosecution may easily become persecution of dissentients, Justice Brandeis had this to say in the case of Schaefer vs. United States: "The jury which found men guilty for publishing news items or editorials like those here in question must have supposed it to be within their province to condemn men not merely for disloyal acts but for a disloyal heart; provided only that the disloyal heart was evidenced by some utterance. To prosecute men for such publications reminds me of the days when men were hanged for constructive treason."

The dangers seen by Justice Brandeis in misuse of the power to police the mails are very presently before us when we see the postmaster general employing an elephant gun where an insecticide sprayer would accomplish whatever might be necessary. Fears will be confirmed when he seeks out bigger game than a rural weekly with a circulation of 500. The postal regulations as now drawn make possible roundabout invasion of freedom of utterance and deprive the object of this attack of access to the courts and the right of review, since he is compelled to stand his trial and offer his defense before the very authorities of the postal department who have condemned his publication in the first instance.

It would seem that when the postal regulations are not only inherently dangerous but subject to political use and abuse in a period when war time hysteria is very easily created and manipulated, congress cannot safely remain blind to the danger. The postal regulations should be reëxamined and, where necessary, revised. We cannot tolerate the threat of indirect censorship and executive tyranny when the nation has more need than ever of a courageous and outspoken press.

THE PLANNED HUNGER.

The long queues of would-be meat buyers and the markets closed because of empty coolers are not solely the result of a buying panic brought on by rationers. Meat retailers have warned that even if you have a coupon it is not certain that you can have meat.

The condition against which we warned for many years has come to pass. The center of the greatest meat producing region of the world is short of meat, and let no one tell you that this is purely a temporary dislocation arising from the war and the needs of our fighters. It is an accumulation of a decade of folly, of plowing under crops, of burning little pigs, of fining farmers because they raised too much, of filling warehouses full of rotting food, of feeding rats in the corn cribs instead of people, of placing the demands of other peoples of the world ahead of the wants of the American people.

In the meat raising industry it is a direct outgrowth of policies which have interacted so perfectly to reduce production that it is almost believable that they were instituted for the purpose of visiting hunger on the American people. Price fixing, which has operated to send animals to market underweight and in poor condition, labor shortages, the denial of machinery by the Union Square farmer, Joe Weiner, who is more interested in getting it for increasing lend-lease quotas than in providing for American agriculture, and shortages of protein feed, which to a large extent reflect a second cycle of the shortage of farm labor—all these have dovetailed to reduce the production of meat.

A spokesman for the office of price administration says that it is considering a rule that home canners must surrender blue [canned goods] coupons from their ration books if they are to obtain sugar for home canning. Last year there were extra allowances for this purpose. It is obvious, as Sen. Truman pointed out in this instance, that a penalty imposed on people who add to the nation's production of foodstuffs is not going to stimulate that production. The action gives a fair insight into the real purpose of the New Dealers. It is of a piece with another incident in which the OPA refused to let the wife of an army officer have the shoes which he had bought her outside of this country unless she surrendered a shoe coupon for them.

The claimed purpose of rationing is to see that every one gets an equal and fair share of scarce commodities, but if that were the real purpose the administration would be exerting every effort to increase that supply. Instead, its whole concern is with doling out what is available. It is not interested, as its actions indicate, in increasing it.

The New Dealers repudiated the theory of American plenty when they got into office. The program for a decade has been that of enforced scarcity and their ranks are so crammed with exponents of this philosophy that they cannot abandon it, even when it threatens our existence as a nation. Their farm leadership is bankrupt. When Mr. Wickard fell down on the job of providing food, the best substitute that could be found was Mr. Davis, who was one of Mr. Wallace's pig burners.

As a contributor to the Voice of the People said the other day, the New Deal is not interested in controling our cost of living; it merely wants to control our living. We do not know how much worse straits its stupid leadership will bring upon us. The only salvation is firm action by congress, first, to ascertain where the food really is, second, to rout out the obstacles to increased production, and, finally, to see that the products get to the American people.

WALLACE SPEECHES.

[Indianapolis News.]

Vice President Henry A. Wallace must be more puzzled than ever about the public's reaction to his speeches. A few months ago he laid before the world the thought that this is the century of the common man. Few people paid much attention, for the speech sounded like another plant by the New Deal publicity department and was treated about like any other recording. However, a few days later the Washington columnists began a campaign to praise it as an inspired statement of the aim of war and peace in this and all other countries. Their campaign yielded merely a tired yawn from the country.

Recently the accommodating voice of the Vice President spoke at Delaware, O., about this country double-crossing Russia and about the approaching marriage of Russian communism and American democracy. The speech was received as an administration feeler, appraised on that basis in connection with the boil-over about Russian lend-lease, and consigned to the files as merely another utterance of mixed parentage.

But the columnists would not let well enough alone. They delayed the funeral to take the speech apart and examine it in detail. It seemed to inspire some echoes of the common man speech, but they were faint and quavering. Perhaps in time the Wallace propaganda may dash itself to pieces against the stern fact that he has a very limited capacity for commanding the attention of the people. And the attention that he does command hardly does credit to the country's chairman of its board of economic warfare in a global war.

THE MECCA FLATS BLUES.

When the candid cameras of the press permitted the entire population of Chicago to enjoy interior views of the Mecca flat building, at State and 34th streets, many eyes goggled with curiosity. With its roofed courts and galleries, suggesting certain office buildings and also certain jails, it certainly seemed a peculiar tenement. Demands were promptly made upon us for an explanation of this architectural wonder of the south side.

* * *

The tenants of the Mecca flats, who are numerous, are said to be lamenting the prospect of the building's demolition. Their grief might easily take the form of choral singing from galleries and catwalks in the "Porgy and Bess" manner, and there is a song made to order for such lamentations. It is "Mecca Flats Blues," a folksong of Chicago's Negro district, which has been famous in the boogie-woogie repertory. In the 1920s, when entertainment in south side cafés was supplied by singing piano-players, "Mecca Flats Blues" had a lively vogue. It celebrated the trials, tribulations, and tragedies of the Mecca's inmates and visitors, and its verses were innumerable. A new episode was added to the saga almost every night by extemporizing troubadours. If collected and printed, the words of "Mecca Flats Blues" would make a book.

* * *

The Mecca was a product of the building speculations that preceded the Columbian exposition of 1893. Its construction permit was issued on Sept. 18, 1891. Its ownership was vested in the Mecca company, and if you want the officers and board of directors, see the state archives at Springfield. The architects were probably Beers, Clay, & Dutton. This firm also designed the Medinah building at Jackson boulevard and Wells street, which has been trimmed down to a taxpaying stump. The same exterior wall material seems to have been used in both structures.

* * *

The Mecca ran to small flats with decent conveniences. It aimed at the low rental trade, and after its transition from white to Negro tenancy, 20 or 30 years ago, it ran along in about the way in which its character had been fixed. It contains 374 flats, all but one occupied, and probably has paid rich dividends to the holders of Mecca common.

MORNINGS IN SPRING.

Some mornings are each like a gray-cowled nun
Whose robes from sorrow and grief are spun;
They shroud the dun earth in pity and spare
The sight of the broken fields lying there.
Some mornings in sequins and pearls are clad;
They say to the husbandmen: O, be ye glad!
Sow the seed, sow the seed, fling wide the hand,
Spring never fails to make green the tilled land.
The sisters of sorrow with tears must bedew
The furrows and scars 'til life springs anew;
The sisters of beauty make glad the deep scars
With garments of rime and of sequin stars.

S'Amuser.

History of the Gold Coast—XXVII.

South of North avenue in 1871 low sand hills covered with a scrub growth of pine, oak, and brush lined the lake shore. Between them were swamps and frog ponds, edged with high grass and cattails. The only redeeming feature of the tract was the lake, which curved away to the southeast toward the lighthouse on the north pier. Along it the park commissioners were planning to build the Pine street drive, to connect with Pine street at Whitney street, now Oak.

Rush, Kinzie, and Clark streets and Chicago avenue were the principal thorofares. Astor street was a country lane leading into the Catholic cemetery at Schiller street. The streets were all paved with wooden blocks, cobblestones, or were graveled. The sidewalks were of wood and raised on posts in many places. A horsecar line ran on Clark street to Fullerton avenue at the city limits, the site of Camp Fry of the war days.

The people for the most part lived in modest cottages or two story houses of frame construction. Few lived near the lake shore, the air there, especially at night, being considered bad for the health. The old Yankee settlement south of Chicago avenue was now well built up, the overflow occupying Dearborn and La Salle avenues and cross streets. The spires of the cathedral of the Holy Name, St. James, Unity, the Congregational, and Fourth Presbyterian churches pierced the deep green canopy of the old forest. This quiet neighborhood, with its large white houses surrounded by picket fences, and with trees arching over the streets, had a charm reminiscent of an old New England town. Captain John.

HARBINGERS OF HAPPINESS.

So many bluebirds so early in spring,
Flashing so brilliantly out in our wood,
Could, quite conceivably, come here to bring
Promise of many things pleasant and good.
Buds may bloom earlier. Conflict may cease.
Loneliest hearts may have reason to sing.
Could they be bringing a foreword of peace,
So many bluebirds, so early in spring?

His early years were occupied in registration, and at the age of 11 his 231-15-5324 [mother] could proudly show a complete set of 58 registration and enrollment cards, all of the government bureaus then legally concerned with No. 516-80-4415. When he was 16 and after the 103 tests required by the bureau of adaptability, integrity, and labor placement, No. 516-80-4415 was given an educational rating of 43KBST, which entitled him to studies up to the grade of a plumber's assistant, second class. This indicated that No. 516-80-4415 was above the ordinary. D. B. S.

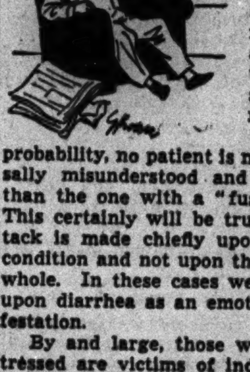
COMPLACENCY—THE CURE FOR AN IRRITABLE BOWEL.

We all know that the colon can become irritable and play hob with its owner. More often than not, the individual himself is responsible. This poor, maligned segment of the intestine is obliged to withstand the concentration of scores of symptoms of nervousness. In consequence it may slump, and contribute its share to illness.



In all probability, no patient is more universally misunderstood and mistreated than the one with a "fussy" bowel. This certainly will be true if the attack is made chiefly upon the local condition and not upon the body as a whole. In these cases we must look upon diarrhea as an emotional manifestation.

By and large, those who are distressed are victims of indigestion in curious forms. Complaints such as palpitation, sweating, and faintness will be legion. Of course, we must make certain that the upper portion of the alimentary tract is not at fault. But once trouble in the stomach has been ruled out, particularly if the gastric juice is normal, we can combat the basic difficulty—a highly sensitive nervous system.

Most victims date their woes from a bout of influenza or some other episode which laid them low. Appetite failed to return with convalescence, whereupon abdominal bloating and pain appeared. Unless a wise physician senses that the whole system needs overhauling, and not merely the digestive tube, a chronic state of indisposition will be certain to follow.

But cure is possible. In the first place, it is necessary to allay the fear of cancer, which many of these people encounter. Perhaps they won't admit it at the outset, but suspicion is present just the same. Next, the sufferer will need to be told that he can and will recover.

The diet should be restored to about the average accepted by the normal adult. Numerous prohibitions may be removed and, with reason, he may be told to eat whatever he chooses. One exception must be kept in mind. The individual may be sensitive to some particular edible. If so, that article may be omitted.

Next comes elimination of the cathartic habit, which may have snarled the bowel into veritable knots. Demonstrate to the victim by means of X-ray films, that he has a "squirmy" colon which will become a well behaved structure as soon as he can learn to relax and quiet his apprehensions. Sedatives are—beyond question—among our best remedies. Small doses may relieve enough stress and strain to allow the absorbing functions to regain their long lost balance.

Additional aids include more hours of sleep and rest in bed, even if slumber will not come. An attitude of doing your job to the best of your ability, and then forgetting it, should be adopted. Furthermore, jumping from one emotional experience to another will not effect a cure. Only as the winds cease and the waves of doubt recede, will nervous energies be directed into proper channels.

Many a sufferer has been found grossly deficient because he believed that he could not eat this or that. Unconsciously, in an effort to get well, he has deprived himself of a balanced food régime. While this failure may be corrected easily, the dominant healing agent is the conviction that recovery will come.

GOOD FOOD.

Mrs. J. I. writes: My young son likes cream cheese and jelly sandwiches every day for lunch. My sister tells me this is harmful and will dry up the blood. Is this true?

REPLY.

Not at all. Excellent edibles—both.

BLEMISHES.

Mrs. M. writes: I am beginning to notice quite a few scaly, purplish-red spots on my face. What could cause these?

REPLY.

Probably a mild eczema. Hunt for the cause in your diet, clothing, etc.

NOT MUCH CHANGE.

Mrs. J. C. writes: Can a child be born with one kidney?

REPLY.

Yes, but don't worry. The possibility is extremely remote.

Test Your Horse Sense
By Dr. George W. Crane

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers on page 28.

1. You should expect to find a hallmark on which of these types of articles? Paper Gold Wooden Steel
2. The sizes of shoes have been standardized for approximately how long? 25 years 50 years 100 years 500 years
3. Grits would probably be served at your breakfast in which of these states? Georgia Idaho Michigan California
4. Which one of these creatures is the most fastidious about its food? Sheep Hogs Horses Cattle
5. A gore should make one think of which of these workers? Dressmaker Cattle Rancher Gold Miner Chef
6. This is a practical problem in American geography in which you are to match the states named in the left hand column below with the products for which they are famous. You are entitled to one point for each correct judgment.

[a] Pennsylvania	[v] Cheese
[b] North Carolina	[w] Rubber products
[c] Wisconsin	[x] Steel
[d] Connecticut	[y] Cotton fabrics
[e] Ohio	[z] Firearms

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

HOW TO GET AHEAD UNDER THE NEW DEAL.

Detroit, Mich., March 25.—The OPA ration schedule just announced assigns the following values to various organs:

Tongue	6 points
Cheek	5 points
Brains	3 points
Backbone	2 points
Ears	1 point

These new Washington standards should help reorient persons who still cherish the old fashioned virtues. A. T. COURT.

NO MAN IS INDISPENSABLE.

Chicago, March 19.—Your editorial of March 17 expressed the thought that Mr. Roosevelt "is a candidate for the fourth term and no one can be deceived about it unless he wants to be deceived."

To me, as well as to many other American citizens who would give all for this country, and who have done everything to prevent even the third term, without looking for the fourth, it seems very unfair, unjust, and perhaps harmful to our nation's future welfare for our President to expect another term. It looks as tho Mr. Roosevelt is clothing his human and perhaps selfish and egotistical desires under the disguising forms of duty and obligation, in order to retain his power and continue his self-glorification, which is not in the American spirit.

If, as an American citizen, I was asked to suggest a helpful and constructive idea for the benefit of our nation, with due respect to our President, my answer would be as follows: Instead of preparing or even thinking of writing an address for his fourth term, Mr. Roosevelt should take steps similar to those of our first President, George Washington, when he called his generals and friends to bid them farewell, saying, "With a heart full of gratitude, I now take leave of you."

That is the stand our President should take at this time to show that our nation does not need just one man to rule, as is done in other parts of the world. That's just why our forefathers fought bitterly to break away from the tyranny of kings and dictators. Now, for the sake of our country and democracy, I, for one, hope that this is the last time any President of the United States ever is given the opportunity to run even for a third term. S. D. CHIRIBES.

PROFITS IN HANDLING TAXES.

Oak Park, Ill., March 21.—With our sure approach to inflation thru gradual increase in all retailers' prices on everything we must eat and wear, and with our state retailers' tax reduced to two per cent for over a year, why are retailers permitted to collect a tax on minimum sales as low as 15 cents, which is at the rate of 6⅔ per cent on such sales?

Why are the retailers not required to absorb this two per cent tax and make it really a retailers' occupational tax, as the name implies, instead of reaching into the pockets of the buying public for upward of 6⅔ per cent and turning in to the state only two cents on each dollar of sales, thus making an additional profit in the handling of this tax alone?

If the buying public must continue to pay this tax, there should be no tax on sales up to 30 cents, one cent on sales up to 80 cents, and so on at that rate, stopping these gougers from making a profit in the collection of this tax. TAXPAYER.

A FEW AMERICAN MINORITIES.

Chicago, March 24.—A. L. Weller is very generous. He would give to Russia country which never before 1772 was Russian. Why not go a little farther and give to Russia the state of New York, which has all kinds of minorities?

Mr. Weller is badly mistaken when he thinks that Poland and Rumania had the largest minorities. The United States has still greater minorities and is the best country under the sun. Then why see minorities only in Poland? FELIX ZIELINSKI.

MINORITIES IN POLAND AND RUSSIA.

Chicago, March 25.—Arthur L. Weller's views on "Minorities in Poland" are based on false facts.

The nobles of Poland, who took care of the defense of their country—as it had no standing army—many times saved Christianity and western civilization from the hordes of Tartars, fanatic Turks, and many other barbaric aggressors.

Neither the Poland of 1772 nor of 1939 was largely non-Polish and no minorities of Poles ruled a large subject population, as Mr. Weller claims. The Polish population of the state that existed prior to 1772, when the first partition of Poland took place, was much larger than that of 1939. In the Poland prior to 1939 80 per cent of the population was Polish.

Poland was obliterated from the map of Europe for more than 150 years. She was torn apart by three vultures: Russia, Prussia, and Austria. The aggressors murdered in cold blood millions of Polish adults, deported other millions to wastelands for starvation, and Germanized and Russianized millions of Polish children taken away from their parents. On the Polish lands they settled the now so-called minorities. Only in Austria were the Poles a little better treated.

The so-called minorities in present Poland were well treated by the Poles. Whenever a misunderstanding took place it was instigated by the Communists and the Nazis, who sent agents into Poland to pollute the pure water of harmony. The Poles have always pursued the "love thy neighbor policy." They never were in waiting for another's soil nor persecuted anyone.

Now, let me ask, Mr. Weller, how many Russians are in soviet Russia? Ninety per cent of the population of soviet Russia is non-Russian, organized in a so-called "republic" and ruled by the Russians. Take a good look at the history and you will find out.

The Poles have no hatred in their hearts for Russia. All they want and are fighting for is peace and that which they lost in 1939. WESLEY J. GARLATZ.

COFFEE, NOT ROOFING TAR.

Elgin, Ill., March 21.—All this truck about a coffee shortage and reboiling the dregs à la Roosevelt is getting under my skin. There would be no shortage if every one would throw away their freak coffee makers—dripolators, percolators, and other -ators—which were invented solely to increase the consumption of coffee, being very wasteful.

Any one using a tablespoonful of coffee to make one cup ought to run short. That would be strong enough to float a battleship and wouldn't be fit to drink except to one with a hangover.

The common pot method is still the best and most economical: three rounding teaspoonfuls makes seven cups. Put the coffee in cold water and turn off the heat the instant the water boils and there you have it—coffee, not roofing tar. Use drip grind. C. JURGENS.

ANOTHER MINORITY HEARD FROM.

Chicago, March 24.—Arthur L. Weller is quite right about the Polish minorities and the large part they played in the downfall of the Polish state. Certainly Poland would be more unified, powerful, progressive, and democratic if she gave up her desire to rule non-Polish peoples. As Mr. Weller would have it Russia should obtain the territory east of the "Curzon line" on ethnographic grounds. As a former inhabitant of the territory allow me to add that the majority of the population in the area is more Russian than it is Polish.

As a matter of fact, the Ukrainian people who inhabit the territory under dispute also cherish the benefits of freedom. Certainly domination under the soviet rule would not improve their status. The Ukrainian people desire absolute national freedom, which means freedom from Russia as well as freedom from Poland and Germany. Certainly the fulfillment of the Atlantic charter would have to include an independent Ukrainian state if international justice were to be attained. MATTHEW RYZA.

PLURAL CONCEPT OF GOVERNMENT.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 20.—There is, I believe, one thing we could adopt these days from our British friends to good advantage, namely, to use the plural sense in connection with "government." For example, the British always say that the government "are agreed," "have decided," "declare themselves," etc.

We never intended to look upon our government as a singular institution, to be run by a singular individual or a singular body of individuals. The Constitution provides for a three way government, which, in the words of old Abe, is supposed to be a government of the people, for the people and by the people. And we do not say the people "is," but the people "are."

Using the plural may help our elected and appointed officials and those who do the electing and appointing always to bear that fact in mind. B. S. WILLIAMS.

CITIZENSHIP CHALLENGED.

Chicago, March 23.—[Friend of the People.]—My father became a naturalized American citizen in 1938. I was a minor at the time and assumed, therefore, that automatically I became a citizen. Purely for my own convenience, I applied for a certificate of derivative citizenship when I was 21 years old and I am now waiting for the certificate to be issued. Some of my friends tell me I'm not a citizen. Am I right that I am, even tho I do not have the certificate of derivative citizenship? R. E.

Store Hours, Monday through Saturday, 9:45 to 5:45

The meat of the problem is not always in the cooking—or in the amount of meat either. Much of it is the ingenuity you use in putting it on the table. So, when there's one chop instead of two—one, and only one—pat of butter, one cup of coffee instead of the three you used to have, you can help make up the difference in clever table devices. American women have always been strategists at the dinner table. Now they have a chance to set their tables so charmingly, with so much imagination, that rationed food points will look bountiful. All this comes under the head of keeping up a front—the home front. And here at the store we've been specialists in helping women keep up the home front for more than ninety years.

'RICK' URGES WAR MOTHERS TO HELP OUTLAW STRIKES

'Blue Star Club' in Every Section Proposed.

Atlanta, Ga., March 28 [Special].—Formation of clubs of blue star mothers thruout the nation to work for legislation outlawing strikes in war plants and eliminating wasteful use of man power was proposed by Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker in a speech here tonight.

Capt. E. Rickenbacker.

The famous flyer appealed to Americans to get "fighting mad" in order to win the war and said the war will be lost on the home front unless civilians wake up to the necessity of all out production effort.

"If organization is the way to get heard and get things done, then let's have organization," Rickenbacker said in suggesting that mothers of boys in service establish "The Blue Star Mothers' Clubs of America" in every town and hamlet in the country. Among objectives for this organization, he proposed:

"To work for and support legislation that will prohibit strikes in any plant engaged in war production while the war is in progress, such legislation to terminate when the war is ended.

"To provide a rallying point for all those in America who believe there must be an equality of sacrifice by all groups until victory is won."

Membership Open to Relatives.

Rickenbacker said membership in the clubs should be open not only to mothers, but to wives and fathers, and other relatives if they wish to join. He described the proposed organization as "a union of those who, second only to the boys themselves, have most at stake in this war."

Rickenbacker urged his audience to work for the elimination of all those whose objective is "greedy, grasping, selfish, personal gain," including incompetents in government, racketeers in labor, and "patrioteers" in industry.

"We are going to see a real mobilization of man power one of these days, we hope," Rickenbacker said. "The projection is a transfer of man power from nonessential to essential war production. The principle is sound. We need production.

"But, as these people move over to essential work, are we going to find them intimidated and blackjacked, one by one, into joining some union, contributing to the already overflowing coffers of some organization and to the already tremendous income of some so-called leader of labor?" he demanded.

Rickenbacker said that if a man wants to earn more he should produce more and that if all industry could be set up on an "incentive" basis we would have twice as many men as we need to do the job.

War Takes No Holiday.

"God knows the boys on the battle lines don't knock off on Sundays and holidays or at the end of 40 hours," he said. "They are gambling with death every hour of the day and night."

One of the real bottlenecks of our war effort is the fact we haven't the slightest idea we can lose the war, he asserted, adding that "too many hard, cold facts are being kept from the American people under the smoke screen of 'military secrets'."

Rickenbacker recalled that Germany was able to wage war for four years in the first World war, altho surrounded by an iron ring and opposed by Rumania, Russia, France, Belgium, and Italy. Despite the fact that Germany had to draw almost entirely upon its own nation for its fighting resources, the war was only ended when American forces and resources were thrown into the balance on the allied side, he said.

"Against that, what have we today?" he asked. "Germany has conquered France, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Austria, the Netherlands, Greece, Poland and Norway. These conquered nations are now supplying her with slave labor, and their resources are being sapped ruthlessly for maintenance of the German fighting forces.

Has Powerful Allies Now.

"In addition, Italy, Finland, Rumania, Bulgaria, and Japan, with a fighting machine unequaled in its history, are all axis partners. Japan alone, thru combat in the first seven months of their war against us, has captured more resources in Java, Borneo, Sumatra, Malaya, the Philippines, China, and many other fertile islands of the Pacific—has captured, I repeat—more resources than we can boast of having available for our own war effort and that of our allies.

"With that kind of a picture before you, what kind of a war do you think we have on our hands and how long do you think it is going to last?" he challenged. "What kind of a war effort do you think we should make?"

British General Slain in Action Given U.S. Medal

LONDON, March 28 (AP).—Lt. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, commander of United States forces in the European theater, presented the Distinguished Service medal posthumously today to Brig. Gen. Vivian Dykes, formerly British secretary in Washington to the combined chiefs of staffs. Dykes was killed on active service in January. The medal was awarded in the name of President Roosevelt. Mrs. Winifred Dykes, his widow, received the citation at her home at Camberley, Surrey.

CIVILIANS GIVE SAILOR AND GIRL WEDDING PARTY

Change Site, but Make Up for It at USO.

Civilians unwittingly changed the wedding site of a sailor and his girl yesterday, but made up for it with an impromptu supper and reception.

Fireman 3d Class Albert Glazer and Miss Norma Stein, both of Philadelphia, planned for several days to be married yesterday afternoon in the United Service Organizations club at 203 North Wabash avenue. They arrived promptly, dressed in their best, to find "their room" taken over by civilians attending open house.

It seemed for a few minutes that there wouldn't be any wedding. Then Stephen Baumann, club director, phoned across the street and borrowed a room from the Chicago Woman's aid. The wedding party trooped over to the women's clubroom and Albert and Norma were married by Chaplain Julius Marks of Great Lakes. Baumann and Mrs. Samuel E. Hirsch, chairman of the army and navy committee of the women's club, were witnesses.

Civilians Arrange Supper.

Back across the street, meanwhile, the civilians were spreading the special supper and sent out for a white floral centerpiece. When Albert and Norma returned, all fell respectfully in line and were "received."

The wedding wasn't all that was "disrupted" by the more than 3,200 civilians who attended open house in the U. S. O. clubs in the Chicago area. A private who folded himself into a chair at the club at 131 South Wabash avenue, and went to sleep was awakened by a tap on the shoulder.

"Young man, if you're so very tired, won't you come out to my house and sleep next week-end?" a man asked.

"That's very kind of you, "the private replied. "We have plenty of beds in our barracks, but no chairs. I like to come down here and sleep in a chair for a change."

Drummer Lets Out Some Thunder.

Army and navy men were in full swing all over the city. Edward B. Straight drummed up a thundering business at Chicago Service Men's Center No. 1, 176 West Washington street, yesterday. Straight is one of the original drum boogie boys.

With the help of Drummer Dale Anderson, 13 years old, he showed army and navy men how to beat the skins for a waltz, a fox trot, a march, and the jive jumps. All visiting hep cats were armed with drum sticks donated to the center. Until just before closing time they were reported to be beating tango tattoos on the canteen dishpans, tables and chairs, and stair rails.

Met Stars Join Middies.

In a different musical vein, the 35 midshipmen of the Abbott Hall Glee club traded places with stars of the Metropolitan Opera company at a party in the Seneca hotel. While the boys sang, the stars listened, and vice versa. All blended voices for "Anchors Aweigh."

Among the operatic singers who attended the party were: Jarmila Novotna, Salvatore Baccaloni, Ira Petina, Josephine Antoine, Ezio Pinza, Mona Paulee, John Brownlee, Giovanni Martinelli, Licia Albanese, and Marjorie Lawrence. Chief Petty Officer John Carter of Great Lakes, who once sang with the Metropolitan, helped out. Midshipman Erwin Brabec is director of the Glee club.

Production of Fuel Wood Shows Drop in Wisconsin

Madison, Wis., March 28 [Special].—The United States department of interior has reported that Wisconsin is one of the states where the "decline in the production of fuel wood has reached a stage described as critical." Immediate action to increase the output was urged.

MISSING AIRMAN PRAISED FOR HIS SERVICE RECORD

Flying Officer William Kadison Komaiko, 25 years old, whom the royal Canadian air force reported Saturday as missing in action, was praised for his skill and cheerful disposition by his squadron leader in a letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Komaiko, 1627 Touhy avenue, they revealed yesterday.

Flying Officer William K. Komaiko.

Squadron Leader A. M. Paape wrote from England six weeks ago notifying the parents that their son was missing. "Bill was the navigator and I cannot praise his work too highly," Paape wrote. "His enthusiasm was unbounded, and his cheerful, efficient manner contributed greatly to the squadron."

Komaiko left the De Paul university law school a year and a half ago to enter the R. C. A. F., and was sent to England last May. A brother, Charles J. Komaiko, 30 years old, is a lieutenant in the marine corps in the Pacific area.

British Coastal Patrol Blows Up German Ship

LONDON, March 28 (AP).—The admiralty announced today that during an offensive sweep light coastal forces encountered four enemy patrol craft off the Dutch coast. In the ensuing action, one enemy ship was seen to blow up with a vivid flash lasting about 10 seconds and another enemy ship was severely damaged. The British forces suffered slight superficial damage.

ARMY AIR FORCES RESHUFFLE CUTS OUT 13 DIVISIONS

12 Headquarters Offices Also Eliminated.

Washington, D. C., March 28 (AP).—The army air forces chopped red tape from its administrative procedure today to gear the organization for greater speed.

Gen. H. H. Arnold.

It reduced the number of offices in the headquarters from 25 to 13 and the major divisions of the air staff from 19 to 6.

The air forces said the program, based on a study of needs, is effective immediately. Officers said the changes are "not a shakeup but a streamlining to expedite action."

Command Scope Widened.

Officials said the program will:

1. Relieve headquarters of the details of executing orders and leave it free to determine policy.
2. Create a more cohesive organization within headquarters.
3. Delegate greater responsibility to field commanders, who henceforth will be told what to do, but not how to do it.
4. Reduce personnel of headquarters staffs in Washington.

Gen. Henry H. Arnold, commander of the air forces, continues to head the organization under the new alignment. Directly under Arnold will be Maj. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, chief of air staff.

Member of Munitions Board.

Stratemeyer will act for the commanding general in Arnold's absence, supervise activities of the air staff, special staffs and commands, and be chairman of the munitions assignments committee for air. Stratemeyer also is a member of the munitions assignment board.

There will be three deputy chiefs of staff including Brig. Gen. Laverne Saunders, a fighting pilot who saw much action in the South Pacific before his recall to Washington. The other deputy chiefs are Brig. Gen. T. J. Hanley, the only deputy under the old alignment, and Col. William E. Hall, whose nomination for promotion to brigadier general has been sent to the senate by President Roosevelt.

Six assistant chiefs of staff with specific duties assigned to each will "have primary interest in and supervision of specific commands in the field."

Echols to Rule Material.

These assistants, with their assignments of duties which in some cases previously were shared by subordinate offices, are:

Maj. Gen. Oliver P. Echols, now commanding general, material command, to supervise material, maintenance, and distribution.

Maj. Gen. Barney Giles, to supervise operations, commitments, and requirements.

Brig. Gen. O. A. Anderson, plans.

Brig. Gen. R. W. Harper, training.

Col. J. M. Bevans, whose nomination for brigadier general has been sent to the senate, personnel.

Col. E. P. Sorenson, intelligence.

New Command Formed.

One new command—flight control command—was created in the reorganization. Commanded by Col. Samuel R. Harris, it will absorb functions of the offices of air traffic and safety, communications, and weather services.

A new office of special projects also was created, headed by Col. F. Trubee Davison, former assistant chief of staff for personnel.

One new appointment, that of Maj. Gen. Follet Bradley as air inspector, also was announced.

NEW DEALER AIMS VOTES FOR YOUTH DRIVE AT ILLINOIS

Legislature to Get Bill on Teen Agers.

BY ROY GIBBONS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 28.—Harold R. Moskovit, president of the Affiliated Young Democrats, Inc., of New York, and long regarded locally as an influential sounding board for New New Deal legislation emanating from the White House, today acknowledged that communism is rife among the youth of the land and stated it is up to both Democrats and Republicans to rescue Uncle Sam's nieces and nephews from their plight.

It was partly for this reason, Moskovit declared, that last July he organized his national "Votes for Youth" campaign, which seeks the enfranchisement of all young people from the age of 18 to 21, whether they are in military service or not. Each age bracket on a national scale, Moskovit estimated, will add another million and a half votes to any national election.

Bill for Legislature.

The drive to enlist Illinois in the ranks of states contemplating revision of their constitutions to permit the change in voting age requirements will get under way possibly during the coming week, he announced.

A Sterling, Ill., "business man and civic leader," whose name Moskovit said he preferred not to make public "at this time," will act as entrepreneur to have the measure introduced in the Illinois legislature.

To date, Georgia and Arkansas have passed the proposal, while some 20 other states either have the matter under consideration or are preparing to have it introduced in the form of a resolution or referendum bill, Moskovit said.

Doesn't Know Politics.

To what extent the new youth age voting groups will be helpful in furthering any New Deal fourth term presidential aspirations, Moskovit said he did not know. As to whether the groups will line up with the New Deal in 1944, by which date Moskovit said he "hoped" to have at least 24 states in his "Votes for Youth" bag, he was smilingly noncommittal.

He admitted, however, that he would not be engaged in any activity that would be politically hurtful to President Roosevelt, and said the entire movement was strictly nonpartisan and that President Roosevelt doesn't know a thing about it.

"Do you mean you have kept it secret from the White House?" Moskovit was asked.

"The President doesn't know a thing about it," he reaffirmed.

The measure failed of passage in New York thru lack of consideration by the state senate after it had polled a bare 77 majority in the assembly last Saturday.

Tells Neglect of Youth.

Moskovit revealed he has consulted several educators regarding the emotional and psychological capacities of the 'teen age groups to assume voting responsibilities. Most of the replies he said have been favorable.

He intends to consult with other educators as the campaign proceeds, and mentioned Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, as one of those.

"We don't want the proposal to become a political football," Moskovit said. "The major political parties, both Democrats and Republicans, have neglected to attract convincingly the youth of America.

"This failure adequately to respect the problems confronting youth—employment, education, and social security—has been an open invitation for radical movements and organizations to exploit youth and invade our colleges and high schools.

"Reduction in the voting age from 21 to 18 years is the concrete answer to the intriguing radical elements among youth."

Street Car and Automobile Collide

Wreckage of automobile after crash at 2808 North avenue. Four were killed and eight injured. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

4 KILLED, 8 HURT AS AUTO CRASHES INTO STREET CAR

Cartoonist and Wife Among Victims.

Four persons were killed and eight were injured early yesterday in a head-on street car and automobile collision in North avenue just west of California avenue.

Richard Bilski.

Joseph Kampinski.

Those killed were Pedro Llanuza, 60 years old, 705 North avenue, a former Chicago newspaper cartoonist, and his wife, about 30, who were struck by the automobile before the collision; Richard Bilski, 24, of 1520 Division street, driver of the auto, and Joseph Kampinski, 23, of 1031 North Marshfield avenue, a coast guardsman who was riding with Bilski.

Names of Injured.

Injured in the crash were Joseph Cavage, 33, of 2653 Iowa street, and Albert Tomasello, 37, of 1625 Division street, passengers in the automobile; Olaf Troogetrad, 56, of 1001 North Karlov avenue, motorman of the street car; Carter Krause, 28, of 1408 North Maplewood avenue, conductor, and John Borecki, 25, of 2622 Potomac avenue; Nicholas Delegato, 23, of 4038 Kamerlin avenue; Milford Wilke, 39, of 2650 North Sawyer avenue, and Richard Schweiger, 16, of 622 North Lotus avenue, passengers.

In St. Elizabeth's hospital word of Kampinski's death was withheld from his wife, Loyola, 24, who is the mother of a week old baby.

Police Version of Crash.

Police said the crash probably occurred when Bilski, driving west, turned into the street car in a futile effort to avoid hitting Llanuza and his wife.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday, 122 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 96 were killed in Chicago, where 3,045 were injured in traffic accidents.

OIL MAN ADMITS FRIENDSHIP WITH SLAYER OF WIFE

Tulsa, Okla., March 28 (AP).—County Attorney Dixie Gilmer said tonight that T. Karl Simmons, wealthy Tulsa oil man, admitted a close friendship of several years with Mrs. Ella B. Howard, trim 44 year old divorcée, and that he had given her $20,000 in 1942.

Mrs. Howard, mother of two children, is held in the county jail on a charge of murder in the hotel room shooting of the oil man's wife, Blanche, 55, a widely known horsewoman.

MATINEE REALLY 'LAYS AN EGG' ON TWO OF PATRONS

When raw eggs—unrationed as yet, but scarce and about 60 cents a dozen—showered down on matinée patrons at the Belmont theater, 1635 Belmont avenue, yesterday, they didn't regard it as emergency relief from the office of price administration.

In fact, two of them, Miss Barbara Degenhart, 1841 Nelson street, whose hat was dripping, and Miss Irene Friedrich, 1847 Nelson street, whose coat was spattered, rose angrily and went to S. R. Claggett, the theater manager.

Ushers seized four boys in the balcony and turned them over to police, who booked them on disorderly conduct charges. The boys said they got the eggs at a party the night before and were tossing them around "just for fun."

The boys are William Kinsella, 17 years old, 3823 Fremont street; John Russell, 18, of 3433 Janssen avenue, and Edward Estacion, 17, of 1403 Cuyler avenue, who were released on bond, and Jack Wimer, 16, of 1025 Newport avenue, who was released to his parents.

Gov. Stassen to Be Guest in Milwaukee Wednesday

Milwaukee, Wis., March 28 [Special].—Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota will come to Milwaukee on Wednesday to be the guest of Charles D. James, president of Northwestern Mutual Fire Insurance company, at a dinner to be held that night at the Milwaukee club. James has invited several prominent Milwaukee business men to meet the governor.

$100,000 JEWEL LOSS ON PLANE; PRINCESS VICTIM

Gems Vanish in Shipment Across Country.

New York, March 28 [New York News].—A mystery of the airways, the disappearance of a $100,000 collection of jewels belonging to Princess Doris Farid es Sultannah, ex-wife of Sebastian S. Kresge, dime store multimillionaire, is plaguing the police from coast to coast.

The gems with which the princess dazzled Parisian sophisticates in prewar years vanished last November from a transcontinental plane bound from Los Angeles to New York, it was learned today. Ever since then they have been the object of a search which has spread across the continent without turning up so much as a single clue

Insured for Only $50.

The baubles, which included an 118 karat golden sapphire and a 40 karat gubylite diamond, were shipped in a paper wrapped package from Burbank, Cal., on Nov. 21, 1942. Shipped via air express by the Los Angeles representative of a New York jeweler, the prosaic looking parcel was modestly insured for $50. Its full value, police say, was covered by the firm's "block" insurance policy. So far as investigators have been able to learn, the package has never arrived here.

An itemized list of the missing jewels, furnished police by Princess Farid, enumerated nine articles. They include the golden sapphire, mounted as a pendant on a long flexible diamond chain; the 40 karat diamond, an emerald and diamond necklace containing three pear shaped and three cabochon emeralds, a necklace set with cabochon sapphires, carved emeralds and diamonds with a pear shaped ruby drop pendant.

More Diamonds Listed.

Also missing is a 12 karat emerald cut diamond, set in a platinum ring and finaked by baguette diamonds; a ruby and diamond bracelet, a marquise cut diamond weighing 26.82 karats, a sapphire-gold cigaret case, and a ruby jeweled gold pill box.

The Princess Farid, now living near Morristown, N. J., received a 2 million dollars settlement at the time of her divorce from Sebastian Kresge in February, 1928. In 1933 she was married in Paris to Prince Farid Khan of Sadri-Azam, a relative of the shah of Persia. They were divorced in 1935.

Recently the Pittsburgh born princess was sued in Newark by her old friend, Archduchess Alicia of Hapsburg-Lothringen, for $5,000. The duchess claimed the money was an unpaid balance on the sale of a painting by Michael-Angelo Caravaggi, done in 1540.

Princess Farid countered with the claim that the duchess had given her the picture in payment of a $7,000 loan. The jury which heard the squabble found for the princess.

NAZIS SAY BIG FLEET GATHERS AT GIBRALTAR

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The Berlin radio, which occasionally broadcasts dispatches credited to neutral sources as a means of probing for information about allied military activities, yesterday reported that a large armada of British ships was concentrated at Gibraltar.

The broadcast, quoting a Transocean [German] news agency dispatch, from Algeciras, Spain, said: "To all appearances, large contingents of British troops are to be convoyed to North Africa."

The radio report said 13 freighters, five tankers, and four destroyers had arrived at Gibraltar to join numerous freighters and transports already there, in addition to the battleships Nelson, Rodney, and Malaya, the aircraft carrier Formidable, two auxiliary aircraft carriers, 24 destroyers, several corvettes, more than 20 torpedo boats, and several submarines.

TRAIN COLLISION INJURIES KEEP 17 IN HOSPITALS

Seventeen persons of the more than 50 hurt remained in hospitals yesterday recovering from injuries suffered Saturday night when an Illinois Central train from Miami, Fla., crashed into the rear of a train from New Orleans, La., at the 63d street station. Officials began an investigation into the cause and said crews of both trains would be questioned at a hearing tomorrow morning.

The accident occurred when the Sun Chaser, an 11 car train, telescoped into the rear coach of the 16 car Creole, which had halted at the station and was discharging some of its 700 passengers.

After a preliminary investigation, officials of the road said R. J. Caperton of 17907 Homewood avenue, Homewood, engineer of the Sun Chaser, apparently had run his train past a yellow block signal denoting caution and a red signal designating stop at too great a speed to halt his train in time.

GREEKS TO FIGHT UNTIL FREE, SAYS ENVOY TO U. S.

Cimon Diamantopoulos, Greek ambassador to the United States, told a Greek patriotic rally attended by 6,000 persons in Ashland Boulevard auditorium last night that Greece will "continue the fight forever" to overthrow the axis and that Italians who have made Greece suffer "will pay."

The rally was in celebration of the 122d anniversary of the Greek war of independence, and was attended by many civic leaders, including Mayor Edward J. Kelly, James B. Forgan, chairman of the Chicago chapter of Red Cross; Howell W. Murray, Chicago chairman of the citizens' committee of the Greek War Relief association, and Demetrious Benetatos, Greek consul general.

War bonds worth $100,000 were sold during the program.

Events of the Stage

BY CECIL SMITH.

Ruth Chatterton spent the last days of the week nursing a sprained and swollen ankle, the result of too much realism in her stage fight with Ralph Forbes in "Private Lives" during Thursday evening's performance at the Erlanger. Fulfilling the best traditions of a trouper, Miss Chatterton did not call off the Friday performance, even tho she had spent the day at the hospital. A stern regimen of treatment, in which prolonged soaking of the afflicted area in epsom salts seems to have played a large share, reduced the pain and swelling, and she is, so to speak, on her feet again.

A week-end visitor to Chicago was Pvt. Freddy Wittop, formerly the dance partner of Argentinita under the alias of Federico Rey. He is receiving basic training in a medical unit at Camp Grant. Last week the Rockford Star carried an interview in which he said that the thing he misses most in the army is tartar steak—raw beef prepared with the necessary spices and condiments. This was his favorite dish as a builder-upper after an arduous dance performance. On Saturday night he relieved the deficiency by wolfing a large portion of tartar steak at the Pump room, which fortunately had not exhausted its supply.

The costumes of "Ice-Capades of 1943," now in its final week at the Chicago Arena, were designed by Wittop, who as a civilian combined the two careers of Spanish dancer and costume designer. He is happy in the possession of a letter from that management expressing the hope that he will design another "Ice-Capades" when the war is over and the army is thru with him.

Those ill-conceived plays that open, fall and close in New York all in the space of a few days do not ordinarily give much cause for sympathy. Last week, however, a good many stage folk were saddened by the quick flop of a drama called "Apology," for it was in this play that Renée Carroll, the red-headed hat check girl of Sardi's restaurant whose knowledge of the theater and its people have won her national fame, had invested some of her savings for the first time. Elissa Landi was starred in "Apology" as The Lecturer, "whose hapless task," Howard Barnes reported, "it is to deliver a running commentary on the action." Mr. Barnes ended his review with a triumphant bit of excoriation: "Here is not just a bad play, but one in which all the worst aspects are thrown into high relief."

Red Cross War Relief Fund Reaches $3,000,000

The Red Cross War Fund campaign for $8,750,000 in the Chicago area passed the three million mark yesterday as the music group in the business division became the first to reach and top its quota. L. G. La Mair, president of Lyon and Healy, Inc., group chairman, presented $18,383 to Martin H. Kennelly, general campaign chairman. The sum surpassed the group's quota of $15,000 to give it a campaign standing of 120 per cent. Many of the gifts included in the amount were at least double those made last year, La Mair said. He mentioned particularly the J. P. Seeburg corporation, which with its officials and employés gave $4,000 this year as against $1,200 last year.

Sale of Seals for Crippled Starts Today

The annual Easter seal sale for the Illinois Association for the Crippled, Inc., 35 East Wacker drive, will open today and continue thru April 26. This year's goal is $50,000, $15,000 above that of last year. The purple and blue seals will sell for 1 cent each.

The association has increased its goal to provide more assistance to handicapped adults seeking war work. Three placement counsellors help find jobs for such persons. An occupational therapist visits cripples confined to their homes, training them to do piece work. The association also helps maintain occupational therapy workshops and treatment centers for crippled children.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Willet, 20 North Wacker drive, entertained officers and friends of the association at tea yesterday in their home. Julian R. Stripe, crippled winner of the Chicagoland Music festival contest in 1933, and his wife, Marian, of Waukegan, sang. Willet is chairman of the Easter seal committee. Mrs. Dwight H. Green, wife of the governor, will purchase the first seals from Barbara Clockworthy and Paul Nelson, students at the Jahn School for Crippled Children, this morning. School children will help in the sale. George H. Williamson is president of the association.

Opera Soprano Willing Herself Back to Health

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

Courage came to town in a wheel chair yesterday when Marjorie Lawrence was wheeled off a train to join the Metropolitan Opera association's Chicago season. She will sing Venus in "Tannhäuser" at the Civic Opera house tonight. This marks the Australian soprano's first appearance here since she was stricken with infantile paralysis in Mexico 18 months ago.

It is another important step on a comeback trail blazed in New York last November when Miss Lawrence sang in recital while seated in a specially constructed chair. Critics acclaimed her voice as better than ever, and the music world paid tribute to a gallant and indomitable spirit.

Seated in her drawing room at the Drake hotel, surrounded by her favorite long stemmed pink roses and with her lucky number seven twice stamped on the door, Miss Lawrence made that wheel chair no prison, but a temporary refuge. Altho she has been repeatedly told that her case is hopeless, she has repudiated invalidism by strength of will and by the faith that makes much repudiation possible. She is firmly convinced that in time she will step out of that chair into the fullness of physical life she once knew. She is just as firmly convinced that her spiritual life has been enriched by the challenge of tragic experience.

Until illness struck, Miss Lawrence had almost literally never known a day's sickness. She was a healthy outdoor girl and she still looks like one, with glowing skin, brilliant hazel eyes, and an upspringing mop of light brown hair. Two years ago today she was married to Dr. Thomas King, and the invitation to sing in opera in Mexico was to have been a continuation of their honeymoon.

But to get into Mexico, this Australian citizen had to be vaccinated against smallpox. Almost immediately she felt ill, but it was not until the general rehearsal of "Die Walküre" that splitting pain attacked her. "I was singing Brunnhilde's Battle Cry," she says, "and with each ringing 'Ho-yo-to-ho' I was pierced with pain."

So one of the world's leading dramatic sopranos found herself in a Mexican hospital, faced with the prospect of a lifetime of invalidism, a lifetime without being able to sing. When things grew unbearably bleak, she and her husband refused to accept defeat. They determined to go to Sister Kenny, the famous Australian nurse whose treatment of infantile paralysis is known the world over.

Sister Kenny was at a Minneapolis hospital, and her best results had been with cases just a few weeks in progress. Miss Lawrence had been desperately ill for two months. Nevertheless, they made the long and painful journey, and she speaks with quiet gratitude of the kindness met on that journey. Of how trainmen minimized jolts, and how, particularly in Chicago, her stopover was surrounded by gentle consideration.

So Sister Kenny took over, a bit dubiously, and began a miracle. A miracle carried on by treatments continued by Dr. King, and kept up to this day as each goal achieved means another goal to be set. To get her out of hospital atmosphere they went to Sister Kenny's house, and later to Florida.

Running thru her illness like a poignant thrust of pain was the fear that her voice had gone forever. So finally she said she had to have a piano.

"They humored me," she says. "My husband strapped me to a chair and wrapped me in blankets so I could sit up at least halfway. I found that most of all I wanted to sing Isolde. And I found that my voice was not impaired. I began to work a little each day, and as I worked I felt my back getting stronger. I knew then that in time I would be well."

During this long and uphill fight, Miss Lawrence has received thousands of letters from others who have known pain and despair. She has felt the strength they offer her and the strength they ask of her.

"All of us," she says, "have an untapped reservoir of endurance. We never know what we can stand until we have to stand it. Then we realize that we are tempered so that under stress we bend, but do not break. Never was courage so necessary to life as it is today.

"That is why, now, in my wheel chair, I love best of all to sing at army camps and at hospitals. I have something to share with people who are hurt and people who have known danger."

Young Negro Pianist Makes Debut; Polish Couple Dances

Two recitals filled in the Sunday lull between Metropolitan Opera performances. In the afternoon Robert Harris, young Negro pianist, made his Chicago debut at Kimball hall, and in the evening there was a dance recital at the Civic theater by Felix Sadowski, director, and Janina Frostowna, prima ballerina, of the Polish ballet.

Mr. Harris, who teaches at Fisk university on the Juilliard extension, is a sensitive pianist of unmistakable talent which needs more structural security, greater variety of color, and the continuity of line and mood to grasp a large work as a whole rather than as a series of apparently disconnected episodes.

He has considerable fluency, a good sense of rhythm, and a feeling for the contemplative gravity of music which marked his playing of the Bach-Rummel chorale, "Mortify Us by the Grace," and of the slow movement of the early Beethoven sonata [E flat major, opus 7]. The opening of the Beethoven rondo was scrupulously phrased, and this clarity carried over into the first two of Villa-Lobos' "Three Mary Stars." In developing these good qualities Mr. Harris can afford to encourage the hint of Viennese exuberance that gave the briefest of tantalizing touches to his performance of the Dohnanyi arrangement of Strauss' waltz from "Die Fledermaus."

Mr. Sadowski and Miss Frostowna, formerly of the Warsaw Opera Ballet, were making their last appearance as a team before Mr. Sadowski goes into the army, and the little Civic was sold out to do them honor. They are technically sound dancers with a lively flair for the Polish idiom, particularly the twirling, thumping style of the "Kujawiak," the "Lowicki," and the dance called "Umarl Maciek Umarl," which turns Sadowski into a figure of sawdust comedy, almost a burlesque of "Petrouchka." Accompaniments and solo interludes were played by Maxim Olefsky, a competent pianist, with the aid of a mysterious girl in black, not named on the program.

It was announced yesterday that Jan Kiepura, Polish tenor, and his singing wife, Marta Eggerth, will appear in joint concert at the Civic Opera house Sunday evening, May 9. C. C.

Mary E. Gore, Momence, Ill.: I use a clean sugar bag in which to wash rice before cooking. It can be rubbed and rolled under water—with no loss of rice.

Mrs. George F., Chicago: I have a copper oil can which I bought at the dime store, and I keep this near range and filled with cooking oils. It saves me trips to refrigerator and is a clean and economical way of rationing fats as needed when I cook.

Laura G., Aurora, Ill.: Last year I sewed rubber jar rings securely to all corners of my loose rugs. It keeps them from slipping and sliding.

Lenore Johnson, Chicago: To make candles burn longer, I try to remember always to put them in refrigerator several hours before I use them.

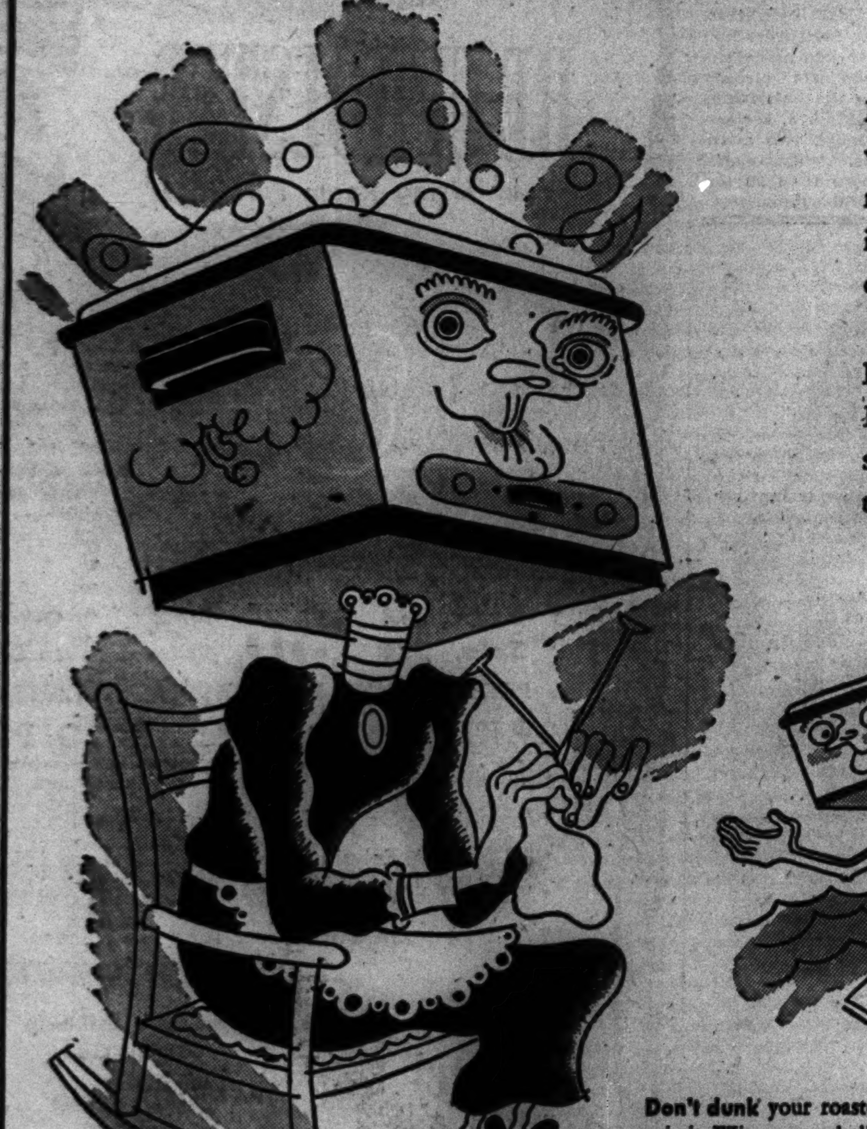
TIPS ON ELECTRIC ROASTER CARE FROM EDISON

"My secret for a long and useful life"

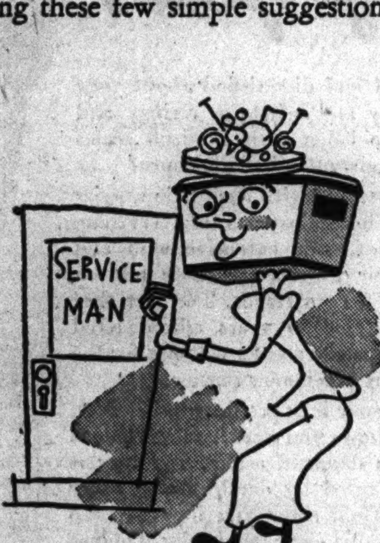


Keeping clean—that's why I don't show my years. That's why I prepare food just as delicious as does a brand new roaster. And now that the present emergency makes it impossible for me to be replaced, I am getting even better care than ever.

Yes, I'm appreciated for the food I cook and the time I save. My owner, busy on wartime work, really thinks I'm indispensable. She wants to keep me on the job. How she does it is really no secret. You can keep your roaster in tip-top shape by following these few simple suggestions.

Don't dunk your roaster in water or you'll ruin it. Wipe outer shell and broiler elements with a damp cloth.

Wash inset pan, racks, cover, broiler griddle with warm, soapy water. Rinse and dry.

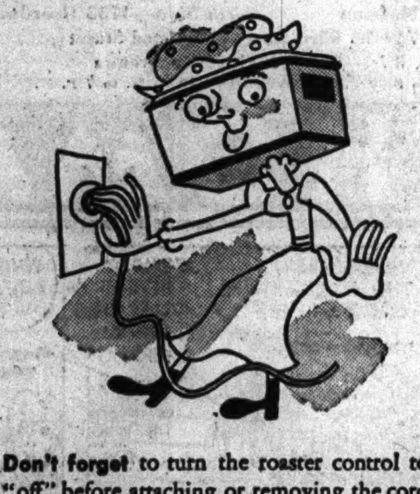


Don't fool with automatic heat control if temperature in roaster does not correspond with heat indicated. Take your roaster to a serviceman who knows how to fix it. It will pay you in the long run!

Don't connect roaster to same outlet or circuit with another appliance. This might overload circuit and blow a fuse. Also, never connect roaster to a lighting drop cord. Plug it into an appliance circuit outlet.

Don't peek in roaster too often. This allows heat and moisture to escape, robs meat of its natural flavor and nutritive value.

Then, too, draftless roasting takes less time and there is less meat shrinkage.



Don't forget to turn the roaster control to "off" before attaching or removing the cord from the wall outlet or roaster.

Take a firm grasp on the plug itself and pull it out. Remove cord from the outlet first.

Janet Brown Is Engaged to Lt. Hamill Jr.

BY JUDITH CASS.

FROM Ocean Springs, Miss., where the William Bruce Browns of Wheaton and their daughter, Ruth, are vacationing at their winter home, comes word of the engagement of another of the Browns' daughters, Janet, to Lt. Ralph C. Hamill Jr. No party is being given to announce the engagement, as Miss Brown is in Northampton, Mass., completing her senior year at Smith college, and Lt. Hamill is in Camp Hale, Colo., with the army ski troops.

Miss Brown attended Miss Porter's school in Farmington, Conn., before entering Smith. She made her debut at a tea at home during the 1939 season. Her fiancé, son of Dr. and Mrs. Hamill of Winnetka, was graduated from Milton academy and from Harvard university, class of 1938.

While part of their family is in Mississippi the Keith Browns and Lt. and Mrs. Gardner Brown are remaining in Lake Forest. Lt. Brown is on duty here with the navy, and his brother is connected with army ordnance in a civilian capacity. They have a third sister, Mrs. Dudley F. Jessopp of Highland Park. Lt. Hamill is a brother of Hunt Hamill, on active duty with the navy, and of Mrs. Hamill McEwen.

Capt. Edwin Gillette Weds Miss Jean Helen Fremont.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard A. Will of Winnetka and Mrs. William Shippen Jenks of Chicago returned last week from Dayton, O., where Mrs. Will's brother and Mrs. Jenks' nephew, Capt. Edwin Gillette, was married on March 20 to Miss Jean Helen Fremont. News of the wedding will come as a surprise to Capt. Gillette's friends here, as no announcement of his engagement had reached Chicago, where he formerly lived. He met his bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gilbert Fremont of Dayton, when he went there for duty with the army signal corps.

Missing from the family circle at the wedding were Capt. Gillette's other sister and brother, Mrs. Charles A. Chapin and Lt. [j. g.] Hyde Gillette, and their father, Edwin F. Gillette. The senior Mr. Gillette, a former Chicagoan, now lives in Pasadena, Cal. At present Mrs. Chapin is in California dividing her time between her father's home and San Diego, where Mr. Chapin is taking his basic training course with the army. She plans to return to Chicago next week-end. Lt. [j. g.] Gillette is in Washington, D. C., while his wife is keeping the home fires burning in Barrington.

Miss Fay Horton Will be Bride of Ensign Sawyier.

When the Apollo Musical club gives its spring concert on April 6 in Orchestra hall, a third generation member will be missing from her customary place in the chorus. She is Miss Fay Horton, who is to be married next Saturday to Ensign Calvin Sawyier. Unfortunately he has only a 72 hour leave, so the pretty young bride will be at home in Washington, D. C., on the night that she was to have sung in Orchestra hall.

Miss Horton's grandparents, the late Mr. and Mrs. John Leo Fay, sang in the club and her mother, Mrs. Horace B. Horton, and Mrs. Horton's sisters, Mrs. George Barclay and Mrs. Finney Briggs, sing now.

Dr. Edgar Nelson, who directs the club and who is the organist for the Chicago Sunday Evening club, will play for the wedding. It will be held at 4:30 o'clock in Bond chapel, with the bridegroom's father, Dr. Robert L. Sawyier, officiating. A reception will follow.

Miss Horton has not been having many evening parties, as her fiancé will not arrive until the eve of the wedding, but she has had the thrill of christening a ship at the Seneca shipyards. She is to have Mrs. Arthur Horton, wife of her half brother, for her matron of honor, and Dudley Elting, daughter of her half sister, Mrs. Winston Elting, as a flower girl. The bridegroom's young sister, Patsy Anne Sawyier, also will be a flower girl. Mrs. Wentzl Ruml and Miss Jean McEldowney will be the bridesmaids. It is hoped that the bridegroom's brother, Lt. Robert Sawyier of the naval air force, will be here to be best man. Mr. and Mrs. Horton are entertaining at the Palmer House next Friday night.

Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hutchins will be celebrating their 30th wedding anniversary today in Boca Grande, Fla. They plan to return to Chicago on the 7th or 8th of April.

Woman's Symphony Board to Open Series of Musicals.

The first in a series of musicals by members of the board of directors of the Woman's Symphony orchestra will be held at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at the home of Mrs. William E. Ragland. Mrs. Ragland, remembered by operagoers as Edith Mason, and Ennio Bolognini, with Mrs. Clifford Caldwell at the piano, will give the program.

Pouring tea will be Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mrs. Frederic Upham, Mrs. William M. Spencer, Mrs. Louis Eckstein, Mrs. Leeds Mitchell, and Rosa Raisa. Mrs. Russell D. Hobbs and Mrs. H. Comer Winter are co-chairmen of the programs.

The Friends of the Chicago Symphony orchestra have postponed their luncheon meeting from Wednesday to Friday, when the group will gather at 12:30 o'clock in the Crystal room of the Palmer House.

Entertain 200 of Russian Descent at Service Party

Wives and mothers of 200 army and navy men of Russian descent were entertained at a reception and tea in the Hotel Sherman yesterday by the American-Russian Young Women's club. A mass meeting for the benefit of the Red Cross will be sponsored by the club at 4 p. m. Sunday in the St. George church hall, 917 North Wood street. The club, composed of young women of Russian descent, meets at the Y. W. C. A., 59 East Monroe street, the first and third Fridays of each month. The group works for Russian war relief and similar organizations and sends packages and letters to 500 men of the army and navy. Miss Nena Neklova is president of the club.

Engaged

MISS ELIZABETH WAMPLER.

Miss Elizabeth Jean Wampler's engagement to Ensign William Macfarlane Jones was announced at a tea yesterday at the Exmoor club by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cloud Wampler of Syracuse, N. Y., formerly of Highland Park. The Wamplers and their younger daughter, Eleanor, came from the east for the party and the family will be visiting former north shore friends and neighbors until April 6.

Miss Wampler is a senior at Swarthmore college. Her fiancé, son of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Jones of Highland Park, was graduated from Dartmouth college. He is studying meteorology at the University of Chicago preparatory to going on active duty.

Engagements

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Erskine Wilson of Hyde Park boulevard announce the engagement of their daughter, Harriet Elizabeth, to Capt. Walter Eaton Spicer Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Spicer of Elizabethton, Tenn. The wedding will take place on April 10 in the chapel of St. Paul's church.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Edward Rosenau of Elkins Park, Pa., formerly of Glencoe, announce the engagement of their daughter, Bobette Joy, to Staff Sergt. William E. Wedeles, son of Elmer Wedeles of Ingleside avenue. Miss Rosenau was graduated in January from Cornell university. Her fiancé is stationed in Shenango, Pa.

Thought for the Week.

Now that butter is vanishing into the realm of remembrance of things past, Charles R. Macloon comes forth with a little advice concerning that delectable given him 50 years ago by the late Charles F. Sunther. At that time Sunther had a famous confectionery at 212 South State street, where in addition to candies he offered dainty lunches, a forerunner of the tearooms of today. The one troublesome factor in the dainty lunches was that they were served in an era when appetites were not dainty and the patrons consumed an inordinate amount of butter.

"The American public is altogether too extravagant in its consumption of butter," Mr. Sunther roared to his friend, Mr. Macloon. "People simply don't know how to spread it to its best advantage. If they did, they could effect a 50 per cent savings."

His plan for this was ingenious: Cover the slice of bread with a thin coating of butter and then eat the slice turned upside down; the butter then would touch the tongue, and its taste buds, first, and the taste of it would linger.

"Just a matter of taste psychology," he said wistfully.

Today, perhaps, Mr. Sunther would have amended his plan to: Put a slice of bread upside down in your mouth and imagine it is spread with butter.

Announcement.

At first glance it seemed to be a wedding announcement printed on fine, heavy paper, but what it said was:

"Franklin D. Roosevelt, commander in chief, and George C. Marshall, chief of staff, announce with pleasure that Harold D. Fleischmann has joined their organization for the duration."

Chivalry to the Uniformed.

A scout returned from the WAAC camp at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., brings the tale of the WAAC officer who one day requisitioned a car from the camp motor pool and a little WAAC chauffeur to go on a mission. On the way back to camp the car developed a flat tire, and the little chauffeur and the officer got out and looked glumly at it. At this crucial moment a car full of male civilians approached, slowed down, and inspected the tire. One rolled down the window and howled, "You asked for it, sister!" They then raced away.

Domestic Problem.

A gentleman we know is sadly perplexed by the problem of instilling courtesy into the mind of his 10 year old son. The first test arose when the boy's grandmother protested, angrily, that he had approached her and sung, to the tune of "Clementine," a current schoolboy ditty: "I'm a moron . . . I'm a moron. . . . I'm a moron thru and thru. . . . But I'd rather be a moron than a stinker just like you." The father tried the reproof gentle on the boy and said such a song really should not be addressed to the ears of his grandmother. "All right," the boy agreed, "I won't sing it to her any more, but what can I call the old stinker?"

Filch Bow Ties from Men for Feminine Necks

BY REA SEEGER.

Having filched virtually every thing from a men's wardrobe, it's no surprise to see the catchy new bow ties snuggling under feminine chins. The next steal will be the four in hand cravats, if the girls can master the complicated art of tying them just half as neatly as the men do. However until that time arrives, these bow ties are small items with great possibilities.

They are ideal accents for the severely tailored shirts and shirt blouses, slick beauties for suits, all the extra jacket and skirt combinations, and the shirt and slack outfits. Typical tie fabrics are used, but the ties are made considerably longer and wider than the masculine bow ties; otherwise the resemblance is startling. See them in the company of sheer white shirtwaists or as contrast for chalk white or colored shirts of cotton sharkskin or heavy silks if you would realize how different the cat's whiskers bow look.

Other filmy objects to dress up severely simple suits are some exquisitely beautiful, hand embroidered organdy vestees. The tiny designs are copied from fine patterned handwork on baby christening robes with tiny scalloped edges.

Some of these vestees have dainty turn over collars, not the tailored notch affairs but soft rollovers, also with the scalloped edge. Another model is collarless, fastens at the back with tiny little pearl buttons, and boasts a very flattering vee neckline in front with the delicate fragile embroidery around the vee line. They are expensive but with reasonable care will last a lifetime!

TODAY'S $5 PRIZE RECIPE

Onion Custard Pie.
[Serves six.]

2 cups [about 4 large] sliced cooked onions
1½ cups milk, scalded
2 eggs slightly beaten
1 teaspoon salt
Pastry for a single crust 9 inch pie

Slice drained cooked onions and place in pastry lined pie pan or, if preferred, place in buttered casserole dish. Add scalded milk slowly to beaten eggs, stirring while adding. Add salt and pour over onions. Bake in hot [450 degrees] oven 10 minutes, then reduce heat and bake in moderate [325 degrees] oven for 25 to 30 minutes longer, or until inserted knife comes out clean.

Religious Book Week to Be Started Today at Woman's Club Tea

A religious book week for the encouragement of reading in the literature of faith and democracy will be started today with a tea from 1:30 to 4 o'clock at the Chicago Women's club. The week's observance is sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews, and the Chicago Round Table of the conference is promoting the first meeting. Three speakers from the round table will be presented at the tea, Dr. Preston Bradley of the People's church, the Rev. Edward V. Cardinal of Loyola university and Dr. Louis Binstock of Temple Sholom.

In charge of religious book sections in a display will be: Protestant, Mrs. Victor Schneider, member of the American Baptist Publication society; Jewish, Mrs. Felix A. Levy, lecturer and wife of Rabbi Levy; Catholic, Mrs. Richard E. Hallinan, and good will, Mrs. Harold Lachman, co-chairman of the women's division of the Chicago Round Table of Christians and Jews. A representative from the juvenile division of the Chicago Public library will preside at a section of books for children.

These will constitute the hostess committee with Mrs. Monroe Phillips, Mrs. Arthur Compton, Mrs. B. F. Stein, Miss Thecla Doniat, Mrs. Clayton D. Eulette, Mrs. Julius Lackner, and Mrs. Augustine J. Bowe. Mrs. Eulette is president of the club and Mrs. Bowe is chairman of the book week committee.

"Man Snatcher"

SYNOPSIS: Mary Jo Laurence has been happy with her husband, Tony, during their 12 years of marriage, in spite of his failures as a builder. [illegible]

INSTALLMENT XXV.

FAMILY QUARREL.

Mary Jo suddenly realized who the women were. Mrs. Wills and Laura. Pete's snooty girl! But Pete ought to be with them!

"Hello, M's Willis!" she called cheerily. And with the tactlessness alcohol produces, she asked: "How are you, old girl? Whatcha done with Pete? Did he get to see you?" Mrs. Wills drew herself up coldly.

"I haven't the faintest idea of what you're talking about," she said. "I haven't seen your brother and hardly expect to. We've come down to be very quiet. Thank heaven I'm not entertaining."

"You never were!" Mary Jo laughed delightedly at her own joke. Tony pushed her into the car, and then they were riding away in the darkness and somebody was singing:

"There is a fountain filled with blood
Drawn from Emanuel's veins;
And shinners washed beneath that flood
Loosh all their shins and shames . . ."

It was only when Tony nudged her and asked her to keep quiet that she realized the singer was herself.

She awoke next day with a headache, feeling cross and disgusted. She'd tried to play a game she didn't know and all she'd done was to make a fool of herself in front of Maisie. Tony would never let her hear the last of it, either. He had a way of bringing up her delinquencies most conveniently whenever he needed a defense for some misdemeanor of his own. She would hear about last night's performance every time Tony did anything out of order himself for the next 10 years.

The couch in the living room had not been slept on and there was no sign of Pete anywhere around. But in the kitchen Button was playing with Jerusalem and the kittens. She fed him breakfast and packed him off to school and a little later Pete appeared, hollow eyed, a scant young beard proving that he occasionally must shave.

"You look like a sorry mule!" Mary Jo told him. "Where you been?"

"That's my business, sis," he said dourly. "I was out with a girl friend, if you really want the truth."

"Not Laura."

"What makes you think that?"

"I know," said Mary Jo, guiltily remembering the encounter of last night.

"But I did see Laura. I got my walking papers and I'm not going back."

"Want to tell what the matter was?"

"I'd just as soon. I don't care. She handed me a line about my doing something worthwhile. Pretty high and moral and it made me feel cheap as a second-hand skunk. What does she want, me or a pay envelope?"

"And this other little number, this Cuban girl. She's fun to be with and don't pick on you and makes you feel big even when you haven't got a dime in your jeans."

"You said it!" he exclaimed. "That's right! But how did you know?"

"You'd be surprised!" she told him briefly. "But don't you ever forget this one thing, buddy: the pushover will be a pushover for other people, too. Laura is the kind that lasts. She may be hard to get and sometimes kind of hard to take, but she's got what you'll need in the long run."

"Long run is right!" He gave a short laugh. "She'll have a long run catching up with me now. You don't know what sorrow is, or you'd understand."

He ate an enormous breakfast in spite of this doleful resolve, but still it worried her. He was awfully young to go tearing around a town like Key West in bad company—especially with a girl of Rosa's class. The decent side of Pete wanted Laura Wills, and Laura was a fine woman, even if she did have a fool mother. In fact, the example of a fool mother often produced the best sort of daughter.

Pete met Maisie for the first time when she trailed downstairs a little later. She rolled her eyes at him over the coffee cup and made him bring her coffee out onto the porch, and Mary Jo, busy at her oven, could soon hear them laughing and talking like old friends. Then Tony appeared and, after a brief welcome to Pete, came out into the kitchen, his face a thundercloud. All he wanted was coffee and he took the cup without sitting down.

"Nice show you put on last night!" he said, and the way he said it made the rattler in her sound a warning. All her good resolutions to make the best of the situation and say nothing unpleasant about Maisie fled.

"Almost as good a show as your lady friend puts on all the time," she retorted.

"She's not my lady friend. What are you trying to insinuate?"

"Well, you certainly seem pretty interested, Tony Laurence!" The words were out before she knew it and instantly she was sorry.

"Interested? Don't be a fool, Mary Jo. I'm sorry for Maisie, that's all. She's had a tough time of it."

"So have I had a tough time of it. But I don't go around throwing myself at other people's husbands to get out of my tough time!"

"It probably wouldn't do you much good to try it," he said with unconscious cruelty, looking at her with husbandly frankness. "Maisie doesn't mean any harm. She's high spirited, that's all."

"High spirited and low minded! Do you realize she never lifts a finger around this house? Can't you see how she neglects Button?"

"She's good hearted tho, really . . ." Tony began. Mary Jo interrupted him fiercely.

"Good hearted, my foot! She's a slattern—when there aren't any men around. She's making a fool of you, Tony, and I won't have it! I've tried to like her, but I can't and I hope Culver sends for her good and soon."

"What are you talking like that for? Anybody would think I was stuck on the girl!"

"Well, are you?"

"Of course not!" he shouted. "What's the matter with you anyway? All you've done is pick on Maisie and nag me about her ever since the first evening she came here. I'm sick and tired of it, so cut it out!"

He slammed out of the room and presently she could hear him talking lightly to the others on the porch. Mary Jo stood listening, her long hands fumbling at her apron. She was hurt by her own anger and wishing she could take back what she had said. She had been stupid and there didn't seem any way of mending her mistake. If only Tony would come back and apologize. But Tony did not come back and after a few minutes she heard him go down the porch steps, and then she heard Maisie's voice calling after him.

"Can I come along, big boy?"

"Sure! Come along! Glad to have you, baby!"

Running steps and the slamming of the car door. They were gone. It was always Maisie who rode uptown on the little errands with Tony now. Pete came and looked around the side of the kitchen door.

"What a dame!" he said. "Guess you'd better watch your old man, sis!"

"Watch him? I'm beginning not to be able to see him!" Mary Jo said it furiously and tried to mean it.

But in reality she was more perplexed than angry. She had deliberately acted to keep Maisie in the house, but she was beginning to see that it just wasn't going to work out. Holding her tongue had always been difficult for Mary Jo, who had inherited a certain forthrightness of speech from her irrepressible Grandma Harrison. And now she had made a bad matter worse by flying into a jealous temper. If it happened again there might be more serious consequences, and if the girl stayed on it would happen again.

Suppose that Bergen didn't get a job in Baltimore, and couldn't send for Maisie for weeks? Maisie couldn't go on staying here with them. Tony's reaction, even Pete's naive warning made that clear. There must be another way of looking after the girl beside keeping her right under Tony's nose. Now that Culver was disposed of temporarily, it was time to figure out an answer to this next problem. She thought of Maisie's mother. Whether Maisie liked it or not, that was probably going to be the solution.

At the first opportunity Mary Jo dug out the address she had written down and wrote a painstaking letter. A pen was the weapon which she handled least proficiently, but finally after much labor she got what she wanted to say on paper. She wrote nothing about actual conditions but only that Button needed his grandma because the rest of his family were having a little trouble and could Mrs. Dolman please come down for a visit as soon as possible, without letting Maisie know in advance? It was important, really it was.

DORIS BLAKE'S LETTER BOX

Have you a perplexing problem on which you need friendly counsel? Write to Doris Blake in care of the Chicago Tribune, Tribune Tower, Chicago, Ill. If you wish a personal reply, inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Victims of Rumors.

"Dear Miss Blake: A girl in our neighborhood spreads false rumors about several of us fellows. It has gotten to such a point that many girls refuse to go out with us. What should we do? "RINDOS."

If the rumors are false, they're certainly vicious, and you boys should go along the way you've always gone. In time, then, the girls will learn they've believed wrongly.

Sensible, Not Selfish.

"Dear Miss Blake: I've been going with a girl for over a year. I love her. Do you think it's selfish of me to make her wait one more year before giving her an engagement ring? I'm 20, she's 18. DUKE."

Not selfish, just sensible, for you're both young enough to wait to see if your love lasts.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

There are those who wouldn't DREAM of missing a Red Skelton radio program. To these devotees, "Whistling in Dixie" will come as manna from heaven—for Red's all over the place indulging in his special brand of humor, which is funny if you think so, and sometimes I think so.

The script presents him as "The Fox," a radio detective, who's out on a limb because his fiancée [Ann Rutherford] has refused to marry him until he finds it possible to go on a two weeks' honeymoon. . . .

Never short on initiative, Red feigns a peculiar illness. . . . Every time the word "murder" is mentioned he goes into a fit. . . . Fine business for a detective whose line is solving murders over the air! . . . Reluctantly his boss says, "Okay, go ahead, marry the girl and take two weeks. . . ." BUT—

Before the two can get away the bride-to-be receives a scarab, which is an S O S sign agreed on between her and her best friend [Diana Lewis]. The girls have promised to rush to one another's aid whenever the scarab shall appear. . . . So down south go Wally and Carol—planning to be married immediately in Ellamae's home town. . . . Can't be done, they find, as state laws require five days' residence. . . .

So—to the job of finding out what happened to Ellamae's fiancé, who has disappeared. . . . Enough things occur to keep a serial whodunit running at least 12 weeks.

For the most part the action is simply preposterous. . . . Now and then it's amusing. . . . It and the accompanying dialog are consistently wild.

The players are capable and I am sure that they and the director had a high old time for themselves making this nutty movie.

See you tomorrow.

Guggenheim Awards Include 11 Women in List of 64 Given

New York, March 28 (AP).—Eleven women were included among 64 artists, writers, and scholars in the list of fellowship awards of the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation, announced today. It was the largest number of women ever included in a list for any one year. Martha Graham of New York, widely known danseuse, was among the new fellows. She will compose dances on American themes to music by Carlos Chavez, Mexican composer, and Aaron Copeland, American composer, both former fellows.

Midwestern scholars who received fellowships are Dr. Edgar Anderson, professor of botany, Washington university, to study genetics of Indian corn in Mexico and southwest United States; Dr. John Donald Lewis, associate professor, political science, Oberlin college, Oberlin, O., to write a book on American political trends since 1900; Dr. John Theodore Flanagan, assistant professor of English, University of Minnesota, to write a book on literature of the middle west from 1820; Dr. Normand Lockwood, associate professor of music, Oberlin Conservatory of Music, to continue music study; Dr. E. Lucy Braun, associate professor, plant ecology, University of Cincinnati, to study ecology of deciduous forests; Philip Blair Rice, associate professor of philosophy, Kenyon college, Gambier, O., to study ethics and humanist theory; Dr. Wilbur Kitchener Jordan, associate professor, English history, University of Chicago, to write history of English thought in the 17th century; Dr. David Harris Willson, associate professor of history, University of Minnesota, for biography of James I. of England and Scotland; Dr. George Wilbur Meyer, assistant professor of English, Cleveland College of Western Reserve university, to study William Wordsworth's artistic and philosophic development; Dr. Helge-Karl August Kokeritz, visiting professor of English, University of Minnesota, for study of English Shakespearean speech.

Bond Drive to Build New Cruiser Chicago Reported Over Goal

Early reports of rallies held yesterday indicated that the drive for $40,000,000 worth of war bonds in 40 days to replace the cruiser Chicago had been successfully completed, Oscar G. Mayer, executive chairman of the cruiser committee for the treasury department, said last night. He predicted that final returns would show a "comfortable margin" over the goal and commented that a drive on such a scale never before had been attempted in the United States.

Fulfilment of a million dollar quota plus an extra amount was reported by the German-Austrian-Hungarian Societies of North America at a rally in their hall, 2040 North avenue, yesterday afternoon. The Order of Ahepa and the American Zionist Organization of Chicago expected to fill their quotas at rallies in the Ashland auditorium, Ashland avenue and Van Buren street, and in the Auditorium theater last night.

Kelly High school again upheld its "Jeep a Week" slogan last week when Leona Iwaniec, 14 years old, 3011 West 40th place, brought $900 in cash for bonds to the Gunsaulus branch of the school. Her bond purchases since Jan. 1 exceed $1,500. Kelly and its branch have averaged $1,000 a week in bond purchases this month.

Looking at Hollywood . . . . By Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Cal., March 28.—I don't know why the Paramount deal for the life of Paul Whiteman fell thru, but I do know that Harry Cohn is mighty eager to do it if he can get Bing Crosby and Fred Astaire. Paul was giving me the definition of an executive—a guy who sits behind a big polished desk while a ham actor screams at him. But once when Paul was having a set-to with John Royal, Royal started screaming, and Paul said, "Listen! If you're going to ham it up, get up on your feet. I'll take your seat." . . . Paul was talking about the executive ability of his wife. When his year's expenses amounted to $48,000, she asked if she might take over. She did, and saved him $17,000 the first year. She's making their farm in New Jersey pay, in spite of having added six bathrooms to the farmhouse. . . . On April 10, on the blue network, they're giving a salute to Paul, and will put on the men he started in the business, including Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey, Matty Malneck, Bing Crosby, and Morton Downey.

Different Life.

Many have wondered what became of José Mojica, former film star and opera singer who made Spanish films for Fox. I've just learned that he's in a monastery in Peru. . . . Irving Berlin's "This Is the Army" is fast becoming "This is Hollywood" since so many of our players are working in it, with soldiers taking a back seat. A soldier dances for Alan Hale, while Alan gets the closeups. It's a strange sight seeing the army boys going from one market to another after a day's work, trying to find hamburger or a chop. Most of them do their own cooking. By the time they get there, all that's left is a bunch of pigtails. As one said to me: "Gosh! It will be nice getting back to the army again—and that good chow."

He's Promised.

Louis Armstrong and his band will be in "Jam Session." Stepin Fetchit is also being brought out, and his manager says he'll be the best behaved man in Hollywood. But does Fetchit know it ? .. . Don Wilson's dad, Capt. Lincoln Wilson, brought back a dozen fancy knives and daggers from Tokio and Manila, after the Spanish war, for his collection. Don's sending them back, via the U. S. army, and not as a collection. . . . "Paris, Tennessee" has quite a cast lined up, what with Ida Lupino, Dana Andress, Maureen O'Hara, and Anne Baxter. . . . Jimmy Hilton's signed to write on "The Time Between," which is fast becoming a best seller story of a 10 day leave and decidedly an adult comedy.

Overlooked.

With all the rave notices given "The Human Comedy" and direction of Clarence Brown, most of the critics said it was a relief not to have a menace—overlooking that it had the greatest menace of all—war. . . . Trudy Erwin misses those camp shows she did with Kay Kyser. She is getting herself a guitar player so they can do the hospitals up and down the coast. . . . Yesterday Susanna Foster, director Arthur Lubin, and Hal Mohr, camerman, all received first editions from Nelson Eddy. . . . Mary Benny is sporting a new gold and diamond clip that looks like a soup plate.

Crying Need.

In talking with a government official, I was appalled to learn that over the week-ends 6,500 service men have no place to sleep in Hollywood except on the floor of the station, lobbies of hotels, and couches in the lobbies of apartments. Something must be done about this, and quickly. Other cities have provided for their comfort, and it's giving Hollywood a black eye because we're doing nothing. What's happened to our people, especially those producers with million dollar salaries? It's little enough to offer a night's lodging when soldiers are giving their lives. Right after Christmas, when I saw soldiers walking the streets in wet clothing I wrote suggesting that studios set aside a couple of stages, outfitted with army cots and blankets. But has anything been done? No, except by Anne Lehr, who's arranged to take care of 85.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1943: By Ely Culbertson.]

No player has done his full duty in the bidding until he has investigated all the avenues leading to a final contract. Consider South's excellent bidding technique in the following deal, which occurred in the recent Eastern tournament.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.
Match-point scoring.

NORTH
♥ Q J 3 2
♦ 9
♣ Q 5

WEST
♠ 7
♥ 10 8 4
♦ K J 10 8 6 4
♣ 4 3 2

EAST
♠ Q 10 8 4
♥ A 6
♦ A 7 5 3 2

SOUTH
♠ 6 5
♥ K 9 7 5
♦ Q
♣ A K J 9 7 6

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 club	Pass	1 spade	Pass
2 clubs	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 hearts	Pass	Pass	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding, up to South's four heart bid, was unexceptionable, and indeed was duplicated at all the other tables. Most of the other Souths, however, when it came to responding to partner's three spade bid, figuratively shrugged their shoulders and bid four spades. They reasoned that their doubleton spade was sufficient support in view of North's strong rebid, and in this they would have been correct except for the important point that a better bid, and one that could not be misinterpreted, was available. I refer to this particular South's actual selection of four hearts.

This South reasoned as follows: North obviously had a hand on which he wanted to get to game. Also obviously, he had a good spade suit. But it was quite possible that, over South's two clubs, North might have been somewhat embarrassed for a perfect bid. He might well hold four hearts, but if he held six spades in a fairly strong hand, he would naturally jump in his longer suit, being unwilling to give South the picture of a 5-5 distribution in the majors. Since South himself had bid only two clubs on the second round, a four heart call over North's three spades would clearly announce a four-card suit, and, moreover, because of the delayed nature of the bid, would suggest that that suit needed considerable support.

As may be seen, South's analysis was perfect and resulted in a splendid contract. East's double of four hearts was motivated by his great desire to drive the opponents back into spades, but the ruse did not work, and North-South came out with top score.

The Childless Marriage Often Is Unsuccessful

BY DORIS BLAKE.
[Copyright: 1943: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"I have been married two years and have an ambitious husband who is engaged in defense work and not likely to be called up, which fact bears influence on what follows:

"He takes courses evenings toward his master's degree and he talked me into taking some courses, too; I never had a college education. We have an apartment above his folks, which I am not in favor of, as I do not get along with his mother. However, we save on rent this way.

"My husband wants children, but I told him I wanted my home first. Do you think I'm wrong in view of the war condition? I am temperamental and think perhaps we have trouble enough just among ourselves. On the other hand, I know one may lose out, being too old to enjoy children when they grow up. Do you think it is worth the price these days where one has to wait so long before one can have a home and the comforts of family life? Perhaps I am too selfish. What do you say?

"CONCERNED."

We don't understand why you figure war conditions affect you financially. Your man probably is earning more than he has before. You say he may not be called up. Then where does the war influence your stand?

Yes, we think you are not only selfish—but pretty shortsighted. You say you want the comforts of a home first. That never means the comforts when so expressed. It means you want the luxuries. But that is beside the point. Your man wants children and you want to hold your husband, don't you? A man is one of the comforts of a home, you know. Some one has said that the most concentrated form of ego is that of a couple refusing to have children, thinking themselves sufficient to the scene of domestic success. It's a rare case in which two people survive the ordeal with success and then only when one or the other is a dependent by nature or by illness.

However, you sense that you should have a child. When you do have it you'll find all the answers to what it requires to make a home and to your other problems, too.

BY RUTH MACKAY.

Nosey Sows Seeds of Suspicion.

"My current report concerns an advertisment in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for a 'scintillating secretary.' In the interests of social science I sought to determine: [a] What percentage of secretaries scintillate; [b] what relation scintillation bears to blonde or brunette coloring; [c] how essential to modern business is secretarial scintillation. To this end I engaged the secretaries of business leaders in conversation. For example, instead of asking abruptly to see Mr. Brown I opened the conversation with the query, 'What are you doing tonight, Toots?' The results follow:

"Two replied, 'Ask my boss.'

"One—a redhead—answered, 'Going out with Anthony Eden.'

"One—a towhead—said, 'O, it's the Quiz Kid again!'

"One—a brunette dolly—thought I was asking for a date. I was forced to take her to the movies. She was not scintillating.

"In the elevators and at the lunch counters I listened attentively to white collar conversations, but found no evidence of scintillation. Remarks were punctuated with:

"'You can say that again, brother.'
"'That's for sure.'
"'O, yeah?'
"'Cute' . . . 'lousy' . . . 'swell.'

[The latter were more favored by brunettes I noted.]

"All in all my research was a dismal failure; so I turned to the executives for enlightenment. I telephoned five in the evening at home. All were working late at the office, their wives said. The wives, with whom I discussed the matter, proved unsatisfactory to my survey. When asked if their husbands' secretaries scintillated, three banged up the receiver; two said with unnecessary emphasis, 'Certainly NOT!' The five executives telephoned me the following morning."—Nosey Parker.

Aprons with High Fashion

Aprons have earned well-deserved fashion prominence during the last year, for the "home front" activities. These two patterns make both a slip-over apron with appliqué trim and an apron-frock with ruffling for finish. The appliqué portion of pattern No. 2681 also makes potholders to match the pockets.

Style No. 2681 is designed for sizes small, medium, and large. Size medium requires, for apron, 2⅛ yards of 35 inch material; for pockets or potholders, ¼ yard of printed fabric and ⅛ yard of plain.

Style No. 2637 is designed for sizes 14 to 20 and 36 to 48. Size 36 requires 2⅞ yards of 35 inch material with 1⅛ yards of ruffling.

Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents to cover mailing.

Women in War Work

By Kate Massee

Mrs. Hubert W. Jerry is one of those women who manage their time so well that they have time and energy to spare for war and neighborhood projects. As an example of accomplishing these many aims without slighting any of them, we point with pride to Mrs. Jerry's schedule.

Beginning at home, she does all her own housework, including canning, and keeps house for her husband, who's in war work, and 14 year old twin daughters.

First in importance in Mrs. Jerry's outside activities is her job as a Red Cross nurses' aid. She started work at Wesley hospital as soon as the doors opened last year, and has put in almost 700 hours since. She is on duty two or three days a week, and also is on call to substitute at the blood bank when the need arises.

In addition, Mrs. Jerry is nurses' aid chairman for her community OCD in Edgebrook, is helping in the March war fund drive for the Red Cross, has just made her first donation to the Red Cross blood bank, is chairman of by-laws for the Edgebrook Woman's club, active in the Singers' group, is citizen and civilian service chairman of the Northwest council of the PTA, and librarian for the local garden club.

Her favorite pastimes, when she has time for them, are golf and swimming. Recently she took up bowling. Her average score is 133, which the sports department says is pretty good for a beginner.

How to plan an adequate diet under rationing will be discussed at the new series of three nutrition classes, the first of which will begin at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow in room 405 at Red Cross headquarters, 529 South Wabash avenue. Mrs. Jana G. Krause, director of nutrition for the Chicago chapter, asked that women interested in taking the course enroll in one of the three classes by calling Wabash 7850. Others will begin at 6:30 o'clock Wednesday and Thursday evenings. The course consists of eight two and a half hour classes which meet for eight consecutive weeks.

The Evanston unit of Bundles for America will sponsor a benefit dessert bridge party on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Andrew McNally, 1041 Judson avenue, Evanston. The proceeds will go to purchase yarn for the unit's knitters. Mrs. John B. Sherman is chairman.

The third in a series of OCD directed cooking schools designed to show housewives how to reap the maximum in nutrition from ration points will be held from 1:30 until 3:30 o'clock tomorrow, Thursday and Friday in the auditorium of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, 122 South Michigan avenue. Mrs. William H. Stanley, director of the OCD consumer information service, said the subject of this series would be bread, with Clara Gebhart Snyder of the Wheat Flour Institute speaking and demonstrating. Admission will be by ticket. These may be obtained at neighborhood consumer information centers.

Registration is still open for the preliminary lecture series for medical social service aids, which starts at 10:30 o'clock Friday morning at the volunteer office of civilian defense and Council of Social Agencies, 111 West Jackson boulevard. Other lectures will be given from 11 o'clock until noon on April 5, 7, 9, 13, and 15. Heads of social service departments of Chicago's hospitals will speak. High school education, good health, interest in people, and adaptability are the main qualifications for the training. Volunteers are expected to spend, at the completion of the course, six hours weekly in hospital social service departments doing such work as accompanying handicapped patients to the hospital, assisting in summer camp programs, visiting clinic patients, tutoring, and stenographic and clerical work.

The Healthy Child Often Overactive

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS
[Copyright: 1943: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Thank goodness, I'll know where you are for a few hours, anyway," said a young mother as she hustled her 2 year old son into his pajamas and lifted him into his crib.

"I'm simply exhausted," went on Jackie's mother. "He's never still for one moment, unless he's asleep. I can't trust him outdoors alone, so I sat out in the backyard this afternoon thinking I could watch him and do some darning at the same time. I never even threaded my needle because I was up and down continuously. He fell into the rose bed; tried to climb the grape arbor; went around into the front yard three times, once almost into the street, and finally managed to turn on the hose.

"Talking doesn't do a bit of good. I find myself saying, almost automatically, all day long, "Jackie stop doing that," "Put that down!" "Come here!" "Don't touch anything!" "Get out of the way!" "Come back!" He'll simply stop doing one thing and immediately start something else. Scolding and spanking are useless. . . ."

Around the age of 2, children are more or less at the peak of incessant activity and perpetual curiosity. They need to be watched by their grown-ups.

If you'll only realize what a dynamic being a little child is; if you'll feed his needs, give him outlets for his energy, and leave him as free as is compatible with safety, you'll save much of your strength. I don't say you won't be tired, but you won't be wasting yourself. And there won't be that discord which is in itself a source of fatigue.

Indoors and outdoors there are countless things your small one finds to do quite by himself, things which don't require watching. Some of them may make a little trouble for you, but what of that if contentment reigns?

You can't expect your little runabout to stay near at hand unless he has something to amuse him in your vicinity. He can't sit or stand still. His thought and hands must be occupied. So it's up to you to provide the necessary toys and perhaps assist now and then in order to assure him of your interest. Contentment and activity go hand in hand if you've got the right slant. And if you have, then when you do have to correct something or give a direction, you can easily gain his or her compliance.

You and your little boy or girl can wear each other out. But it's not necessary, because the small child is easy to manage and such fun, if you put your mind on it and acquire the proper knack.

Instead of trying to check his perfectly natural urge to be active, you will understand and provide for it, you'll be much happier, and I can assure you, you will not get so weary.

Red Cross to Open New Welfare Office on the South Side

A new south side district office of the Red Cross military and naval welfare service will be opened at 6208 Drexel avenue late in April, the Chicago chapter of the Red Cross has announced. The building, which was leased from the Jewish Children's Bureau of Chicago, formerly was the Chicago Home for Jewish Orphans.

The new office will serve families of army and navy men living south of 47th street and within the city limits. The similar office at 616 South Michigan avenue will continue to serve suburban communities and the area north of 47th street.

The activities of the military and naval welfare service, financed by the Red Cross war fund now being raised, include relief and assistance to army and navy men and their families, providing information on emergency furloughs, and other social service duties provided for in army and navy regulations.

2 Odd Requests Made for Aid in Worthy Causes

Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Today we present two unusual requests which we hope can be filled.

The first comes from a group of women who have been trying to provide small comforts for an army camp in this state. Its location is barren and unattractive, and there is little recreational equipment. The club women have furnished two comfortable day rooms, for which the men are very grateful. However, their money is exhausted now and they have been unable to fill one other request from the service men. There are 200 to 300 in the camp and they are eager to print a small newspaper. Officers feel it would be a morale-builder, but no one can provide the necessary equipment. If our readers can provide any sort of printing machine, shipping charges will be paid.

Miss A. is an elderly invalid, living on an old age pension. She is unable to leave her home, and because her left arm is paralyzed, cannot give her hair proper attention. On her small income, she cannot afford to pay any large sum to have a hairdresser come to her home. If any reader is interested in helping her solve this problem, further information may be obtained thru this department.

Thru the Looking Glass

One of our biggest and best beauty salons, always geared to de luxe service, has set aside a special corner, a little salon in itself, really, where the business girl may get her work done well and inexpensively in double quick time. It's a bright, cheerful little place done in gray and yellow and all the operators there have been trained to work with speed at no sacrifice of good service.

We love this, and think it's a step in the right direction. Beauty is our business, but there is no time we begrudge like the time spent under a dryer! In this new little shop the dryers are whizzes, and every step in the process of being shampooed, or having hair styled, or nails glorified has been speeded up as much as possible. As a result it's entirely possible to be spruced up on a lunch hour. As things stand now it's even possible to have lunch sent down from the tea shop in the same building, but we never could see much percentage in that. Nibbling on a sandwich while hair or nails are being done never did strike us as a very appetizing bit of business.

In this salon within a salon you'll find girl stylists, and very good they are, too. As you may already know, girls are being trained in great numbers to replace the men who are going off to the wars. Results are eminently satisfactory. Well trained girls, it's been discovered, can shape and set hair as expertly as men. And girls, being rather new at the profession and eager to make good at it, are perfectly willing to help you save time when they can. They are free, we've found, of the temperament the old timers have been able to indulge in.

Hairdos Should Harmonize with Spring Clothes

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.
[Copyright: 1943: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Reviewing fashion showings, it seems to us that hair is important this year. A becoming coiffure lies within the beauty scope of all women who strive to be well groomed.

The clothes, as you know, are lovely, a challenge to those who foolishly rushed out and stocked up on numbers which may be outmoded before they're worn. But it is the woman's head you study and its relation to the ensemble. Hair is such a near relative to the ensemble, we might call it the distinguished member of the family. Or, in some regrettable cases, the undistinguished family member. You don't find undistinguished looking heads shown along with good clothes. The smartest looking coiffures harmonize with clothes.

Consequently, we merely want to urge that you study fashion showings, not to concentrate on the line and dress material, but to study the hair presented along with the high style clothes.

And when you study the showings, observe how varied are the hair styles. There is a style for the woman herself, for her clothes and her face. We want you to notice the harmony between hat and hair lines. Soon you'll realize that it is all money thrown away if you don't begin your spring outfit planning with concentration on the hair, its styling and its glowing beauty. After that, no one knows better than you what you should do about it.

CHICAGOANS END HARD DRILLS FOR NEW YORK

RED WINGS BEAT LEAFS, 4-2, FOR 3 TO 2 CUP LEAD

Score Three Goals in Final Period.

Detroit, Mich., March 28 (AP).—The Detroit Red Wings tonight whipped the Toronto Maple Leafs, 4 to 2, to take a 3-2 edge in their Stanley cup playoff series. Detroit, winner of the National Hockey league championship, and Toronto, which finished in third place, will play the sixth game in Toronto Tuesday night in the best-four-of-seven series.

The other two Stanley cup contenders, Boston and Montreal, will meet on the same night in Boston. Montreal trails in the series, three games to one. Victories for Detroit and Boston Tuesday will put these two teams in the finals. This series also is best-four-of-seven.

Bruneteau Makes Winning Goal.

Tonight the Red Wings won with a stirring third period rally. They entered the final session trailing the Maple Leafs, 2 to 1. Detroit quickly tied the score, then Modere [Mud] Bruneteau rapped in the winning goal.

Before 13,646 spectators the Wings fell behind, 2 to 1, on Toronto's second period spurt which produced unassisted goals by Mel Hill and Babe Pratt 59 seconds apart. Then Sid Abel squared the count for Detroit in the third minute of the third period and Bruneteau broke it up by scoring his first goal of the series.

In a desperate effort to get back into the running the Leafs pulled Goalie Walter [Turk] Broda out of the nets in the last minute. With a second remaining Abel slid a 65 foot shot into the open cage to make the count 4 to 2.

The sellout house ran the series attendance for five games to 67,542. Lineups:

Holzrichter Takes Table Tennis Title

St. Louis, Mo., March 28 (AP).—Billy Holzrichter, petty officer from the Great Lakes naval training station, Chicago, won the men's finals of the National Table Tennis tournament tonight by defeating Tibor Hazi of Washington, D. C., 21-12, 10-21, 21-16, and 21-11.

The sailor, who was seeded No. 1 in the tournament, eliminated Staff Sergt. Laszlo Bellak of San Diego, a former national champion, seeded No. 8, in the semi-finals, 21-16, 21-19, and 21-15.

Four in Row for Sally.

The women's title was won by Sally Green of Indianapolis, who defeated Mrs. Mae Clouther of Arlington, Mass., 21-9, 21-8, 21-14, for her fourth consecutive national championship.

Bellak and Hazi took the men's doubles match, defeating Dick Miles of New York City and Lee Lowry of Newton, Mass., 21-19, 17-21, 15-21, 21-16, and 21-18. Leah Thall of Columbus, O., and Holzrichter, successfully defended the mixed doubles title they won at Detroit last year by scores of 21-16, 21-18, 22-24, and 21-9 against Mrs. Clouther and Hazi.

Levy Wins Boys' Title.

Allan Levy of St. Louis defeatd Don Lasater, 7, also of St. Louis, in the finals of the boys' singles, 21-13, 21-14, 19-21, 21-19. Morris Bernstein of Newark, N. J., national veterans champion in 1937 and 1938, regained his title by trouncing John Tatom of Omaha, Neb., 21-11, 21-16, 21-10, then teamed with Tatom to win the veterans doubles title from Ed Cannon, St. Louis, and Don Feak, Toledo, O., 21-16, 21-16, 13-21, 21-17.

Who Are We?

Just who are we to judge the plan
That God has made for our fellow man?
Just who are we to prate aloud
Of superior race in a common crowd?
And why do we choose ourselves to be Always the best of His family tree?
By what rule of nature, what word of God,
Are we made the rulers of other men's sod?
Where in the world is one today
Who had the choice of his color to say?

Where in the reaches of earth's domain,
Where the authority for man to maintain,
That his language is better, his face is best
Under the heaven which has every man blest?
We have no choice of our own earthly frame,
Our racial features, our family name—
And we who our destiny cannot control
Should not live to master another man's soul.

SOX SCORE FOUR IN 7TH; DEFEAT TIGERS, 7 TO 6

Assault Henshaw in Big Inning.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Evansville, Ind., March 28.—The White Sox, by way of easing the embarrassment caused by their shutout experience yesterday, turned on the Detroit Tigers this afternoon for a 7 to 6 victory and an even break in the two day exhibition visit. The slim concluding margin hardly indicates the true happenings, because the Sox had the job well in hand all the way, the Detroit delegates being more or less impotent until toward the finish when they scored five times.

The Sox reserved most of their heavy batting for Roy [Lefty] Henshaw, whom they well remembered as a member of their long standing enemies, the Cubs. They subjected the little fellow to a six hit, four run blast in the seventh. Dick Wakefield, the Tigers' $52,500 prize outfielder from Chicago dropped a fly to present the Chicagoans a run at Hal Manders' expense in the first inning. A pair of doubles netted the Sox two runs in the fourth while Hal Newhouser was pitching.

Haynes Is Hit Hard.

While Manager Jim Dykes had no reason to complain about the way in which his lads wielded their bats, he was a bit surprised by his pitching developments. Ed Welland, the perpetual rookie, did a three inning swing and was scored on once because Luke Appling kicked a ground ball. Bill Dietrich followed with a term of equal length, and altho wild he surrendered only one hit and no runs. Then Joe Haynes, who is in fair to middling shape as the result of preliminary training, took charge. The enemy slapped him around for five hits and as many runs in the last three sessions.

Dykes' freshmen did well enough in some ways and not so well in others. Thurman Tucker fanned twice but made amends with a double, a real rifle shot thru short. Ralph Hodgin, the fly chaser from San Francisco, couldn't get the ball past the infield in four attempts and on defense became mixed up with Tucker on one of those "you first, mister" plays that led to a hit and difficulties for Haynes in the seventh. However, Hodgin did make an over the shoulder grab that was helpful during Dietrich's régime. Guy Curtright's assistance to the cause was the double in which Wakefield assisted and a genuine single in the seventh.

Wakefield Helps Out Sox.

The Sox got a scoring toe hold in the first inning when Tucker was plunked by Manders and Joe Kuhel singled after Appling had fanned. Wakefield obliged by dropping Curtright's fly, Tucker scoring on the Soldiers in England Want Full Schedule for Majors

LONDON, March 28 [Correspondence of the Associated Press].—American soldiers in Great Britain want the major leagues to play a complete baseball season this year. That's the overwhelming consensus of an informal survey made of thousands of men in United States camps by Fred Corcoran of Boston, now with the Red Cross recreation division.

"Their favorite topic of conversation is sports," said Corcoran, on leave of absence as tournament manager for the Professional Golf association.

"They're still arguing about what caused the 1942 collapse of the Brooklyn Dodgers. They want the major league races to continue so they can root these thousands of miles away for their favorite teams."

Well Posted on Sports.

Stars and Stripes, daily army publication for American soldiers, keeps them posted on all of the important sports news from the United States and Corcoran said the sports page is the paper's most popular feature.

Corcoran conducts a sports quiz at American camps thruout Great Britain and he reports that next to baseball, boxing ranks second in interest.

"Everywhere you go the boys will want to discuss whether Jack Dempsey or Joe Louis was the better fighter," Corcoran added. "Boxing also is a popular sport among the soldiers over here and some better than average fighters have been turned up by the inter-division championship matches.

"What these boys really would like for their camp shows is some outstanding sports personality like Dempsey, Bobby Jones, Babe Ruth, or some outstanding football or basketball coach.

Talk and Argue Sports.

"If some one like that could come over here and talk to these boys it would provide a tremendous lift in morale. They talk and argue sports from morning until night.

"The American football season has been over for three months now, but the soldiers from Texas still argue with those from the Western conference area which teams were better. And the boys from the south and west coast also get in on those arguments."

Sport not only is a conversational subject but a prime activity subject in all American camps.

Baseball teams already have seen action, aided by a premature British spring, and a highly successful winter season of basketball, boxing, and wrestling has just been completed.

TOLEDO QUINTET MEETS ST. JOHN'S IN COLLEGE FINALS

New York, March 28 (AP).—The collegiate basketball season closes this week with two championship games in Madison Square Garden tomorrow and Tuesday nights and the sport's contribution to the Red Cross on Thursday night.

University of Toledo and St. John's of Brooklyn will meet in the final of the National Invitation tournament tomorrow night. Wyoming, western winner, and Georgetown, eastern king, will play for the National Collegiate A. A. title Tuesday.

The invitational and N. C. A. A. champions will meet Thursday night in Madison Syuare Garden with the receipts going to the American Red Cross.

WESTERNERS TURN ON POWER IN BIDS TO WIN FIGHTING BERTHS

Coaches Face Tough Job in Making Final Choices.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Chicago's Golden Gloves fighters snapped thru their last hard workout yesterday in preparation for Wednesday's Intercity matches. Realizing that it was the last chance they had to impress the coaches with their hitting ability, the boys blazed punches at one another with a reckless zest. From now until the time they step into the Stadium ring to meet New York's boxers, the Chicago boys will be held to comparatively light exercises in the Illinois Athletic club gym.

With all the data in hand, Co-coaches Issy Kline and Fred Caserio now will puzzle over the best possible lineup for the Intercity matches. And whatever they decide upon it had better be good because the New Yorkers look tougher than ever this time. Last year they knocked down Chicago's long held supremacy and this year hope not only to retain control of the situation but also to break the tradition of the Chicago boys' invincibility in their home ring.

Difficult Decisions Ahead.

Kline and Caserio will have some difficult decisions to make because in some divisions they have just too many good fighters. For instance Levi Southall and Tim Dalton are shooting for the alternate position behind Chuck Hunter, the 135 pound champion.

They've eased the situation in the 160 pound class by dropping the aggressive, hard hitting Harry Joyce down to the welterweight division, leaving William Johnson and Hy Bronstein to slug it out between them for the honor of fighting in the alternate spot under middleweight champion Samson Powell.

In the featherweight class, which is dominated by Champion Tony Janiro and Runner-up Jackie Graves, the coaches won't have to hesitate a moment in making their choice—and they're banking on a sweep of the two fights in this class.

Expect Victory from Joyce.

Furthermore, Joyce went so well against middleweight opposition in the Golden Gloves tournament that Chicago fans are expecting a victory from him if he is picked as the welterweight alternate. Against a fighter of that weight Joyce's hitting power would be considered dynamite. With Morris Corona taking care of the championship spot in that same class, it would surprise no one if there should be another Chicago sweep here.

Both coaching staffs will withhold their lineup choices until it's time to weigh in Wednesday noon. The weighing will have no terrors for the Chicago squad as all the boys are comfortably within reach of the limits.

With prospects of another sellout, the advance sale of tickets continues briskly. Reserved seats may be had at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and in the Tribune Tower lobby. Prices are $3.30, $2.20, $1.65, and $1.10.

Bitter Battles Are Ahead.

The fans who gather in the Stadium Wednesday night will be expecting one of the most bitterly fought battles in the entire Intercity series. Eight of the previous fifteen were won by Chicago and four by New York, the other three having been 8 to 8 ties. Very few were one sided and on many occasions the fighters who took the ring for the last bout of the evening were the ones who decided which way the verdict would go. The boys are so evenly matched this time that a similar situation is expected to develop Wednesday night.

Eastern Lineup for Intercity Bouts Is Revised.

BY BILL MURTHA.

New York's Golden Glovers sharpened their sights on the ultimate object of their midwestern journey—the defeat of Chicago—when they put in their toughest and longest day in their Medinah club of Chicago training headquarters yesterday.

The kinks of the long journey west were well worked out in the Saturday training session and yesterday the easterners went six sparkling rounds apiece, three of them in the ring.

Another of New York's champions, Dale Heersche the 160 pounder, was lost to the invaders yesterday when Dr. Benjamin Malerba, team physician, examined his ribs and decided he would be unable to fight. Heersche, who is a private in the army air forces and is awaiting cadet training as a pilot, was sent home to Fort Wayne, Ind., to visit his folks. Bill Bradley, eastern coach, then began shifting his lineup around.

Kroeten at 161 Pounds.

The best break the New Yorkers have had is the presence of Chief Boatswain's Mate Herb Kroeten of Minneapolis. Herb can fight at either 160 or 175 and when Heersche was eliminated the big coast guardsman was put in the steam room to lose a bit of the excess poundage he picked up on the way west. At the end of yesterday's workout he checked in at 161, exactly even with the allowance for Wednesday's intercity bouts.

With Kroeten, who was to fight as the alternate light heavy, now stepping into the 160 pound class, Papa Jerry D'Ambrosia, the rough and ready Brooklyn truck driver, became a man of real importance to eastern coaches. He is slated to fill the 175 pounds slot vacated by Kroeten.

D'Ambrosia is the favorite for the spot right now, but he has serious competition in Joe Rochester who came to Chicago as one of the heavyweight alternates and now finds himself slated to fight a 175 pounder, if he fights at all. Rochester was a light heavyweight to begin with and found little difficulty in shedding a bit of the excess poundage.

It's a Versatile Squad.

The way Bradley has been shifting the boys around in the Medinah club of Chicago training quarters has caused more pounds of meat to boil off than this town has seen since rationing started. As a matter of fact, however, New York has been exceptionally fortunate in the number of versatile youngsters on its squad.

The shift in the three top classes, of course, changes the all around lineup, which won't be officially announced until the weighing in before Wednesday night's fights. With Heersche out only five eastern champions are on hand, the flyweight, Cliff Smith, Billy Hernandez, the Puerto Rican 118 pounder, his fellow countryman, Max Gonzalez, the lightweight, the welter champion Ballesandro Carubia, and Alf LaBrecque, the scrapping soldier from Indiantown Gap Pa., who is the eastern light heavyweight king.

Young Is No. 1 Heavyweight.

In the other championship spots it appears Bradley will string along with Georgie Cooper in the 126 pound class, Kroeten among the middleweights and Cornelius Young in the No. 1 heavyweight spot.

These predictions can be neatly turned inside out by Mr. Bradley who is quite likely to come up with a couple of surprise nominees when the time comes. Any one of the 20 youngsters on the squad, battling for alternate berths, still can snare a spot in the lineup with a couple of sizzling workouts.

CULVER POLOISTS AND WEST POINT MEET SATURDAY

Culver, Ind., March 28 [Special].—Culver Military academy and the United States Military academy will meet for the first time when the Culver poloists play at West Point next Saturday. Merrick Lewis, Alliance, O., Al Muirhead, Durham, N. C., and Jess Scarborough, Tulsa, Okla., are regular members of the Culver trio. Cadet Pinckney Brewer, Cincinnati, O., who has seen plenty of action during the season, also is scheduled to make the trip.

Anderson Defeats Bomar by 191 Pins in $1,500 Match

Vern Anderson, the bowler who has been defeating some of the city's top flight stars in exhibition matches in recent weeks, added Buddy Bomar, Texas champion, to his list in a $1,500 seven game series yesterday on the Pla-Mor alleys. Anderson won by 191 pins, rolling 1,421 to Bomar's 1,230. Anderson averaged 203 for the series and had high game of 222.

You Can Still Buy Seats

To Chicago's boxing spectacle of the year—the 16th Intercity Golden Gloves tournament, Wednesday night, in the Stadium. It's Chicago's best against the finest 16 from New York—and this always is a guarantee of furious action.

PRO FOOTBALL HEADS TO MAP COURSE APRIL 6

Hope to Keep Ten Team Makeup; 4 on Fence.

BY EDWARD PRELL.

The most important meeting in the National Football league's history will be held in Chicago next week. When representatives of the 10 clubs have said their final words on April 6, 7, and 8 in the Palmer House, the course the league is to take in the fall will be known.

One thing is certain—the organization will operate. It already is pledged to this thru the word of Elmer Layden, its president. But it may be a far different league than the one professional football fans have come to know.

It's known that 4 of the 10 clubs are not anxious to put a team in the field because of war conditions. Much oratory will be indulged in to persuade these on-the-fence operators that they should keep the league intact. But oratory may be inadequate and there's a possibility only six or eight teams will start. This opens up interesting and debatable points.

May Vote to Freeze Franchises.

What, for instance, happens to the franchises of those teams which decline the issue? It is probable, according to reports, that the other members of the circuit will vote that these franchises be frozen for their present owners until the war's end. In return, players on these teams would be optioned to the six or eight operating teams, to revert to their original club when normal conditions return.

What happens to the player draft, which also is an important item at this annual meeting? The withdrawing teams might insist that they be allowed to draft their quota of 20 graduating college seniors. The active organizations might be just as insistent that the four be excluded in the drawings.

In the event the league shrinks to six teams it is probable that each will play home and home games. This would mean a 10 game championship schedule, with each having five home games.

Hope All 10 Will Start.

League officials are hopeful that all 10 teams will start. Since the close of last season, they have been on the optimistic side and recent developments have had a bolstering effect. Steve Owen, coach of the New York Giants, reported he has received tryout applications, from numerous players. A coach of another league team said players are plentiful and that he soon would have a complete squad listed.

The league, which raised $680,384.07 for war relief last year in various games, wants to do its bit again this season. The charity program, however, will have to wait for the military's decision on service football teams. Last year, two army all-star elevens played eight league teams. In this manner $324,133.94 was raised for army relief.

Coaches will start off the three-day session with a rules meeting. The National league's statistician, Hugh [Shorty] Ray, has a batch of new figures which analyze every play on the field in every game. From this mass of information doubtless will come measures to effect a speedup in action.

Fumble Rule Under Scrutiny.

The 50 yard touchdown run by Lee Artoe of the Chicago Bears against the Washington Redskins in the title game last December has brought a fumble rule under scrutiny. Pictures of the play strongly indicate that under the rules Artoe should not have been allowed to advance with the ball. This was the play:

Ki Aldrich, Redskin center, snapped the ball to Dick Todd, full back. He dropped it, but apparently did not have possession. Technically, this made it a muff, according to league rules, and not a fumble. Under the code a muffed ball cannot be advanced. It is probable that the rule will be broadened to bracket the muff with the fumble.

There also is strong support to allow the defense to run with a lateral pass which has been picked off the ground. Under the present rule the ball can not be advanced after recovery of a lateral.

ON WAY TO C. Y. O. TITLE

J. P. I. AND A. B. C. FIVES WIN TITLES IN B'NAI B'RITH

The Jewish People's institute team won the senior division championship in the annual B'nai B'rith Youth organization basketball tournament finals yesterday on the Marshall High school court, defeating Cardozo Lodge, 46 to 34.

In the junior division, the American Boys Commonwealth Commandos, composed of members of the Marshall High school championship junior team, were hard pressed in beating the B. T. O.'s, 36 to 34. Whitey Siegel made the winning basket in the final minute.

Newman Leads J. P. I.

In the senior game, the J. P. I. led at half time, 26 to 13. The attack was paced by Si Newman and Harold Kipnis, the former making 14 points, and the latter getting 10.

The Commandos will be one of the teams to represent the B. B. Y. O. in the interleague competition with champions of the Catholic Youth organization Thursday night at Lane Tech. The prep division will be handled by another A. B. C. squad which yesterday defeated the Rotblatt A. C., 18 to 14.

Ramblers Win Title.

A third game on the interleague card will feature all-star squads of both organizations.

In the grammar school division finals yesterday, the B. B. R. Ramblers beat the Bar Mitzvah A. Z. A., 24 to 18.

St. Anselm's Seniors Take C.Y.O. Playoff

The St. Anselm senior team yesterday won the championship of the Catholic Youth organization basketball league when, after trailing thruout the game and with only two minutes of play left, it rallied to beat Annunciation, 29 to 27. The victory netted the Negro team from the south side its first C. Y. O. title. The contest, the feature attraction on a four game program, was played before a capacity crowd of 3,500 in the Loyola university gymnasium.

In other games to determine 1943 C. Y. O. championships, the St. Leo juniors successfully defended their title by defeating St. Mel, 42 to 34, after the St. Leo preps had fallen, 19 to 17, before Our Lady of Grace. In a curtain raiser to decide the Catholic grammar school championship, St. Mary's Training school of Des Plaines won from St. Gabriel, 23 to 20.

Winners Meet B. B. Y. O. Teams.

Trophies were awarded to the winners by Bishop Bernard J. Sheil, director of the C. Y. O.

The junior and prep division champions and an all-star squad from the senior division, selected by league officials, will meet three teams of similar classification from the B'nai B'rith Youth organization in a program of interleague games in Lane Tech gymnasium Thursday night.

Annunciation Gets Big Lead.

The Annunciation-St. Anselm game provided the biggest surprise of the day. Unable to score a single point for the first 12 minutes of play, while Annunciation piled up a lead of 14 to 0, the lanky St. Anselm players began to hit their stride as the game went into the second half. St. Anselm took the lead at 28 to 27 on Jim Watkins' goal with two minutes to go. A free throw by Tom Allen cinched the game and title. Lineups:

Equestrian Association to Hear Keith Line Tonight

What the riding horse has the right to expect from his rider will be discussed by Keith Line of Midway stables when he speaks before members of the Town and Country Equestrian association this evening in the Sherman hotel.

SEEK TO REDUCE BASKET GIANTS' DEFENSIVE EDGE

Committee to Experiment With Next Year's Rules.

New York, March 28 (AP).—The executive committee of the national basketball committee, meeting on rules changes, today approved a definite program of experimentation for next season, including one move designed to take away an especially tall player's defense advantage under the basket.

None of the experiments was written into the rules, but all will be tried out from time to time and in various places during the 1943-'44 campaign, with a view to adopting them into the code next year if they are approved.

Aiming at the tall player's edge, the committee approved an experiment for next season whereby it will be a violation when a player touches a try for goal on its downward arc above the level of the basket. As the rules stand now, a big fellow can jump up and deflect a sure basket, provided, of course he doesn't touch the net, the hoop, or push his hand into the invisible cylinder which extends upward from the ring.

Other Experiments Listed.

Other experiments approved for next season included:

1. To permit unlimited substitution instead of the current rule allowing a player to reënter a game twice.

2. To permit no free throws on a double foul, but instead, to let the fouls cancel each other, charge the fouls against the players, and have a jump ball at the spot of the foul. The committee felt this would eliminate the chase from end to end of the floor after a double foul, while the fouled players try their free throws.

3. Various changes in equipment, looking to possible shortages by next year. Among the changes would be a possible shortening of the length of the net; an increase in the thickness of the cord from 60 skein to a stronger 100 skeins; an increase in the thickness of the basket ring from ⅝ inch to ¾ or ⅞, preventing possible breakage, and a cut in the size of the backboard from 72 inches in width to 54, which already has been approved in many places.

Vote to Reword Some Rules.

Altho no new rules were written, the executive committee—which met this year in place of the entire committee because of transportation difficulties—voted to reword several sections of the code in order to clarify certain rules which are now ambiguous and which caused considerable confusion during the last season.

Among these alterations were the sections on multiple and double fouls, which will be rewritten to clear up disputed points; on the dead ball and acts which occur near the time of a ball being called dead; and on violations concerning free throws. The exact new wording was not announced, but H. V. Porter of Illinois, secretary of the committee, said that the rule concerning the dead ball will be rewritten to indicate a specific time of action preceding a dead ball and a specific time when the ball is put back in play after it is declared dead.

All Officers Are Reëlected.

All officers of the committee were reëlected. They are J. W. St. Clair of Southern Methodist university, chairman; E. J. Hickox, Springfield [Mass.] college, vice president; Porter, secretary, and H. J. Swarts, Pennsylvania, treasurer.

Paumier Wins in Fence Off for Foils Title

Charles Paumier, veteran Lake Shore Athletic club foils fencer, won a fence off bout against his teammate, Dick Podlesak, after a tie in the final to capture the Illinois divisional championship of the Amateur Fencers League of America meet in the Stagg field west stand at the University of Chicago yesterday afternoon.

Podlesak was ranked second in the state and Art Cohen, the University of Chicago's Big Ten foils champion placed third. Art Tiddens and Loren Iversen who made up Austin High school's entry finished fourth and fifth and Leon Strauss, Maroon freshman, was sixth.

Paumier, Lake Shore A. C. beat Strauss, Chicago; Cohen, Chicago; Tiddens, Austin; Iversen, Austin.

Podlesak, Lake Shore A. C. beat Paumier, Lake Shore A. C.; Cohen, Chicago; Tiddens, Austin; Iversen, Austin.

Cohen, Chicago, beat Strauss, Chicago.

Tiddens, Austin, beat Strauss, Chicago.

Iversen, Austin, beat Cohen, Chicago; Strauss, Chicago.

Strauss, Chicago, beat Podelsak, Lake Shore A. C.

JEHOVAH FIVE CAPTURES JUNIOR WALTHER TITLE

Jehovah, champion of the Portage zone, captured the championship of the Junior Walther league basketball tournament last night as it triumphed over Bethany, champion of the Lincoln zone, in the final game, 39 to 27, in the St. Stephen's parish hall gymnasium. In the third place game, St. Stephen's beat Gethsemane, 36 to 32.

Gloria Callen, Swimming Champion, Injures Hand

New York, March 28 (AP).—Gloria Callen, 19 years old, swimming champion, suffered a severely burned left hand when an electric light bulb exploded while she was studying at her home, it became known today, and she will be unable to compete in the national women's indoor meet at Chicago April 9-11. Miss Callen, voted the United States' outstanding woman athlete of 1942, will be out of competition at least two weeks.

Stirnweiss, Yank Shortstop, Ordered to Take Physical

Asbury Park, N. J., March 28 (AP).—George Stirnweiss, base-stealing rookie from Newark trying to win the shortstop berth with the New York Yankees, today was ordered to report to his Hartford, Conn., draft board tomorrow morning for a physical examination.

Should the youngster, married only little more than a month, be inducted, his absence would complicate further Manager Joe McCarthy's infield problem. The club will play its first game Saturday and not a member of the inner defense that helped win the 1942 American league pennant now is in camp.

Of last year's infield, First Baseman Buddy Hassett and Shortstop Phil Rizzuto are in the navy; Second Baseman Joe Gordon is a holdout; Utilityman Frank Crosetti will be ineligible the first 30 days of the season for shoving a world series umpire; Reserve Gerry Priddy was sold to Washington, and Third Baseman Red Rolfe has retired.

McQUILLEN TO BE DRAFTED.

Cape Girardeau, Mo., March 28 (AP).—Manager Luke Sewell drove in the winning run of the St. Louis Browns' first practice game today and that run was the only score in nine innings. Two men were out and a runner on second in the ninth when he hit to short center for the clincher.

Outfielder Glenn McQuillen was notified tonight by his draft board to report in Washington, D. C., for induction into the army April 6.

CARDS PLAY 12 INNINGS.

Cairo, Ill., March 28 (AP). — Two teams of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals played to a 1 to 1 tie in 12 innings today. Both runs were scored in the twelfth.

One team, led by Coach Mike Gonzalez, tallied on a walk, a wild pitch, an intentional pass to Catcher Walker Cooper with one out; a double steal by Johnny Hopp and Cooper and an infield out. Coach Buzzy Wares' team came right back and tied it up on George Fallon's single, Blix Donnelly's safe bunt, Pitcher George Munger's low throw to first and Lou Klein's single.

REDS' REGULARS WIN.

Bloomington, Ind., March 28 [Special.—The Cincinnati Reds regulars, behind the seven hit pitching of Elmer Riddle and Johnny Vander Meer, defeated the yannigans, 4 to 1, today for their second straight victory.

Lonnie Frey, the regulars' second baseman punched out a triple and double in four trips. Ray Mueller caught for the regulars and Dick West did the backstopping for Ray Starr and Joe Beggs, who shared the yannigan mound work. Manager Bill McKechnie said he would ease up on the workout tomorrow.

BRAVES BEAT YANNIGANS.

Wallingford, Conn., March 28 (AP).—The Boston Brave regulars scored a 6 to 2 verdict over the Yannigans today in the first practice game of the season, induced by the balmy weather and the desire of Manager Casey Stengel to get his riddled squad into quick action. Stengel was so pleased with the result of the intrasquad game that he is planning to accept the challenge of the local police department to play a game for charity.

INDIANS ROUT SEMI-PROS.

Lafayette, Ind., March 28 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians opened their exhibition season today by routing the semi-pro Lafayette Red Sox, 12 to 3. Hank Edwards and Russ Peters hit home runs for the Indians. While Indian pitchers held the Lafayette team to two hits, the Tribesmen hammered the semi-pros for 12. Lafayette made three runs on two hits in the first inning when Otto Denning and Ken Keltner made wild throws behind a base on balls.

PHILS SEEK FIRST BASEMAN.

Hershey, Pa., March 28 (AP).—Manager Bucky Harris let it be known today that the Phillies are still looking for a first baseman because Babe Dahlgren, obtained from Brooklyn apparently to replace Nick Etten, has been shifted to shortstop to replace Bobby Bragan.

MACK GIVES UP ON POFAHL.

Wilmington, Del., March 28 (AP).—Pete Suder and Jo Jo White each hit a double and single today as the Athletic regulars beat the B squad, 4 to 2, before 1,000.

Meantime Manager Connie Mack announced he had virtually given up hope of signing Jimmy Pofahl, infielder traded by the Senators to the Athletics along with Bobby Estalella for Outfielder Bob Johnson. Pofahl is in Faribault, Minn., where he is a guard in a defense plant.

GIANTS PLAY 1 TO 1 TIE.

Lakewood, N. J., March 28 (AP).—Joe Orengo, former third baseman, who is trying to win the New York Giant first base job, was both the hero and the goat today in the club's intrasquad game, which ended in a 1 to 1 deadlock after six innings. The contest was scoreless until the final inning when Orengo dropped a throw from Billy Jurges to set up the Goulds' only score. In the final half of the inning, however, he slapped out the Rockefellers' lone hit to score Buster Maynard with the tying run. Van Lingle Mungo and Tom Sunkel combined to keep the regulars hitless until the last inning. Cliff Melton and Bill Lohrman did the hurling for the rookies.

PIRATE REGULARS WIN.

Muncie, Ind., March 28 (AP).—The Pirate regulars beat Capt. Al Lopez's Yannigans, 7 to 2, today in the first nine inning game of their 11 day old training season.

Rip Sewell hurled three perfect innings for the regulars and Harry Shuman yielded only one blow in going a similar distance. The Yannigans got to Xavier Rescigno for four hits and two runs in the final three innings. The first team made 10 hits off Bob Klinger, Johnny Lanning and Lloyd Dietz.

PRIDDY JOINS SENATORS.

College Park, Md., March 28 (AP).—Gerry Priddy arrived from California today, signed a contract, and joined the Washington Senators in their first intrasquad game. The infielder, acquired during the winter from the New York Yankees, was the club's last holdout.

Cubs Strip Nicholson of His Uniform

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

French Lick, Ind., March 28.—The Cub uniform dealt Holdout Bill Nicholson yesterday was snatched back today. The Maryland Hercules, who worked out immediately following his arrival yesterday, was advised he would not be allowed to exercise with his Cub buddies until such time as he comes to salary terms with General Manager James T. Gallagher.

The conferences between Nicholson and Gallagher have been rather calm but each has been adamant, altho a difference of only $1,000 stands between the two debaters. Nick seemed to be fretting this afternoon as he sat on the sidelines as his fellow athletes participated in their first intraclub game of the season.

J. G. Puts It Up to Nick.

Gallagher would not discuss his views on the Nicholson matter beyond indicating that it is up to Nick to decide what he wants to do.

While everybody in camp is watching the developments in the Nicholson case, scarcely any mention is made any more of the status of Lou Novikoff and Clyde McCullough.

The case of Eddie Stanky continues to rank as a minor mystery, there being those who insist the American association's leading hitter of 1942 has come to terms and merely is tardy about reporting.

The intraclub game today was played for the entertainment of several hundred hotel guests and residents of this community. Manager Jim Wilson put something approximating his possible regular team on the field but the Yannigans were a crew of transplanted pitchers for the most part.

Regulars Win, 5 to 0.

The regulars won the game, 5 to 0, in a match which was interesting, tho somewhat scrambled because of the fact that each pitcher worked straight thru an inning. The first score was made in the second inning when Phil Cavarretta singled and scored on the first of two triples knocked by Charley Gilbert. The second marker was rung up on Paul Erickson's triple and a double by Stan Hack. The other tallies were produced in the seventh on a pass to Cavarretta, a double by Dom Dallessandro, and Gilbert's second triple.

The pitching was done by Bill Lee, Paul Derringer, Lon Warneke, Eddie Hanyzewski, Erickson, Les Fleming, and Hi Bithorn.

The contest was marked by an unusual accident. Catcher Al Todd, in going after a foul fly, crashed into a water cooler. A five gallon bottle was shattered, one fragment hitting the left hand of Edgar Munzel, Chicago sports writer. One finger was so severely cut that three stitches were required to close the wound. Munzel fainted but was quickly revived. Todd also suffered minor cuts but continued in the game after being bandaged.

Lon Entertains

FRENCH LICK, Ind., March 28.—The Cubs' flair for just one thing after another was sustained tonight in the dining room of the French Lick Springs hotel. Lon Werneke, celebrating his 34th birthday, undertook to carry pieces of his birthday cake to Manager Jimmy Wilson and his family. Lon, ever the wag, had the delicacies on a big tray which he was toting aloft on one palm. Then slip-zip and Lon was on the floor with tray, cake and dishes. When the clatter subsided the crowd of diners applauded wildly while Lon blushed furiously. Warneke was injured only slightly and will be able to resume practice tomorrow.

Sox Score 4 in 7th; Whip Tigers, 7 to 6 error. This one run edge held up until the Tigers fashioned their first one by nicking Weiland for two hits in the third. Paul Richards started it with a single and Roger Cramer, batting for Manders, walked. Weiland slipped while fielding Charley Metro's bunt and it went for a hit, filling the bases. With one out, Appling fumbled Wakefield's possible double play roller and Richards counted.

The Sox opened the profitable fourth against Newhouser with Curtright hoisting a tall fly into left field. Wakefield helped out for the second time. He tipped over while trying to get under the ball and it dropped for a double. Don Kolloway promptly pasted a real double to left, Curtright scoring. Kolloway skipped over to third while Hodgin was being thrown out and scored on Dick Culler's fly.

Sox Open Up on Henshaw.

Henshaw's seventh inning troubles started when Frank Kalin, swinging for Dietrich, singled with one out. Tucker doubled and Appling walked, filling the bases. Kuhel, Curtright, and Kolloway singled in succession to drive in three runs. The fourth registered on Hodgin's force of Kolloway.

The Tigers retrieved two of the runs in their half on one fluke single and three passes from Hayes.

Al Unser's double and an infield single by Metro put together the run scored on Haynes in the eighth. In the ninth Rudy York singled with one out and scored on a triple over Hodgin's head by Joe Wood. The latter continued home when the relay to Tom Turner rolled to the grandstand wall.

The Sox returned to their French Lick training base tonight and will resume their routine conditioning tomorrow, hoping to improve themselves before playing the Cincinnati Reds next week-end at Louisville.

VIKINGS, SWEDES WIN OVER FALKS AND ITALIAN A. C.

Enter State Soccer Cup Match Semi-Finals.

BY OFFSIDE.

The Vikings moved into the semifinals of the Illinois State soccer cup matches yesterday by beating the Falk Corporation of Milwaukee eleven, 3 to 2, in an overtime game which was the second half of a doubleheader played in the Winnemac park stadium. In the first game, the Swedes trimmed the Italian Athletic club, 4 to 1.

The Vikings, relying on their experienced veterans to overcome the speed of the younger Falks, were forced to come from behind twice to tie the score before winning in the extra period. The Falks scored after 17 minutes of the first half when John Gondi shot past R. Camplin from 10 yards. The Vikings lost an opportunity when Nels Brostrom, after a run down the right, let go a shot which struck the crossbar. Shortly after, Brostrom caught Jimmy McDermott's drive off the crossbar and kicked the tying goal.

McDermott Ties Score.

In the second half, Chuck Kezele's shot struck the upright and bounced into the net to send the Falks out in front, but with only a minute to play McDermott scored from a penalty to tie the count again.

McDermott was the Vikings' star again as he ended a run with a shot from 20 yards that landed in the corner of the net for the deciding goal late in the extra period.

In the opening game, the Swedes took the lead at 2 to 1 at the half and late in the second period scored twice again after being denied numerous attempts by the stellar goal tending of Nello Menoni.

Vikings Face Swedes Next.

The Vikings will meet the Swedes next Sunday in one semi-final game while the Slovaks, who defeated the Linneas, 3 to 1, yesterday, will meet the Hakoahs, who won over the Hansas, 2 to 1, in the other. Lineups:

BERT JORGENSEN LEADS ARCHERS IN PRELIMINARY

Sectional preliminary rounds for the city archery tournament were shot yesterday afternoon. Bert Jorgensen of the Tuley Golden Arrows, the defending champion in the men's division, had the best score, 752, followed by Dr. R. D. Paul of the Gage Park club with 748.

The best score in the feminine classes was 714, by Dorothy Bercher of Columbus park, last year's city champion in the intermediate girls' class and still competing in that division. Marian Baumgartner headed the women's division with 696. There were 108 contestants.

South side preliminaries were held in Tuley park, west side in Columbus park, and north side in Hamlin park. The finals will be in Tuley park Sunday, April 11. In addition to the classes for men and women and intermediate and junior boys and girls who competed in yesterday's preliminaries, there will be an open class for out of town archers.

Brooklyn Fans Wonder Who Won Exhibition Game

Bear Mountain, N. Y., March 28 (AP).—The Brooklyn baseball fan hasn't changed a bit. The Dodgers played a training camp game here today against a team composed of members of their Montreal and Durham farms and a crowd estimated at 2,100 was on hand—and virtually every one of the fans came all the way up from Flatbush to see their bums.

The spectators started their homeward journey wondering whether the Dodgers or the team that played in Montreal uniforms won the contest which was stopped by Boss Leo Durocher after six and a half innings had been played.

At the end of six innings the Dodgers were ahead, 7 to 6, but in the first half of the seventh the Montreal-Durham side scored three runs to take the lead.

Durocher then decided the athletes had sufficient work for the day. The most enthusiastic of the Dodger followers, naturally, called it a six inning game, and victory for their idols. Friends of Fresco Thompson, manager of the Montreal team, insisted it was a triumph for his side.

Newt Kimball, Max Macon, and Ed Head took turns on the mound for the Dodgers. It was off Head's pitching the Montreal side scored three times in the seventh inning. Roy Sanner and Al Sherer pitched for the International leaguers. Joe Medwick hit a homer for the Dodgers and Dixie Howell and Don Castro did the same for the minor leaguers.

Rozina Faces Bell Tonight at Marigold

Johnny Rozina, who has had his ups and downs since leaving Golden Gloves competition to open a professional campaign two years ago, will receive an opportunity to step into the limelight when he meets Tommy Bell, shifty Detroit welterweight, in Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street, tonight.

The Milwaukee slugger, who held Bell to a draw in an earlier fight a month ago, will be rewarded with a major contest in Chicago Stadium April 16 if successful in this evening's rematch. Al [Bummy] Davis, colorful Brooklyn fighter, is mentioned as Rozina's probable foe on the impending card in the Stadium.

Rozina pounded out a victory in eight rounds over Tommy James on March 15, an achievement which means his Negro opponent from the Wolverine state will have a difficult time of it tonight.

Gee to Face McGraw.

Roy Lewis, the 1941 Chicagoland Golden Gloves featherweight champion, made a tremendous hit in his Chicago debut in the money ranks when he scored a first round knockout over Jackie Nichols two weeks ago, but he may encounter more than bargained for in a five round semiwindup against Louis Jackson. Jackson has defeated Isadore Miner and Tony Capone in previous battles this year.

Forrest Gee, former Golden Gloves middleweight of Milwaukee, who knocked out Jesse Jackson in an exciting encounter recently, will face Otis McGraw, stablemate of Bell, in an additional five round event. Virgil McKiness, St. Charles, Ill., 145 pounder, has been substituted for Al Nedoff in a four rounder against Jerry Pittro. Young Ted Lewis, fighting loop bellhop, is paired with Kippy Dumas in five rounds.

Pvt. Mike Kilonis of the army air forces will wrestle Ned Taylor in White City, 63d street and South Park avenue, tonight.

Co-Promoters Irving Schoenwald and Jack Begun today expect to close a return bout between Lee Savold, Paterson, N. J., heavyweight, and Lem Franklin in the Stadium April 16. Negotiations were reopened after Savold reduced his demands from $15,000 to $10,000.

Schlitz Wins Classic's Sunday Bowling Sweep

The Schlitz Beers won first money in the weekly Sunday night bowling sweepstakes, sponsored by the Classic league, at Crest recreation last night, with a score of 2,955. The Thompson's Restaurants were second with 2,944 and the Budweisers third with 2,870. Joe Wilman rolled the high individual series, 662, and Bob Wills had the high single game, 258.

Reclassifying of 3-A Group to Begin Thursday

All Cook county draft boards have received orders to begin reclassifying 3-A deferments Thursday, Col. Stanley A. McNeil, administrative assistant to the county draft director, said yesterday. The orders require that men in 3-A class who have not obtained essential war jobs or who are not trying to get such jobs be reclassified 1-A.

MOVE TO IGNORE LAW AND SLASH LEVY FOR RELIEF

Berwyn Township Points to Reduced Rolls.

The taxpayers of Berwyn township agreed yesterday to violate the state law covering appropriations for relief. They took the step after they agreed that it is entirely unwise to appropriate more money than they can spend for relief purposes, when their own treasury has a balance of $22,000 and the state possesses a "nest egg" of $68,000,000 of sales tax collections held for relief allocations to the various Illinois townships.

On the recommendation of Supervisor John R. Cermak, who also is overseer of the poor in the township, they decided not to levy the statutory 3 mill tax for relief, but only 1 mill, which will produce $20,000 for the fiscal year beginning April 1.

Fifty Families on Relief.

The amount was estimated as more than adequate to support the 50 families now on the relief roll.

"The 3 mill levy would take $60,000 from the taxpayers, but not more than a third is needed for relief because of the dwindling number on the rolls," Cermak said.

"We'll be happy to face the consequences and whatever penalties are exacted," he added. "But we'll not lose a cent and we will save about $40,000 over the next fiscal year."

He explained that the state law provided that no allocations for relief will be made to townships which fail to levy a 3 mill tax.

The taxpayers who met in the township office at 26th street and East avenue earlier protested that the relief levy would be "double taxation" because of the state funds reserved for relief, now lying idle.

Willing to Forego Aid.

Berwyn township has paid all its own relief expenses for the last two years and the taxpayers were confident they would be able to exist without state aid even tho the penalty were imposed.

Cermak said he would insert a tentative appropriation of $20,000 for relief in the proposed budget to be posted today. The budget will be considered by the townspeople at the town's annual meeting on April 6. Many of those at yesterday's meeting said they would vote "aye," the state law to the contrary notwithstanding.

Critically Wounded as Gun Fires When He Leaves Car

Paul Schneider, 29 years old, 2522 Lexington street, a garage mechanic, critically wounded himself with a .22 caliber target rifle yesterday as he was alighting from an automobile three miles west of Wauconda, Lake county. The bullet hit him in the abdomen and penetrated his spine. He was taken to Condell Memorial hospital, Libertyville, where physicians gave him a blood transfusion.

Applicants whose educational background and training have been in physiology, biochemistry, or nutrition will be given preference, but training in any biological science such as zoölogy, pathology, botany, food chemistry, animal husbandry, or agricultural sciences will be considered, provided applicants offering this training have had a "reasonable" number of courses in physiology and/or nutrition or biochemistry, or have done research involving the effects of food and diet upon living organisms. Male dieticians will be considered, provided the applicant has the necessary scientific background. Apply: Chicago Officer Procurement District Office, Room 1100, 20 North Wacker drive.

R. W. writes: "When I joined the army my wife joined the WAAC. Now I know I will be on quarters and rations and would like to have her with me. Now that she knows we could be together after all, she is very downhearted over joining. Is there any way she could get out?"

ANSWER: It's too bad, but she is in for duration and six months unless sooner released for physical reasons. Possibly she could effect a transfer to your camp or to a nearby location.

J. W. B. writes: "I bought a home in 1939, but had it refinanced Jan. 23, 1941, by a federal building and loan company. Does the fact the refinancing occurred after Oct. 16, 1940, keep me from having the protection of the soldiers and sailors civil relief act?"

ANSWER: No, the act was amended in 1942 to extend protection to all military personnel no matter when they entered service or when the obligation was contracted. The article we prepared on this act can be had upon request by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

E. S. writes: "I hope you can help me. My brother will be 38 April 22, 1943. Can he get a release from the army? He is needed at home."

ANSWER: Men who did not reach their 38th birthday on or before Feb. 28, 1943, will not be released by the army.

J. B. C. writes: "You said in your column that a registrant could transfer from one board to another. I'm registered in a board 2,000 miles away and I telegraphed the information you gave to my local board and requested transfer to a Chicago board. My board wired back you must have a different set of regulations. Could you cite the section?"

ANSWER: You might tell the gentlemen to read sections 623.11, 623.12, and 623.13, all under the heading of "Transfer of Classification."

MARINE TO HAVE SPECIAL ESCORT FOR RETURN HOME

Pvt. Donald Tosta, 14 years old, of the marine corps, is likely to have a heckling escort home from the marine base in San Diego, Cal. Donald's mother, Mrs. Thelma Tosta of Rural Route No. 1, Elmhurst, is considering bringing him home personally after he's discharged from the marine corps for the second time. She's afraid he might jump off the train and join the army or navy.

Donald first joined the corps in December, at the age of 13. His mother yanked him out of a line of recruits on Dec. 12, just as he was about to leave for training. He joined again, using his father's name, a few weeks ago and wasn't traced until last Friday. He still doesn't know his ruse has been discovered.

"We don't care how big he is for his age or how much he outsmarted the recruiting officers," Mrs. Tosta said yesterday. "We want him back. I hope what the officers say about not getting him back for four or six weeks is true. Maybe he will get his stomach full of work and stay home."

NEGROES URGED TO KEEP AN EYE ON DEPORTMENT

The prime concern of Negro unions and workers organizations now should be to teach those employed in industry proper decorum on their jobs, on the street and in their homes. Mrs. Cora Padden, secretary of the Chicago branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, told 400 delegates representing 5,000 Negroes in local unions of the United Automobile Workers [CIO] yesterday. The meeting to discuss current and post-war problems of Negro workers was held in South Parkway Community center, 5120 South Park way.

E. L. Shearer, supervisor of the Chicago area of the war relocation authority, pleaded for tolerance with Japanese and other aliens who have been placed in federal relocation areas.

Willard S. Townsend, international president of the United Transport Workers [CIO] said that Negroes should "stick to the CIO because, altho it has exhibited a democratic trend there is a danger of apathy on the part of Negroes in the work of the CIO and by such apathy they would be excluded."

OFFICE EQUIPMENT STOLEN.

Office equipment worth $785 and $100 in cash were taken early yesterday in a burglary of the Marc Leeds flower shop, 2040 Lincoln Park West, Jack Llewellyn reported to police.

JAMES FARRELL, FORMER HEAD OF U. S. STEEL, DIES

Rose from $4.65 a Week Job as Laborer.

New York, March 28 [Special].—James A. Farrell, who began work as a steel mill laborer at the age of 15 and rose to the presidency of the United States Steel corporation, died today in his Fifth avenue home. He was 80 years old.

James A. Farrell.

Farrell, a native of New Haven, Conn., had been ill for some time. He was president of United States Steel Products Export company from 1903 to 1911, at which time he became head of United States Steel. He retired in 1932.

Colleagues described him as one who knew the steel business "from the ore up." He learned it as a $4.65 a week laborer, as a mechanic, a mill foreman, and a salesman, serving in upward steps with companies which were absorbed by mergers until various branches of the industry were gathered into a fold which became United States Steel.

Export Business Centralized.

Historically each unit of the steel industry handled its own export business, but Farrell in 1903 was instrumental in centralizing this work. He organized a fleet of cargo carriers and opened 60 agencies in South America, Europe, South Africa, China, and Australia while president of the Steel Products Export company.

His ability to develop overseas trade was something of a heritage with his father. His father, John Guy Farrell, a native of Ireland, came to the United States in 1848 and was successively a merchant, a sea captain, and a ship owner. He combined his other vocations in his third capacity and sailed his vessel, the Monte Cristo, in foreign trade.

In 1878 the elder Farrell sailed into the Caribbean, where vessel and crew vanished.

Forced to Find Job.

Young Farrell had to find a job to help support the family, and he got one as a laborer in the New Haven Wire company.

In 14 months he had been promoted to the job of mechanic. Then, going to the Pittsburgh Wire company, he became a foreman before he was old enough to vote. At 30 he was the general manager of the Oliver Steel Wire company.

During the years he was president, Farrell saw the business of United States Steel grow to huge proportions. The steel output reached 24 million tons a year and the corporation's assets grew to more than 2½ billion dollars. A 40 per cent common stock dividend, valued by Wall street at 250 million dollars, was distributed in 1927.

Creates Storm in Industry.

Altho a "self-made" man, he always was conscious of the problems of those who had not had his good fortune. In 1931 he created a storm of controversy when he delivered a scathing arraignment of the steel industry for "price cutting practices."

In 1889 Farrell married Catherine McDermott of Brooklyn. They had five children, who are John J. Farrell, chairman of the board of the American South African Line, Inc.; Mrs. Joseph B. Murray, Mrs. Luke D. Stapleton Jr., James A. Farrell Jr., president of the American South African Line, Inc., and now a lieutenant commander in the naval reserve, and Mrs. Richard J. Buck.

A requiem mass will be celebrated Tuesday morning at the Church of St. Ignatius Loyola.

How to make a WAR GARDEN

BY BEN MARKLAND.

The time is fast approaching when Illinois gardeners will begin their annual probing of the soil. The weather which prevailed during the first three weeks of March provided a stern barrier to an early start of the gardening season, but in most open areas of northern Illinois the frost is out of the ground and the soil should be dry sufficiently to permit plowing or spading in the near future. There still is some frost in the soil in protected areas and in ground covered by heavy turf.

For plowing the sample plots on the Tribune farm the gardener plans to use a team of horses because the team will pack the ground less than would a tractor. Garden plots which were plowed last fall should be in condition for the sowing of the first crops [peas, carrots, beets, and several others] by April 1, providing the weather remains mild and dry until that date.

Begin Sowing in April.

Sections of the farm plots were plowed last fall, so the first crops will be sown during the first week of April. In 8 of the last 10 years the farm gardener has been able to put the first seeds in the ground between March 27 and April 1, but the protracted cold weather thru most of March made it impossible to get the ground in condition for such early planting this year.

The time of spading or plowing varies greatly according to the weather, the location of the garden site, and the texture of the soil. If the plot is in a well-drained area [which is the best location for a garden], it naturally will dry faster and permit the gardener to spade or plow earlier. If it is in a low spot where it drains slowly the spading time will be greatly delayed.

Here's How to Test Soil.

A simple test for determining whether or not a garden site is ready for plowing or spading is to dig down about six inches below the surface and pull out a handful of soil. Make a round ball of the soil, then press it between the thumb and forefinger. If it shatters into tiny particles when pressed in this manner it is ready for spading. If it compresses like a ball of putty it is too wet and should be permitted to dry.

Aside from the time of spading, the next most important feature of breaking the ground is the depth of spading. Many gardeners use a spading fork with seven inch tines and thus do not turn over much soil. Experienced gardeners recommend that at least 12 inches of ground be turned over in spading. If clay subsoil is reached 8 to 10 inches under the surface only that amount of ground should be turned.

Testing the Soil

If soil taken from 6 inches beneath surface crumbles under pressure of hand, plot is ready for spading. If not, it should be allowed more time to dry.

Deep-Spading Aids Crops.

In order to turn a full 12 inches of soil it is necessary to use a narrow tile spade which will go down that far or else turn two depths of soil with a common spading fork.

The importance of turning 12 inches of soil in spading is that it gives the plants a sufficient root growth to survive drouth periods and also gives them a deeper growing space for absorbing the needed plant elements from the soil.

"The Tribune booklet, "How to Make a War Garden," contains 40 pages of text and drawings to guide novice gardeners. It is available at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and 135 North Michigan avenue. The cost is 10 cents over the counter, 15 cents by mail.

U. S. DISTRIBUTION JOB NEGLECTED, NATION WARNED

Official Criticizes Peril to Civilian Supply.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 28.—A warning that America is not giving ample attention to its highly specialized distributive system was sounded tonight by Undersecretary of Commerce Wayne C. Taylor.

Wayne C. Taylor.

Appearing on Theodore Granik's American Forum of the Air, broadcast over W-G-N and Mutual, with five leaders from business and government to discuss "How Can We Keep Small Business Alive?" Taylor said:

"There has been much discussion of how to increase our national production. I do not believe that any one here tonight feels that our smaller industrial plants have as yet been fully utilized, either in the production of munitions or in the almost equally important field of civilian supply.

Distribution Problem Neglected.

"However, in concentrating on the problems of production, I believe we have overlooked, or at least postponed, giving proper attention to the problem of distribution. Production comes first, but production without adequate distribution is meaningless.

"You can't tell 133 million widely scattered people 'to come and get it.'"

John U. Barr of New Orleans, La., a small business man himself and a member of the war department's purchase policy advisory committee, told the radio audience that keeping the small manufacturer going isn't expected to be near the problem as that of finding some way to help the thousands of small retailers and wholesalers whose sources of supply have been cut off by the war.

"A powerful program is aimed at using every small manufacturer who can produce things needed for the war and it is beginning to show results," he said.

Caught in a Squeeze.

"But there are thousands of small retailers and wholesalers, the small business men who sell washing machines, radios, electrical appliances; the automobile dealers, and the service station men who are really caught in a squeeze today. They have less to sell. Repair business is their backbone. Yet help for this kind of work is harder to get, costs more if they can get it at all.

"And there are 10 times as many of these small businesses as there are small manufacturers. Something must be done to help keep these small businesses alive so that they will be there after the war to sell and service all of the things our industry will be ready to make."

If small business is to be kept alive, then it must form a "powerful national body, or congress," said George J. Shedman, New York, president of an organization of small business men. "It must make it impossible for the boys of the "red herring club" to give up phony reasons why the demise of small business is inevitable," he declared.

Warns Against Curtailment.

Sen. James E. Murray [D., Mont.], chairman of the senate committee on small business, said, "We must see to it that there is no unnecessary curtailment of civilian production," and called for the development of a program providing for reëntry into business after the war those withdrawn from commercial life to serve in the war.

Thomas Roy Jones, president of American Type Founders, Inc., defended the action of the war department in placing much of its work with the large companies. S. Abbot Smith, a director of the Smaller War Plants corporation, warned that the "advantage of private enterprise and the enthusiasm that grows out of owner-management" must be preserved.

EASTER RABBIT WILL SPEND DAY IN WPB FOX HOLE

Curbs on Production Limit Novelties.

Washington, D. C., March 28 (AP).—You'll hardly know Easter when it gets here April 25, as a result of war production board curtailment of materials used in many Easter novelties.

The Easter rabbit—at least the chocolate one—will spend the day in a foxhole.

There will be no chocolate eggs or bunnies and there will be a dearth of Easter baskets, sugar eggs with windows in them, and Easter lilies.

Plush Rabbits Permitted.

The WPB said, however, that regular candies can be sold in Easter boxes and that none of the textile orders limits the output of plush rabbits or downy chicks.

And there's nothing to prevent dyeing real eggs. Easter egg dyes are not on the critical list.

Confectioners haven't found any candy that moulds into eggs and animals as well as chocolate, and the government has forbidden use of chocolate in holiday novelty shapes. That was because of the importance of chocolate as an energy food for civilians and soldiers—it is in army rations—and because imports are down.

Coconut Also Scarce.

Lack of shipping space also causes a shortage of coconut, widely used as a filling for Easter eggs. Much of the coconut meat available is going to feed soldiers and the shells provide charcoal for gas masks.

The number of Easter novelties will be reduced by restrictions on wrappings. Easter baskets also will be scarce, because most of them used to come from Japan.

Easter greeting cards will be as plentiful as usual, because the curtailment of copper engraved greeting cards didn't go into effect until after this year's supply of Easter cards had been turned out.

Bermuda lilies, commonly called Easter lilies, will be scarce because shipping space to import them from Bermuda is lacking.

NEWS OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE

KEYNES OFFERS WORLD MONEY AND BANK PLAN

Would Replace Gold in Foreign Trade.

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, March 28.—An ambitious plan for a post-war international clearing union which is designed to increase the freedom of international commerce has been prepared by John Maynard Keynes, the British economist, and will be published soon as a "white paper" as a basis for discussion among the allied nations. It is the British counter-part of the American plan attributed to Harry White, assistant to Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, which has not yet been published.

The essence of Keynes' scheme, it is believed, is establishment of a currency union based on international bank money to be known as "bancor." This currency would be geared to gold altho not inflexibly and would be accepted as gold for settlement of international balances by all members of the union.

Implications Are Broad.

In effect, the plan would adapt national banking systems to international needs. Member countries which had a favorable balance with the rest of the world as a whole would have a credit balance with the union and vice versa. Thus, it is believed, it would be possible to minimize the contracting effects of local dislocations on world trade for it would be impossible for creditor nations to adopt a purely passive rôle. It would free credits for where they are needed.

This plan which entails some measure of surrender of sovereignty of individual states over their domestic economic policy has implications far beyond mere finance and international banking. Indeed, it might be termed a blueprint for financial disarmament as the forerunner for military disarmament for it is easy to see how such a union might become the mechanism for enforcement of national policies in addition to financial arrangements which are its primary purpose.

Offered for Discussion.

Altho it is soon to be published as an official state document it should be emphasized that it is being offered as a basis for discussion rather than as a final document. Subject to alterations and amendments by parliament and governments of the allied nations, Keynes believes his plan could be put into operation quickly and easily. If adopted by the United States and the United Kingdom and adhered to by the other allies, efforts would be made to bring in other countries as soon as they were in a position to join. In this way, it is said, the disadvantages of long international conferences and a series of separate bilateral agreements would be avoided.

If the plan were adopted a governing board would be appointed by the governments of member states. The main offices of the union would be in London and New York with the board meeting alternately on opposite sides of the Atlantic. The founder states would agree among themselves on the initial value of their own currencies in terms of "bancor" and would also fix the value of the new international currency in terms of gold. Each member country would be given maximum debit balances, initial quotas to be equal to the sum of the country's exports and imports on the average for three pre-war years.

Could Control Currency Value.

When debit balances grow too large the governing board would have the right to order a member to reduce the value of its currency and to surrender a suitable proportion of its gold or other liquid reserve or would exercise a stricter control of outward capital transactions. Further, the governing board may recommend to the government of a member state any internal measures affecting its economy which seem necessary to restore its international balance to an equilibrium. Members could obtain credits in terms of "bancor" by paying in gold but they could not demand gold from the union against their balance of bancor as this would be available only for the transfer of another clearing account.

The establishment of a credit balance in the union would resemble the importation or gold but it would not involve, according to Keynes, a withdrawal of purchasing power from circulation or exercise deflationary pressure on the whole world. The same results, in the view of some economists, would result if the United States redistributed its gold or if there were an accumulation of a large sterling balance at the Bank of England.

But the plan recognized that it would be unreasonable to ask the United States to demonetize its gold and explains that its purpose is to supplant gold as the governing factor but not to dispense with it. International bank money would be defined in terms of a weight of gold. The official buying price for gold would be fixed by the relationship of national currency to bancor. The value of bancor in terms of gold would be flexible enough to allow variation if the stocks of gold offered were excessive.

One of the purposes of the clearing union would be to stabilize international trade agreements. In the Keynes plan it is laid down as a principle to be encouraged by the union that commercial treaties between nations should exclude import restrictions beyond those desirable from a health and moral standpoint to avoid inordinately high tariffs and to outlaw barter agreements, export subsidies and quotas as far as possible.

Seen as Financial Weapon.

Supporters of the Keynes scheme hold that it has the advantage of "impersonality" over all others. Balances would be on hand for those who needed them and they would be obtainable without the incurring of undue obligations on the part of small poor nations in their dealings with a richer and more powerful neighbor.

The impersonal quality of the proposed union, its supporters hold, make it an ideal weapon for the enforcement of a financial blockade on nations which run amuck politically as well as economically. For instance, it has been suggested that the union could establish a fund for an international body to police the post-war world and thru the international police force it could hold up the clearing account of an offending country. It would also be a powerful influence for the maintenance of price stability and the regulation of trade cycles thru exercising expansionist or contractionist policies on the whole system or such parts of it as were out of line.

Plymouth President Predicts Acute Oil Shortage in 2 Years

Walter S. Hallanan.

Walter S. Hallanan, president of the Plymouth Oil company, predicted yesterday that unless additional oil reserves are discovered and developed the nation will face a serious oil shortage within two years.

"There is a real possibility that the day is not far off when the United States, long known as the world's greatest exporter of oil and oil products, may have to resort to the importing of that commodity to meet her needs," Hallanan said in his annual report to stockholders.

Price Incentive Inadequate.

Development of additional reserves thru the activities of wildcatters is the only solution to the problem, he declared, adding that wildcatting is primarily the job of the little man in the industry and can only be stimulated when there is adequate price incentive.

"Today there is no such incentive," Hallanan said. "Quite to the contrary, crude prices are less than they were in 1937, while every factor of cost entering into exploration for oil has advanced 25 to 30 per cent, while the hazards have multiplied to an even greater extent."

Hallanan said the only specific suggestion that has come out of official Washington to stimulate activities is a proposal for a government subsidy to wildcatters. That, he added, would mean regimentation of the industry under government control, bringing about unrestrained and unscientific drilling, waste of critical materials badly needed in other war activities and a generally chaotic situation without achieving the desired result.

The company reported net income of $1,774,146 last year, equal to $1.69 per common share, compared with $1,546,895, or $1.48 a share, in 1941.

NORTH AMERICAN AVIATION.

How has the war affected earnings of North American Aviation, Inc.? A report on recent operations would be appreciated.—O. V.

Answer: Because of the urgent need for military aircraft, North American Aviation, Inc., steadily increased production during 1942. The total number of units delivered in the year ended Sept. 30, 1942, was more than two and a half times larger than in the preceding year.

The company specializes in three types of military planes, the B-25 Mitchell bombers, P-51 Mustang fighters, and combat training aircraft. The company's main plant is in Inglewood, Cal. In 1941 government owned plants at Dallas, Tex., were taken over.

The company was incorporated in Delaware in 1928 as an organization trading in aviation stocks. Subsequently several manufacturing and operating companies were acquired.

Capitalization outstanding at the end of 1942 consisted of 3,435,033 shares of $1 par capital stock. There is no funded debt. General Motors corporation owns 29.1 per cent of the capital stock.

Net sales for the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1942, totaled $242,595,085, as compared with $60,865,687 for the preceding nine months ended Sept. 30, 1941. Net income amounted to $10,435,413, against $6,075,954 for the preceding nine months. Earnings per share were $3.04 as compared with $1.77.

Dividends paid during the last five calendar years were: 40 cents in 1938, $1.40 in 1939, $1.25 in 1940, $2 in 1941, and $1 in 1942. Current assets on Sept. 30, 1942, totaled $138,696,083, compared with current liabilities of $119,323,216. Total assets amounted to $143,934,821.

EMPLOYE OR CONTRACTOR?

How is an employé distinguished from an independent contractor in determining whether or not the victory tax should be deducted? I am a publisher's representative and ordinarily have contracts with various company's.—M. H.

Answer: Every individual case must be decided on its own merits. The bureau of internal revenue has not issued regulations covering the victory tax, but when it does the regulations may define the terms employé and independent contractor. Meanwhile, one test which seems fairly reliable is whether or not the social security is deducted from the individual's compensation. If the social security is deducted he would appear to be an employé rather than an independent contractor.

OFFER UTILITY BONDS.

A banking group, headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., is offering at 108 per cent and accrued interest an issue of $20,500,000 of 3¼ per cent first mortgage bonds of Public Service Company of New Hampshire, due in 1973. Upon redemption of the outstanding bonds the new issue will constitute the only funded debt of the company.

IT'S RAYON, SAYS FTC OF CELANESE 'BECAUSE IT IS!'

Washington, D. C., March 28 (AP).—The federal trade commission announced today a complaint charging Celanese Corporation of America "with failing adequately to disclose to the purchasing public that the yarns and fabrics it manufactures and sells under the name 'celanese' are acetate rayon products and are not composed of silk or wool which they resemble in texture and appearance."

The commission said Celanese corporation, in advertisments, stated that "under a current ruling of the federal trade commission, celanese yarns and fabrics are classified as rayon." The FTC said the products "are properly described as rayon not because of any ruling of the commission, current, or otherwise, but because of the materials from which and the process by which such yarns and fabrics are manufactured."

Chief of Waukegan Steel Plant Given a Promotion

Cleveland, O., March 28 (AP).—The American Steel and Wire company, United States Steel corporation subsidiary, announced today the appointment of Sidney R. Snow, general superintendent of its Waukegan, Ill., plant, as assistant to the vice president in charge of operations. John R. Gaut, assistant to Snow, was made general superintendent at Waukegan.

FORMER GERMAN COMPANY FULLY AMERICANIZED

Aniline Personnel Shakeup Is Told.

Robert E. McConnell.

Replacement of much of the General Aniline and Film corporation's personnel has been accomplished and the "Americanization of the company has been successfully completed," Robert E. McConnell, president, said yesterday in his annual report to stockholders. The report described the company as "formerly one of the principal foreign operations of the German chemical trust [I. G. Farbenindustries]."

Slightly more than a year ago most of the A stock and all the B shares were taken over by the treasury and later transferred to the alien property custodian. This was followed by dismissal or suspension of a number of officers, directors, engineers, and chemists.

War Accentuates Difficulty.

"The replacement of these individuals with men of the proper technical abilities and experience during a war period, when the normal scarcity of high caliber personnel is accentuated, became the most difficult undertaking with which the board was faced," McConnell said. "This organization problem has been solved and the Americanization of the company has been successfully completed."

The company, which produces chemicals for explosives, dyestuffs, and photographic materials, had a decline in profits last year to $3,483,466, from $4,115,731 in 1941.

A decrease of 5.3 per cent in sales from 1941 was attributed to a decline in civilian consumption of dyestuffs and photographic products.

Continental Oil Earns Less.

The Continental Oil company disclosed net earnings last year of $14,924,698, equal to $3.19 a share, compared with $15,398,082, or $3.29 a share, in 1941. The 1942 total included a nonrecurring profit of $1,518,284 from the sale of capital assets and $491,097 in pipe line earnings not available for dividend distribution.

Net income of the Skelly Oil company in 1942 was $5,632,805, equal to $5.73 a share, against $5,913,826, or $6.02 a share, in 1941. W. G. Skelly, president, said the war demands on the oil industry will increase and will necessitate the finding of more and larger oil reserves.

Last year's profit of the American Viscose corporation was $5,590,032, equal to $2.53 a share, compared with $7,993,598, or $3.92 a share, in the preceding year. The company's 1942 sales of rayon yarn and staple fiber amounted to $90,319,086, a record high and 12.1 per cent larger than in 1941.

Number of Stockholders Sets Record, G. E. Reports

The number of holders of General Electric company stock increased 3,816 during the last year to a record total of 223,246 on March 12, record date for the dividend to be paid April 26, the company announced yesterday.

I. C. TO TRAIN YOUTHS 16 YEARS OLD TO FILL RAIL JOBS THRU WAR

A school to train 1" year old boys to be trainmen, switchmen, and firemen for vacancies caused by the loss of men to military service will be opened by the Illinois Central railroad at Carbondale, Ill., April 5, W. A. Johnston, assistant general manager of the railroad, announced yesterday.

First of its kind in the history of railroading in the United States, the course will run 10 days, with each class limited to 60 students, who will be enrolled equally from the 10 operating divisions of the railroad.

Upon successful completion of the school course, the youths will be given the customary student training on the railway division with which then enrolled and then enter active service "for the duration or until called into military service." Transportation to and from Carbondale and board and lodging while attending school will be paid by the railroad.

DEMANDS SUGAR IMPORT HIKE TO BAR RATION CUTS

A demand that increased supplies of sugar be imported from Cuba, Puerto Rico, and Hawaii "without delay" was made yesterday in a telegram to Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard sent by E. H. Costello, secretary of the United States sugar importers committee.

"The great drain by lend-lease, army, and navy on the stocks in the United States threatens the industrial users' ration and the weekly ration of the individual and the potentially large commercial and home canning programs," the telegram said, "making imperative immediate action to step up the shipments of sugars from offshore areas."

Largest Output of Steel in Any Year Indicated

Recent indications from Washington that production limitations may be eased on certain durable consumer goods "are in line with observations of some steel industry leaders that steel production this year may be much larger," the magazine Steel said yesterday.

"The current quarter's ingot production," Steel continued, "is estimated at an annual rate of about 89 million tons, compared with about 86 million last year. With additional capacity scheduled for completion this year some believe the output may reach 92 million tons.

"More conservative observers believe this estimate is too high, on the ground that steelmaking equipment has been pushed so hard it will require much repair this year. Most opinion is that at least 4 million tons additional will be available."

Restrictions on building and some other outlets, including exports, may add a substantial tonnage to this, the magazine said, making considerable steel available for less essential requirements. Recent statements by military officers are to the effect that production is ahead of schedule in certain types of ordnance, guns, shells and tanks.

"Altho scrap supply supports steelmaking at the continuing high rate some uneasiness is expressed over the fact that mill reserves are less than what is considered a safe margin and current receipts in some areas are below consumption," Steel reported. "Continued use from stocks is reducing the margin of safety. A factor in the situation is lack of man power for yard preparation. In the Chicago district, according to the war production board, only three of the 22 steelmaking plants have 30 days supply in stock."
